SENATE PASSES GLASS BANK ACT BY WIDE MARGIN

New Deal's Scheme Is Repudiated

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—By an overwhelming voice vote and without a single change, the senate today passed the Glass draft of the 1935 banking act, thereby repudiating the administration's scheme to set up a central dictatorship over the nation's credit and currency.

The measure now goes to conference with the house of representatives, which long ago passed the political central bank bill sent up by Governor Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board with the approval of President Roosevelt.

The triumph of the bill in the senate was one of the greatest victories in the 34 year congressional career of Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], tempestuous former secretary of the treasury and author of the 1913 federal reserve act.

Rubber Budget Defeated.

It was a crushing defeat of the Eccles-Tugwell-John Maynard Keynes collectivist program, which has as its foundation the rubber budget and stratospheric government spending.

Not a single senator asked for a roll call on the final vote, for the futility of this procedure had been demonstrated on amendments offered by Senator Robert La Follette [Rad., Wis.] and Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.]. Senator La Follette sought to strike out a provision permitting commercial banks to underwrite securities and this proposal was defeated, 29 to 22. Senator Nye offered the central bank plan of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, which would set up a government owned and wholly dominated system. It was voted down, 59 to 10.

Amendments Withdrawn.

All other amendments, having been presented and discussed desultorily for the record, were withdrawn by their sponsors, for it was apparent that the leaders, including the most loyal New Dealers, were not in a receptive mood for amendments. Even Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], chairman of the banking and currency committee, and inclined to side with Eccles rather than Glass in the long standing bank feud, refrained from offering his crippling amendments.

Senator La Follette charged on the floor that the senate was operating under "a virtual gentlemen's agreement which makes it impossible to get senators to vote their convictions." Whatever their convictions may have been, there was no question about the "gentlemen's agreement," which enabled the senators to dispose of the bill after two days of debate and adjourn over the week-end.

La Follette Denounces Plan.

Senator La Follette vehemently denounced the provision permitting commercial banks, under drastic limitations, to underwrite security issues, which he said was one of the chief factors bringing on the stock market crash of 1929.

"The committee recommends that we take the first step in the backward track toward the conditions which prevailed prior to the action of congress in divorcing commercial and investment banks," he declared.

"The unloading of securities upon the customers of commercial banks resulted in the wiping out of the investments of thousands upon thousands and the final collapse of the stock market.

"This is the nose of the camel under the tent. We'll write this section into the law, and next session there will be a demand for another. We will have half the camel, and then the next year we'll be right back where we were in 1929."

Glass Comes to Defense.

Senator Glass replied that he had not been exceeded by any member of the senate in condemning the conditions which led to the divorcement of commercial and investments banks in 1933. He recalled that he had deplored the flooding of this country with worthless foreign securities aggregating some 12 billions of dollars, and had denounced the state department for approving these flotations.

"But," he said, "it was represented to the committee by responsible persons that consumptive goods industries had declined only 5 per cent during the depression, while the heavy goods industries were declining 55 per cent. When we wrote the complete prohibition in 1933 it was with the avowed hope and expectation that these underwriting houses would supply the required capital for the heavy goods industries. We were disappointed in that expectation. No underwriting houses were organized, and

COUGHLIN WINS; PARK BOARD TO APPEAL RULING

Final Decision to Be Delayed Months.

Superior Judge James J. Kelly issued a writ of mandamus yesterday to compel the Chicago park district to grant the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, the use of Soldiers' field for a massmeeting. The force of the writ is stayed, however, as the park district announced an appeal to the Illinois Appellate court.

While Father Coughlin was successful in his first legal skirmish to gain the use of the field, it was regarded as unlikely that he would achieve his purpose this year. The appeal will not be filed until October, as the Appellate court justices are now on vacation. The higher court usually does not hand down a decision in less than three months.

Appeal to High Court Expected.

If the Appellate court sustains Judge Kelly, the park district has indicated that a further appeal will be taken to the Illinois Supreme court at Springfield, which would postpone a final ruling for several more months.

In an eleven page decision Judge Kelly held that the park commissioners "always acted, if not through whim, caprice, or fancy, at least in an arbitrary manner, giving the field to whom they pleased and upon terms and conditions they saw fit to make."

The board abused its discretion in refusing Father Coughlin the field, the judge said. The board had contended that the priest's intended address would be of a controversial and political nature in the light of his past radio speeches and lectures, and that there was no precedent for allowing him the field for such a purpose.

Order Will Be Signed Today.

The formal order for the writ of mandamus will be presented to Judge Kelly for signature this morning by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, counsel for Father Coughlin. At that time Attorney Joseph Pleck of the firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, representing the park board, will file the notice of appeal.

Attorney Ettelson said that he would oppose the defense's move to have the appeal notice act as a writ of supersedeas staying the mandamus order unless a heavy bond is deposited. The court, however, has the right of waiving bond for a municipal corporation such as the park board in a mandamus case. Attorney Pleck said that in any event he did not believe more than a court cost bond—about $250—would be necessary.

Cites Speeches of Priest.

In his decision Judge Kelly declared:

"The record shows that the commissioners permitted, and now permit, meetings to be held in the south park system, which is under the control of the defendants, where social, political, moral, and economic subjects are discussed. . . . The court has examined copies of the speeches made by Father Coughlin, and introduced in evidence, and is unable to find anything in them subversive of the constitution or advocating the overthrow of the government by force, or anything intending to disturb the public peace or good of society.

"From the evidence, the character of the address proposed to be delivered by Father Coughlin, if he is given the right to use the field, will be predicated upon the principle of human rights as distinguished from the principle of property rights, to be further characterized by the application of a moral law, with definite, practical legal applications."

Example of Cleveland Meeting.

The judge then quoted excerpts from several of the priest's speeches. The board has asserted that these speeches might incite riots and offered as an example an occasion in Cleveland where Father Coughlin was addressing a meeting of his organization, the National Union for Social Justice. At that time there was a disturbance and people in the audience "took the meeting away" from the priest.

The court said that the commissioners had "indicated a determination to defeat the complainant" by an abuse of discretion.

During the hearing on the mandamus Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board, testified in his own behalf as a defense witness. Dunham said that he recommended to his fellow commissioners that the permit be denied to Father Coughlin.

Commenting on this, Judge Kelly said: "The denial of the application for the use of the field, without even

McCUTCHEON IN PERU

Cartoonist meets friends he made on flight six years ago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, July 26.—We renewed acquaintances today of six years ago when my wife and I made a Peru-Amazon flight. Only two are left of five pilots.

Wayne Carleton, formerly of the United States navy, who flew us to San Ramon and Masisea over mountains and jungles in an open, single-motored plane, died of natural causes after many years of flying.

Cornejo, one of the best Peruvian pilots, with whom we flew to Masisea and Iquitos, crashed and was killed in the Ucayali river one month after piloting us.

Alvorino, famous hero of the Peruvian air service, left San Ramon two years ago and was never again heard from. Some maintain he is being held prisoner by natives. It is more likely his motor failed and the jungle buried his plane.

Since then new equipment has been introduced which promotes greater air safety.

A new motor road from Lima to Oroya has just been opened. It parallels the world's highest railway and threatens the latter's existence. Fifty trucks from beyond Oroya, heavily loaded with freight, arrived today to participate in Sunday's big parade celebrating the 114th anniversary of Peru's Independence day.

We spent the day at Chosica, a suburb 3,000 feet in altitude, 30 miles up the rich valley of the Rimac. It was sunshiny and warm there, while Lima was clouded in seasonal fog.

REPORT KARPIS IN CLEVELAND, O., ON HIS WAY EAST

Cleveland, O., July 27 (Saturday).—(AP)—Cleveland police searched early today for Alvin Karpis, suspect in the Bremer and other kidnaping cases, on the "tip" of a citizen who they said telephoned he had seen Karpis drive through public square.

Police said the citizen, whose name they would not disclose, told them he was acquainted with Karpis and recognized him as he drove past in a speed-steer.

They said federal authorities recently issued a warning Karpis was in this territory. Karpis narrowly escaped capture here several months ago when he escaped as police arrested several women companions.

The state highway patrol said it had been informed that a man identified as Karpis was seen driving east from Cleveland in an automobile.

Patrol headquarters in Columbus reported that another man was in the automobile with the man believed to be Karpis.

Racing Stable Owner Robbed of $20,000

In a daring daylight robbery in Arlington Heights shortly before noon yesterday four young gunmen held up George Leeds, a San Francisco horse owner, former trainer and jocky, and robbed him of $5,000 in cash and jewelry valued at $15,000. Leeds came here for the racing season at the Arlington Park track, intending to add some horses to his string.

Leeds visited the race track in the morning, stopped for a moment in the Arlington Heights business district, and then returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Neumann, 210 South Vail avenue, where he is stopping. He and Mrs. Neumann were talking in the dining room when two young men entered the front door and two others came in through the rear.

Two Bound; Held Under Guard.

They announced they were federal narcotic agents and ordered Mrs. Neumann and Leeds into his bedroom. There one of them produced a pistol and made Leeds strip down to his underwear. He and Mrs. Neumann were then bound hand and foot with several of Leeds' neckties and carried into the Neumanns' bedroom where both were placed on the bed, under guard.

The other members of the gang began a search of Leeds' luggage, emptying his suitcases and ransacking every article of furniture in the room. They even ripped open the mattress. After satisfying themselves that they had taken all of his valuables, the four robbers hurried outside to their automobile, a small green sedan, and sped away.

A few minutes later Mrs. Neumann's 4 year old son, Donald, who had been playing in the yard, entered the house. He loosened his mother's bonds, and she in turn freed Leeds. Chief of Police Carl Skoog was then notified.

Take Valuable Gem Collection.

The jewelry taken by the robbers consisted of a platinum ring, three diamond rings, one platinum ring set with rubies, one pearl and ruby watch chain, and a platinum knife set with diamonds. The $5,000 cash was made up of $50 and $100 bills.

Until a few weeks ago Leeds trained horses for Jake Freedman, a Houston, Tex., bookmaker. Last winter, while Leeds was training his horses in Texas, Freedman put over several betting coups that attracted wide attention.

Recently Freedman took his horses to Detroit, where they were sold. Leeds bought three of them: Dark Conquest, Mannie, and Geneva Cross. He brought them to Arlington Park where they have been racing. Early this week he claimed Disaster from the Keenland farm stable in Kentucky.

SHOT OUT INTO SEA; STUNT MAN LOSES LIFE IN FIRST TRY

Ocean Park, Cal., July 26.—(AP)—A "human cannonball," shot 125 feet out into the ocean from the Ocean Park pier, met his death late today when he struck the water and sank before a boat could pick him up.

Mystery surrounded the identity of the victim. At first pier attendants said he was Cliff Gregg, but later this was officially denied by police, who said the man was a James Miller, reported to have recently arrived in southern California from Boston.

Pier attendants said the man, apparently out of work, volunteered to do the stunt and met his death on the first attempt.

MUSICIAN SHOT AS HE AND GIRL SIT IN PARKED CAR

A peculiar set of circumstances, involving time, place, and a girl, early today led to the shooting and serious wounding of Joseph Kotulic, 25 years old, 5118 South Talman avenue, leader of a small orchestra that plays in south side taverns.

Not having an engagement to play last night Kotulic went riding in his car. Being lonesome, he invited a young woman to ride with him. The young woman is Mary Kosalniak, 22 years old, 4634 South Winchester avenue. After a short ride the couple parked in front of the home of Nicholas Sobol, 24 years old, 5205 South Kolmar avenue.

Sobol, whose father was shot and killed by hoodlums several years ago, has made it a practice to keep a shotgun handy. He had it in his garage last night while he made emergency repairs on his automobile and he was carrying it along with him to his house when he saw the Kotulic car at the curb.

Forthwith he decided to question the occupants. Slipping up to the car, he thrust the weapon at Kotulic. But before he could ask a question the gun was discharged, most of the slugs striking Kotulic. The shooting, Sobol insisted, was accidental. He and Miss Kosalnik took the wounded man to the office of Dr. Alexander A. Stearns, 5115 South Kildare avenue, where it was said his chances of recovery were slight.

Officer's Watch Is Stolen as He Searches Prisoner

Rock Island, Ill., July 26.—[Special.]—Lieut. Rolland S. Berry of Rock Island police today arrested A. E. Davis at a Rock Island hotel on an intoxication charge. After searching Davis and locking him up the officer noticed his watch was gone. A search for it failed until he happened to think of Davis. He found the watch in Davis' pocket.

Tests Prove Feasibility of Lake Airport

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Seeking the answers to questions which have been recurrently asked by experienced flyers and by laymen concerning the contemplated downtown island airport in Lake Michigan off 16th street, The Tribune, in conjunction with the federal bureau of air commerce, American Airlines, and United Airlines yesterday conducted a series of fact finding flights over the proposed site.

The queries most often heard about the projected downtown terminal are these:

Will it be safe for the big transport airliners used on the commercial airways today to take off toward the city from the island field?

How much, if any, noise will be added to the city din by the big twin motored airplanes such as would use the island field?

How can airplanes coming to Chicago from the west, the northwest, and the southwest use the island field since it will be just in front of the loop business area where the tallest buildings are situated?

Can the big airliners of the future land on the lake front field in a fog?

Favorable Reply for All Questions.

All these questions were answered by yesterday's tests under conditions which simulated perfectly those of actual flight operations from such a field. In every case it was demonstrated that the proposed field will fulfill every requirement. Those who took part in the flights averred that the lake front field when completed would be the most modern commercial airport in the world—modern in equipment, size, beauty, and above all, in proximity to the heart of Chicago.

Maj. George W. Vest, the air commerce bureau's supervising director in this area, official observer for his department on the flights, summed up the findings when he said:

"This downtown field on the island seems like the answer to the whole thing. There are ideal approaches for both thick weather flying and for times when the visibility is perfect.

"Blind landing equipment, lights, and marker beacons can be put on buoys or on breakwaters around the field. There are no obstructions for miles on three sides of the field.

Assures Safe Takeoffs.

"Takeoff toward the city will be perfectly safe because pilots will head inland until they get over Grant park or Burnham park, depending upon whether their course is northwest or southwest, and then make a gentle turn to follow the line of the lake shore and never come over the building line of the city at all.

"Traffic bound into the field from the west, southwest, or northwest, can be routed directly to the lake before getting to the city proper, and then can avoid flying over populated areas by following the line of the shore down to the terminal field."

C. R. Smith, president of American Airlines, who accompanied Maj. Vest in his company's Douglas DC-2 liner, was enthusiastic about the field after the tests.

"The island field would soon double and treble the short haul business into Chicago," said Mr. Smith. "Passengers are willing to fly for an hour or two if they know they can alight at the doorway of business, financial and shopping districts. They aren't so willing to fly when they know they must spend from 45 minutes to an

COMPANY HEAD CLASHES WITH COURT ON WRIT

Freed on Bond After Stay in Cell.

Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher yesterday sentenced Edward A. Fink, president of the Peacock Cleaners and Dyers, 4744 Broadway, to serve 60 days in jail for contempt of court. The contempt was based on an allegation, the truth of which was admitted, that Fink's concern had been selling its services at prices less than those set as mandatory in an injunction issued by Circuit Judge Benjamin Epstein on Sept. 13.

Fink was given the opportunity to agree that he would cease price cutting, but he announced that he could not "conscientiously promise" to do so and Judge Fisher, after outlining his views on the subject of judicial price fixing, sentenced him to jail.

Freed After Posting Bond.

Either unwilling or unable to furnish the bond of $3,000 set when his attorney, Irving Breakstone, announced he would appeal the sentence, Fink went to a cell in the county jail. Late last night the bond was supplied and he was allowed his liberty.

The injunction, issued by Judge Epstein, who is now on vacation, restrained 23 independent cleaning and dyeing companies from charging less than 90 cents for cleaning and pressing and delivering a garment, or less than 75 cents for cleaning and pressing only.

Although Fink pleaded that his concern made a profit at cut prices, Judge Fisher ruled that the court would have to be the judge of that. It was not, said the judge, a question primarily of the sale price of the cleaning service. The point was, he said, that Fink could not sell at cut prices if he lost money doing so.

Three Others Are Cited.

Fink was one of four officials of cleaning and dyeing companies cited for contempt yesterday. Attorney George Lavin, counsel for the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant Owners' association of Chicago, which gained the injunction, said the four men were violating its terms by cutting prices. Those cited besides Fink were George Abarbanell, president of Abarbanell Brothers, Inc., Moe Halperin, vice president of the Abarbanell company, and Emmanuel Sommers, president of the Kent Cleaners and Dyers, Inc.

Attorneys Breakstone and Alvin Stein, representing the defendants, declared that the independents could make a profit by charging less than the minimum prices specified in the injunction.

"If these people can show me that they can operate at a profit when they reduce prices I'll relieve them of the necessity of obeying the injunction," Judge Fisher said. The defense attorneys said they could bring in their financial records next week to prove their point.

Three Agree to Obey Writ.

Judge Fisher then told the four men cited for contempt of court that he would continue the charges against them to next Thursday if they obeyed the injunctional price limits pending his study of their balance and cost sheets. Abarbanell, Halperin, and Sommers promised to abide by the injunction.

Fink said that he had made commitments for newspaper advertising which would prevent him from raising his prices to the prescribed minimums.

"Our profit and loss statement is showing a continuous profit," Fink told the court.

"I am to determine that," Judge Fisher said.

"I haven't said I won't comply," Fink stated.

"Will you say you will comply?" the judge continued.

"I can't conscientiously say I will," Fink answered.

"Sixty days in jail," said Judge Fisher.

Violence at Peacock Stores.

Last March there were incidents of sabotage and violence at several of the Peacock stores when the chain was charging less than 90 cents, the price set up by the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant owners' association for cleaning and pressing a garment.

The price fixing injunction obtained by the association is now being appealed to the Appellate court by the independents. Attorney Breakstone said that he believed the $5,000 bond filed with the appeal notice should make it act as a supersedeas, preventing enforcement of the injunction until the higher court has ruled. Judge Fisher held that the injunction was a prohibitory one, not mandatory.

and therefore must be obeyed even while the appeal was pending.

"The injunction is an inhibition against selling services at less than cost," the judge said, "so you may not unduly or unfairly injure the business of others. You can't say that if I attempted to prevent the continuance of a conspiracy and enter an order, that that is a mandatory injunction."

Court Holds Law Covers Ruling.

"There is no law I know of that prevents selling below cost," Attorney Stein said.

"I hold there is such a law," Judge Fisher declared, "and that a court of chancery may and always could interfere with unfair trade practices and unfair competition whose only purpose is to injure competitors.

"This has nothing to do with the NRA or other modern legislation. The right to interfere with unfair competition has been inherent in courts of chancery from the first day the records of such courts were written.

"It is clear to the court that it is not asserting a right anew but that the thing you are doing is for the sole purpose of injuring your competitors, and the court will interfere with that.

Even Rare Profit Held Legal.

"You might come in and say: 'I can operate my business at one-half of 1 per cent profit and I am satisfied' and this court wouldn't be able to interfere with you. But you can't say 'I am going to operate at actual loss to myself, not to honestly conduct a business for profit or increase my volume by competing with the other fellow and getting as many of his customers as possible, but to hurt myself. I am not going to operate it as a business for profit but as a business for loss, because I am willing to take the loss if I can destroy the other fellow.'"

WIFE OF BROKER IS WITNESS IN BLACKMAIL CASE

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Lucille Harris of Tuxedo Park, the wife of George U. Harris, a broker, of 11 Wall street, was a witness today in General Sessions against Joseph Pilotti, 23 years old, and Ralph Picarelli, 28, who were indicted with four others for an attempt to blackmail her by selling her a faked photograph, ostensibly of her, showing a nude female body and her face superimposed thereon, but clipped from a newspaper. The other four have pleaded guilty and will be sentenced on Aug. 12.

During the trial Picarelli, after calling a witness who identified him a liar and claiming that he had been framed, suddenly decided that he, too, would plead guilty to attempted extortion. He was remanded for sentence until Aug. 12.

Mrs. Harris testified that on April 8 of this year she was at her town house at 820 Park avenue when the telephone operator, John McGuire, notified her that two men were waiting downstairs to deliver a package. She instructed him to take the package and bring it to her apartment. He did so and she opened the parcel.

Within was the fake photograph, very crudely executed, and a letter. The letter said that unless she paid $5,000 within a week the photograph would be reproduced in the newspapers and shown to her husband. She notified the police and cooperated in trapping the blackmailers.

U. S. JUDGE ORDERS AUDIT OF PHONE REFUND 'SURPLUS'

Judge Evan A. Evans of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday ordered an audit of records of the Illinois Bell Telephone company to ascertain how much remains of funds set aside for refunds to subscribers to various coin box services in the period between Aug. 16, 1923, and July 1, 1934.

By order of the United States Supreme court April 30, last year—ending 11 years of litigation—the telephone company was required to refund all collections, plus interest, in excess of a rate fixed by the Illinois Commerce commission on Aug. 16, 1923.

During the course of the litigation the company estimated that the necessary refunds with accumulated interest would total $30,000,000. After the high court's order the company estimated the amount at $20,700,000, later reducing it to $19,050,000. In a petition filed by Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight, it was said the company now estimates the total refund at $18,944,322. It was reported that about $15,000,000 has been paid in refunds and interest and that about $3,000,000 still is held by the company awaiting proper claimants.

Judge Evans ordered that the audit report be made to him on or before Nov. 1.

The question of disposition of unclaimed refunds will be decided later, the attorneys said.

JUDGE TO NAME JURY IN DETROIT ROBBERY SLAYING

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—(AP)—Recorder's Judge John A. Boyne broke a four day deadlock of attorneys attempting to select a jury in the Howard Carter Dickinson murder case today by taking over the task himself.

"I'm running this court," he declared as he recessed the trial until 9 a. m. Saturday and ordered a fourth panel of 50 veniremen summoned.

Irritated by "dilatory tactics" of defense counsel, Judge Boyne warned them he would select the jury if the trial was not speeded. His decision came suddenly after two of the defense attorneys clashed over the questioning of a woman juror.

With William Lee Ferris, hotel "party fixer," and three women companions on trial jointly for the murder, the defense was allowed 80 peremptory challenges, and they exercised 71 before the court took over the task. The prosecution used seven and the court removed seven from the box.

Police Make 5 Handbook Raids and Arrest 8 Men

Squads from the offices of Police Commissioner Allman and Capt. George O'Connor of the central district yesterday raided five alleged handbooks and arrested eight men. The places raided were at 159 North State street, 1205 South Wabash avenue, 123 West Madison street, 190 North State street, and 4301 Milwaukee avenue.

RE-ELECTED BY TRAIN DISPATCHERS.

J. G. Luhrsen, 2474 Estes avenue, was re-elected president of the American Train Dispatchers' association at the closing session of the organization's triennial convention in the Medinah club Thursday night.

STUNTING FLYER AND GIRL DIE IN GLENVIEW CRASH

Safety Rules Disobeyed, Witnesses Say.

A spectacular air stunting exhibition during which safe flying regulations apparently were disregarded, ended yesterday in the deaths of Duane Howard, 32 years old, a transport pilot and instructor at Sky Harbor airport, near Northbrook, and his passenger, Virginia Thomas, 16 years old, of Berwyn, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia. They lost their lives when the light monoplane in which they were riding crashed on Curtiss-Reynolds air field at Glenview.

Howard was dead when attendants pulled his body from the wreckage of the ship, an Aeronca, powered with a 38 horsepower Aeronca motor. Miss Thomas, who was in Chicago visiting her sister, Mrs. Frances Pritchard, 1358 Sedgwick street, was unconscious. She was taken to the Evanston hospital where she died a few hours later from a multiple skull fracture.

Makes Perilous Loops, Witnesses Say.

Pilots and mechanics at Curtiss-Reynolds airport told Ora Young, federal bureau of air commerce inspector who investigated the accident, that the plane appeared over the field shortly before 9 o'clock. Howard, who was flying the ship, immediately dived at the hangars and performed three successive loops, coming out of each "below the hangar roof," the witnesses said.

He then gained a little height and dove once more at the hangar, zooming after skimming the roof, to 400 feet, according to the watchers. At that height he closed the throttle and the ship stalled. Whipping nose down, it made two turns of a left spin, then the pilot straightened it out into a steep dive. Before he could level off the plane struck the earth on its nose.

Inspector Young said that Howard should have been aware that the air commerce bureau regulations prohibit stunting under a height of 1,500 feet. It is also a violation of these safety rules to stunt over an airport without a special waiver which Howard did not have, he said. Furthermore, he added, the bureau demands that parachutes be worn during stunting maneuvers, and neither Howard nor his passenger was so equipped.

Spin Believed Intentional.

"The training airplane Howard was flying will not spin unless the stick is held well back and the rudder either full to the right or left," said Young. "All those who saw the exhibition said Howard apparently wanted to spin the plane."

Howard appeared at Sky Harbor airport where the plane was kept at about 8 a. m. He was accompanied by Miss Thomas and his wife, Margaret. He made a short test flight in the plane alone and then took up the girl. Mrs. Howard said she was opposed to his stunting and that her husband had evidently flown to Curtiss-Reynolds field, only five miles away, so she would not see the acrobatics.

The Pritchards and the Howards, who have a son, Duane Jr., 4 years old, are residents of the Marshall Field Garden apartments at the Sedgwick street address. Mrs. Pritchard said her sister, a senior in high school and a member of the school's hocky and basketball teams, had gone for a ride "to get a thrill" so she would have an experience to "tell the folks" when she returned next month to her home in Pennsylvania.

An inquest into the two deaths will be held today at Glenview.

BODY OF HUSBAND FACING DIVORCE FOUND IN CISTERN

The body of Arvid R. Wester, 52 years old, a former tavern owner, was found in the cistern at his summer home in the Cedar Lake subdivision at Lake Villa yesterday by neighbors. A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury at an inquest in the afternoon after Wester's wife, Ragnhild, 36 years old, 5352 Pensacola avenue, testified he had threatened to kill himself because she had sued him for divorce in the Superior court here.

After the finding of the body Attorney Harry X. Cole, counsel for Mrs. Wester, appeared before Superior Judge James F. Fardy and had a divorce suit dismissed. Mrs. Wester had charged her husband with cruelty and nonsupport.

The Westers were married last Dec. 31 after Mrs. Wester won a divorce from Fred P. Harsted, an official of the Graybar Electric company. The Westers separated last May.

Diggers Find Cable Car Relic Buried in the Loop

Employes of the gas company, digging yesterday in Madison street near Wabash avenue, uncovered a drum that was used in turning the cable that propelled Chicago's early mechanicanized street cars on the Cottage Grove avenue line. The city's first cars were horsedrawn and were put in operation in 1859. Cable cars were introduced in 1882. Although electric trolley cars were used as early as 1890, the cable propelled type was not completely abandoned until 1906.

One Dead and Four Hurt in Whitesburg, Ky., Battle

Whitesburg, Ky., July 26.—[Special.]—More than 100 shots were fired in an early morning battle today on the Knott county border. Five men were wounded. Farris Moore, 28, died an hour later. William Moore, his brother, is in a dying condition. Jasper Moore, their father, is wounded. Fleetwood Hall and John Hall, brothers, also were wounded. All had been drinking.

W. C. T. U. Issues Call for 61st Convention Sept. 6-12

From their headquarters in Evanston, the general officers of the Women's Christian Temperance union yesterday issued a call for the 61st annual convention of the organization, to be held in Atlantic City, N. J., from Sept. 6 to 12. According to the officers, the WCTU has had a steady gain in membership during the last year.

Details of Island Field.

The terminal airport as planned would be merely a landing place for big commercial liners, all hangars and machine shops being retained at the present field. It would be 200 acres in area, triangular in shape with the three main runways, each 3,500 feet long. The base of the triangle would be parallel to the Northerly Island and 1,600 feet off shore, connected with the mainland by a bridge.

It was over the site of this projected field that yesterday's tests were made. The Douglas, flown by Pilot Dan Beard and Co-Pilot W. H. Records, made a number of sham landings and climbs toward the city on both the northwest and southwest angles. The plane climbed easily to 1,500 feet, when headed northwest clearing by a safe height the loop buildings and was nearly 1,000 feet above the roofs of dwellings when, on the southwest climb, it passed over the building line at 28th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

An hour later when the Boeing 247B of United Airlines, flown by Pilots Charles Coppin and Dicy Petty, began the same tests, the wind had changed from northeast to east. Even simulating a downwind takeoff toward the loop, the twin engined Boeing pulled itself safely above the tallest buildings. On another takeoff toward the loop the ship climbed to 800 feet over Grant park. Pilot Coppin then made a gentle turn northward and continued the climb to 2,000 feet, never passing near the building line.

Disprove Objection on "Noise."

Meanwhile Hale J. Sabine, acoustical engineer of the Celotex company, was measuring the sound created by the airplane motors from the shore. He set up his noise meter in the street behind St. Luke's hospital, in order to determine the validity of the objection made by hospital authorities to the noise which they have said the planes would make in using an island airport.

From the street the noise of plane motors was undistinguishable above the din of Illinois Central railroad trains, an American Express company freight depot, and a steam engine switching yard nearby. At that point the meter fluctuated between 58 and 62 decibels—a decibel being the measuring unit of sound just as a degree is the measuring unit of temperature. Fifty-eight decibels is slightly less than normal city noise.

E. C. H. Pearson, assistant director of the hospital, allowed the measuring instrument to be installed in an east ward on the 14th floor. There the noise of the airplane motors was distinguishable but the meter registered only 58 decibels. Pearson said the airplane engines would annoy most at night, but Sabine pointed out that the Illinois Central trains operate all night long and that his meter registers up to 62 decibels when the trains pass. Pearson agreed that the trains are as noisy as the plane motors seemed to be.

LIGHTS WILL CUT BROADVIEW RAIL CROSSING PERILS

The Roosevelt road-Indiana Harbor Belt line grade crossing in Broadview, three miles west of Harlem avenue, which has been the cause of numerous accidents and many complaints because of continuous switching movements of freight trains of five railroads which use the tracks, is to be equipped in two weeks with improved flood lights of huge candlepower on both sides of the crossing, it was announced yesterday by Warren Henry, assistant chief engineer for the Illinois Commerce commission.

The new lights will be placed to illuminate danger signs and the movement of trains. These lights, agreed upon by the engineers for the railroads, who will install them, will act as a safety stopgap until construction of a grade separation is begun in January.

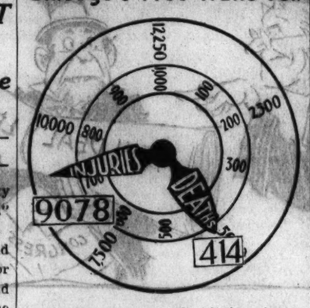
THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

CHILD, 2, KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY 12 YEAR OLD CAR

Theresa Krajtar, 2 yearso ld, 3302 Parnell avenue, was injured fatally yesterday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Edward Doty, colored, 41 years old, 248 East 38th street. The accident occurred at 33d street and Parnell avenue. Doty, who was driving an automobile 12 years old, took the child to St. Paul's hospital. He was held by police for the inquest today.

This death increased the 1935 trafic toll for Cook county to 522. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 414 persons had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 9,078 injured.

GUARDS TO QUIT PLANT IN STRIKE AT TERRE HAUTE

Terre Haute, Ind., July 26.—(AP)—Efforts to settle the strike at the Columbian Enameling and Stamping company's plant, center of a general strike earlier this week, halted tonight, apparently for the week-end.

Conciliators of the United States department of labor and city officials after a meeting tonight announced a joint conference of striking workers and officials of the plant had been arranged for.

Earlier conferences had paved the way for withdrawal from the stamping mill of the private armed guards whose presence provoked the paralyzing general strike.

It was learned authoritatively the armed guards would be withdrawn if assured a safe exit. This the military guaranteed.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt at Indianapolis, in close touch with the situation, said negotiations for a settlement of the stamping mill strike "are proceeding very satisfactorily up to now."

Demobilization of some of the 300 Guardsmen still on duty here is expected soon. Guard officials removed 800 troopers soon after the general strike terminated Tuesday.

REASON SOUGHT FOR ILLNESS OF 100 VETERANS

North Port, L. I., July 26.—[Special.]—Two experts from the United States department of agriculture arrived here today from Washington to investigate the cause and nature of a baffling malady that affected more than 100 world war veterans and a dozen attendants at the United States Veterans' hospital here last night, three hours after they had eaten supper.

Virtually all of the men who were seized with violent attacks of nausea and other complaints, had recovered today. One veteran, Alexander Miller of Mystic, Conn., died this morning, but an autopsy showed that death was due to heart disease, according to Dr. George F. Brewster, medical officer in charge of the hospital.

Dr. Brewster said Miller had shown symptoms of the same illness that struck the other patients last night, but the autopsy failed to reveal any signs of poisoning.

FIND MOTORIST HANGED TO SPAN AFTER CAR CRASH

Brother's Auto Wrecked in Nearby Field.

Puzzling circumstances surrounding the death early yesterday of Harvey Maxwell, 25 years old, 3806 Lowell avenue, were the subject last night of an investigation by Du Page county authorities.

Maxwell's body was found by motorists at 8 o'clock yesterday morning hanging by his belt from a beam of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad viaduct over Irving Park road, a half mile east of Roselle. The automobile of his brother Robert, which he had borrowed Thursday night, was found wrecked in a field near by.

Pay Check Mystery.

They learned that Maxwell was employed for five years as a supervisor in the plant of the Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., at 5600 West Grand avenue. Part of his job was the distribution of pay checks to employés.

Two of these checks disappeared Thursday. Fred W. Schenk, a company foreman, told the coroner. Maxwell worried about them, and then borrowed some money from a company loan association, Schenk said, intending to make them good.

"Apparently the young man killed himself in a fit of remorse," declared Coroner Isherwood. "But there are several possible theories."

Suicide A Possibility.

Borrowing his brother's car on Thursday, Maxwell drove into the country. On a wide curve on Irving Park road near the viaduct, the car, apparently traveling at a high speed, careened into a field and turned over.

"Maxwell was a very moody person," said the coroner. "He may have deliberately attempted to kill himself by crashing the car. Or it may have been an accident, and the suicide a later idea when he felt that his difficulties were without end."

Roscoe Ates, Comedian, Is Sued for Divorce

Hollywood, Cal., July 26.—[Special.]—Roscoe Ates, stuttering comedian of the movies, left home Dec. 29, 1933, and never came back, and Mrs. Clara Ates finally decided to sue for desertion, she says in divorce papers filed today. She asserts that Ates earns $40,000 a year, of which she asks $250 monthly alimony. The divorce action supersedes a separate maintenance suit she filed last year.

WARNS OF AUTO SPEED DANGERS FACING CHILDREN

Speaker Urges 5 Ways to Cut Trafic Toll.

A warning that one out of every three children in Chicago faces death or injury in an automobile mishap as long as the present accident rate continues was given members of the Executives club yesterday at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman. The speaker was Dr. Herbert J. Stack of New York, director of the educational division of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

Listing primary causes of the recent increase in accidents, Dr. Stack placed first the speeder on city boulevards and in residential districts where children are playing. Next come crashes at intersections caused by running past stop lights and refusing to yield the right of way. Another factor, he said, is the reckless driver who tries to pass cars on inclines and curves.

Cites Five Safety Moves.

He emphasized five needs in accident prevention in Illinois. They are: a drivers' license law; a financial responsibility law; semiannual inspection by city or state of all motor vehicles; a general educational campaign against drunk driving, and courses in safe driving in every high school, night school and college.

On drunk driving Dr. Stack said: "It is not the very drunk driver who is the greatest menace. We can see that kind of driver and get out of his way. The real menace is the driver who takes just a few drinks. Three to five ounces of alcohol in the stomach slows down the muscle reaction efficiency 15 to 20 per cent."

City Will Test Cars Free.

Under the new Illinois trafic code, adopted at the last session of the legislature, all motorists are obliged to have their cars tested periodically. City Trafic Engineer Leslie J. Sorensen announced yesterday that the city shortly will begin establishing stations at which brakes, lights, windshield wipers and the general fitness of cars will be tested free.

Municipal Judge John Gutknecht started on a European vacation trip yesterday. In the eleven months he has sat in the Trafic court he has assessed $380,000 in fines.

'LITTLE STAVISKY' CASE OUSTS HEAD RUMANIA BANKER

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 26.—(AP)—Rumania's "little Stavisky" case caused the resignation today of Grigori Dumitrescu, governor of the Rumanian National bank. Investigators tonight were trying to determine whether responsible officials of the bank were involved.

The scandal grew out of the alleged illegal transfer of 100,000,000 lei [about $1,000,000] to Belgium for an unnamed foreign concern operating in Rumania. Numerous instances of bribery were allegedly involved.

Authorities this evening stoutly denied the case held within it the seeds of possible political upheaval, as did France's more famous scandal arising out of the operations of the late Serge Stavisky.

HIGHWAY POLICE CONDUCT TESTS OF AUTO BRAKES

Inspections Are Made Near Springfield.

BY HAL FOUST.

Springfield, Ill., July 26.—[Special.]—The state highway police today were conducting their first brake tests by the new trafic code passed by the recent general assembly. Similar inspections will be made throughout the state starting next week.

On Ill. 24, a couple of miles east of the capital, trafic met a series of signs in the center of the pavement. The first read "Slow," the next "stop for state police brake test" and the third simply "Stop." At the first stop sign, a policeman advised the motorists what it was all about. The operator was directed to approach the next sign at 20 miles an hour and there to apply his brakes as for an emergency.

Must Stop in 30 Feet.

Measured and marked on the pavement at the far side of the second stop sign was a distance of 30 feet. Cars were required to stop within this 30 feet from a speed of 20 miles an hour, the statutory definition of adequate brakes.

It's an easy test. Good automobiles stopped within about half the distance. About 50 per cent of the cars showed poorly adjusted brakes that could not pass a more rigid test. Drivers were advised by the police to perfect their equipment.

About ten per cent of the cars failed to pass the lenient requirements of the new trafic code. The drivers were given summonses, not to appear in court, but to return to the inspection lanes after having the brakes adjusted.

Warants to Be Issued.

"Warants will be issued for any of those who ignore the summonses," said Chief Larry Taylor of the state police. "I don't like to refer to arrests because it is the desire of this department to inaugurate the provisions of the new trafic code with a minimum of prosecutions, seeking compliance through educational activities."

These mechanical inspections were part of a two day school conducted for the sergeants of the state police on the enforcement of the code. The instructions gave particular attention to the new trafic rules such as making it a misdemeanor to drive so slowly as to impede reasonable usage of the pavement, and such as the open highway maximum limited solely by due regard for safety.

Leave for Their Districts.

The sergeants departed tonight for their respective districts to inaugurate enforcement of the new code throughout the state this week-end. Any arrests will not be taken to justices of the peace or to police magistrates as heretofore. The offenders will be summoned to the state's attorney's offices where a criminal information will be filed in a court with jurisdiction to handle jail cases.

24 U. S. CHORUS GIRLS ENLIST AID IN FIGHT TO DANCE IN ENGLAND

(LONDON, July 26.—(AP).—Twenty-four American chorus girls, ordered by the British labor ministry to cease appearances here, enlisted new allies today in their fight to continue dancing in England.

Owners of the hotels at which the American girls are performing approached the ministry with requests for extended working permits, while a member of parliament, Capt. Arthur Evans, former aide de camp and private secretary to Admiral Viscount John Jellicoe, threw his support to the cause of the chorus girls. Evans said he would speak in the house of commons Wednesday on their behalf.

The chorus girls, half of whom came to England from Hollywood and half from New York, were ordered July 17 to quit work within two weeks.

Prendergast Will Inspect Sites for Police Buildings

Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police, will begin an inspection of Chicago's police stations Monday to determine where two new stations are to be built. An appropriation of $150,000 was made for that purpose by the city council this week.

PRESIDENT SAYS ETHIOPIA CRISIS NOT U.S. CONCERN

Upsets Careful Stand of State Department.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today upset the cautious diplomacy of Secretary of State Cordell Hull in the Ethiopian-Italian crisis by stating he considered the dispute of no concern to America.

The President's definition of the American position was delivered on the spur of the moment when he was asked for an outline of administration steps that already have been designed to keep the country out of war.

Because his statement runs counter to intimations of the state department to Italy that this country is deeply concerned over peaceful solution of the dispute, observers expressed the opinion that the White House may retract or modify today's statement.

Summarizes Policy.

Mr. Roosevelt said that an outline of the administration foreign policy was long and difficult. However, he could summarize it by stating that it was a continuation of the good neighbor policy and a making of every effort through diplomatic agencies to keep us out of cases that are not our concern, he asserted.

At this juncture the President was asked whether Ethiopia could be considered in the latter category. He said that it could except from the general view of world peace and the personal feelings that Americans might have in the matter.

Americans do have personal feelings, he observed, that cannot be stopped by government decree. Asked whether he would state what those personal feelings are the President exploded a sharp "Boo."

Emperor Appeals to U. S.

The Ethiopian-Italian dispute became an administration problem Independence day when Emperor Haile Selassie appealed to America as the author and chief sponsor of the Kellogg-Briand pact, outlawing war, to invoke that instrument to avert the threat of Italian aggression on his realm.

The American reply, drafted by Hull, won praise as a deft bit of diplomacy. America said that the league appeared to be mediating the dispute satisfactorily and that this country was loath to believe that either Italy or Ethiopia, as signatories to the pact, would resort to war. In the reply Hull threw the weight of this country behind the league and served notice that the United States did not favor war.

Issues Formal Statement.

A week later Hull, in a move interpreted as an effort to placate pacifists and internationalists alienated by the course of the African clash, issued a formal statement that the United States was interested in maintaining the sanctity of the pact. The statement followed interviews with the Italian, British, and French ambassadors at which the secretary gave notice of its reliance on the pact.

The interviews were followed up with the announcement that the state department had instructed all ambassadors and ministers to inform the governments to which they were serving America of the deep concern of this country over the threat of war. Indications were also given that this country might join in a movement with other nations to invoke the peace pact against Italy.

FLEE FROM WAR DUTY

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

INNSBRUCK, Austria, July 26.—Between eight and ten thousand Italian subjects of military age have fled from Italy to avoid military service. Most of them have departed because they dislike taking up arms against Ethiopia.

A survey of Italy's semicircular frontier from Nice to Fiume discloses that the majority who have run away are Croatians from south Tyrol, which Italy gained under the Versailles peace treaty, and Slovenes from Istria. The latter territory was acquired by Italy in compensation for her participation in the world war on the side of the allies. Many Italian subjects have also escaped through the passes from Italy to Switzerland to avoid military service.

Italy Watches Border.

Conversations with authorities along the long border which separates Italy from France, Switzerland, Austria, and Jugo-Slavia reveal that the Italians recently have taken drastic precautions to prevent the desertion of recruits from military service in Africa. The frontier watch has been doubled, these authorities state.

Even at the French side of the frontier, in the vicinity of Nice, police and gendarmes said Italy had renewed frontier regulations with a rigorousness which had not been noted since 1906 when relations between Italy and France were especially strained. Many Italians escaped across the frontier here, it was revealed.

The same strict watch is kept along the passes leading from Italy into France as from Mussoliniland into Switzerland.

Move Up Military Forces.

At many points along the frontier, investigation shows that Italians have moved up military forces to watch the border. For instance, at the pass near Zermatt, Switzerland, many persons subject to military service have escaped and the guard has been intensified.

Hundreds of youths of German birth, who are Italian because the south Tyrol was given to Italy, have escaped across Brenner pass into Austria.

When youths of military age whom Premier Mussolini wants to send to East Africa to fight the Ethiopians get across the border into the Tyrol, where the sympathy for Italy is not great, the Austrian government refuses to send them back as requested by the Italians. On the contrary, Austria permits them to enter. The story still prevails here that deserters from South Tyrol, who were repatriated by Austria several months ago, were hanged by Italians.

The same situation prevails to a greater degree along the eastern borders of Italy where great numbers of Slovenes are under Italian rule. A careful survey reveals that the greatest desertion has taken place along this side. Italian consuls in Jugo-Slavia intervened unsuccessfully to try to return the Italians. Jugo-Slavian authorities estimate that 8,000 Slovenes have been mobilized in the Italian expeditionary forces.

Ethiopia Pins Hope on League.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, July 26.—The Ethiopian government today announced its unwillingness to revive the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission, which went on the rocks at Scheveningen, the Netherlands, over frontier questions.

"The government of Emperor Haile Selassie is putting its hopes for a solution of the trouble with Italy up to the league of nations," a spokesman said.

This, too, was the reply Ethiopia made to the Italian government which yesterday requested that conciliation negotiations be resumed.

Dispatches from Rome said Premier Mussolini does not welcome action by the league of nations council in the African conflict. It was said Rome is opposed to the meeting of the council scheduled for July 31 or Aug. 1 because of danger of a split between the league and Italy.

LA GUARDIA WARNED GERMANY WILL NOT PERMIT 'HUMILIATION'

BERLIN, July 27.—(AP)—A scathing warning that the reich will not permit "humiliation" was addressed to Mayor LaGuardia of New York today by Der Angriff, organ of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister.

In an editorial, Der Angriff denounced "New York's Jewish mayor" as a "provocateur" for his ruling denying a masseur's permit to a German citizen because of alleged discriminations against Jewish-Americans in the reich.

The newspaper added that it expects President Roosevelt to take action to repair what it considers a blow to German-American friendship through "La Guardia's abuse of his official position in a matter not concerning America."

"It must be expected that American authorities will look thoroughly into the activities of La Guardia and his wire pullers," said the newspaper, describing New York City as a "world metropolis of Jewry."

GEM RETRIEVING SLEUTH FACING TERM IN PRISON

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—Noel C. Schaffa, noted retriever of stolen jewelry, was convicted of perjury in federal court today. The jury found him guilty on three of the six counts of the indictment returned against him as a result of the testimony he gave before a federal grand jury concerning his part in the recovery of $180,000 worth of gems stolen from Mrs. Margaret Hawesworth Bell, former dancer, and Harry Content, broker in the Miami Biltmore hotel last January.

If he gets the maximum penalty, the detective is liable to spend his next fifteen years in prison and pay a fine of $6,000.

Scaffa, questional before the grand jury, testified that he never saw the jewelry before March 18, when he and several Florida police found it in a lock box in the union bus depot in Miami, the key to which had been handed to Scaffa by a "stranger."

The government built its case on testimony of three insurance adjusters who testified Scaffa had the jewels in New York March 6 and that they were exhibited again in Miami, March 17.

Relief Client Takes Home a Pal; Both Land in Court

Arthur Fuller, 34 years old, 1125 Newport avenue, a relief client, went to a neighborhood tavern Thursday night and met a drinking companion, August Carlson, 50 years old, 907 County Line road, Highland Park. He took Carls on home with him to spend the night. Mrs. Fuller objected to Carlson occupying one of the children's beds. Fuller became abusive and the police were called. Yesterday Judge Eugene J. Holland fined Fuller $200 and placed him on probation for six months with the fine suspended. Carlson paid a fine of $5.

151 ALIENS FREED FROM U. S. CELLS TO DEPORT THEM

President Commutes Sentences.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today commuted the sentences of 151 criminal aliens now serving sentences in federal prisons so that they can be deported. The announcement was made by the department of justice, which released the names of the prisoners.

All are individual criminals and are not members of gangs or groups. None is a nationally known criminal. Of the 151 to be deported, 50 are serving sentences for counterfeiting, 64 for violations of narcotic laws, and 37 for miscellaneous offenses, including violation of postal laws, murder, auto thefts, and violations of the Mann act.

None Goes to Nearby Lands.

None of those to be deported will go to countries contiguous to the United States, it was explained, because offenses committed by aliens from Canada and Mexico are mostly unlawful entry. It was thought desirable to have such aliens serve out their terms because they probably would reënter illegally shortly after deportation.

The deportations are to be made to more than twenty nations in all parts of the world. The bulk of the aliens will go to Europe. The method of deportation has not yet been decided although it was said that the aliens probably will not go in a group.

Largest Deportation.

The order signed today represents the largest single deportation of alien criminals in the history of the department. There were five such orders signed last November.

The deportation move was agreed upon, department officials said, as a means of reducing federal prison population and freeing the United States of the expense of keeping alien criminals.

The criminals were serving sentences of from one year and a day to life. In the group is one woman, Bessie Murray, who is to be sent back to Ireland. She is in the federal women's prison at Alderson for a violation of the postal laws.

CCC WORKER IS SHOT TRYING TO RIDE FAST TRAIN

Bloomington, Ill., July 26.—(AP)—Elmer Lynn Smith, 21 years old, of Whitehall, Ill., CCC camp worker stationed at Camp Eureka, Congerville, Ill., was mysteriously wounded tonight by an unidentified assailant who shot him twice as he attempted to "ride the blinds" on a south bound Alton fast mail train.

Physicians in St. Joseph's hospital said the boy, who was shot once in the breast and once in the shoulder, might die as a result of his wounds.

According to the story told by Albert Crain, 23, Roodhouse, Ill., a companion of Smith, they had left the camp and were hitchhiking to their respective homes when they decided in Bloomington to 'hop" the fast mail bound for Springfield.

Crain said Smith had boarded the train between a baggage and mail car when two shots rang out. He said the shots apparently were fired by some one already "riding the blinds" on the train.

The police found that Smith's wounds were made by steel jacketed .45 caliber bullets. They theorized that possibly some fugitive riding the train might have mistaken the CCC uniforms which the boys were wearing for police uniforms.

DENIES CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT BY MRS. KEATON

Los Angeles, Cal., July 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Leah Clampitt Sewell of Beverly Hills categorically denied charges of misconduct with Buster Keaton in an answer filed today in Superior court to the divorce action of the comedian's wife, which named her co-respondent.

Replying to the allegation of Mrs. Mae Elizabeth Keaton, who also sued her for $200,000 for alienation of Keaton's affections, Mrs. Sewell denied she was in a compromising position with the actor in a Santa Barbara hotel room July 4.

BERLIN NERVOUS; ANOTHER 'BLOOD PURGE' IS FEARED

Report Goering in Charge of Nazi Cleanup.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 26. — The German capital tonight was flooded with rumors of serious wrangling among high leaders of the Nazi party. There was even whispered conjecture that another "blood purge" might result from the new Nazi drive against "reactionaries."

Dissolution of Steel Helmet organizations of war veterans in all parts of Germany, confiscation of their funds, and continued campaigns against Jews, Roman Catholics, and Protestants are seen as a smoke screen designed to conceal a desperate struggle among Adolf Hitler's lieutenants."

Storm Troopers and other organized Nazi units are nervous.

Decision Up to Hitler.

"The final decision is up to the Fuehrer; he is the one to decide what will happen," a prominent Nazi said, but failed to disclose what "decisive action" is being contemplated.

Nazis, including Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, repeatedly have admitted "that in a movement the size of the Nazi party there is bound to be a weak link here or there."

"When the fuehrer has completed his negotiations with England and other nations on rearmament he will have time to investigate charges against the weak link and will take action," leading party members have added.

The feeling has spread in Berlin that the time for action has arrived. According to one rumor which has gained circulation, Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering militant premier of Prussia and minister of aviation, has been entrusted with the job of cleaning up Nazi party ranks.

Excesses Stir World Opinion.

It is whispered recent excesses against Jews and Catholics have produced repercussions in the outside world which produced an effect contrary to that expected. Rumors are these repercussions have become so strong that Goering has been designated as the man to curb further excesses and deal out justice for past ones.

The Steel Helmet organization was the chief target of attack by the Nazis today. Branches in East Prussia were closed and their property was confiscated by the police. Newspapers charged the East Prussian veterans had spoken disparagingly of Hitler régime.

Der Front Soldat, the official newspaper of the veterans, was confiscated. It had published a facsimile of a letter which the late President Paul von Hindenburg wrote in 1920 warning the republican government he would not go to the Rhineland to celebrate the evacuation by foreign troops unless the ban on the Steel Helmets was removed. The Front Soldat caption referred to the letter as "an expression from a truly great statesman who always remained impartial."

Both Protestant and Catholic churches protested against the campaign directed against them. Papal Nuncio Orsenigo presented a note to the foreign office. It said that Pope Pius was grieved by recent measures "which violate the concordat."

Protest Against Officials' Talk.

The note also protested against recent speeches in Muenster by Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, and Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, leader of the Third Reich church [Pagan movement]. The note stressed the necessity of freedom of conscience for Catholics.

The Protestant confessional church leaders, who oppose the dictatorship of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, demanded the government to repeal the law creating an arbitration office for church matters. The note requested that special rules based on the church constitution be drafted to guide the arbitration office.

Meanwhile, women school teachers in Württemberg were ordered to take a year's training in housekeeping schools before they are entitled to apply for teaching posts. The women take the same examinations as male men teachers but once they are graduated they must go to a cooking and sewing school.

666,666,666 BABY CHICKS DENIED A MOTHER'S LOVE

A billion baby chicks are hatched annually in the United States, and two-thirds of them never have a mother to guide them.

The authority for this statement is R. V. Hicks of Kansas City, secretary of the International Baby Chick association, whose annual four day convention will begin in the Stevens hotel on Monday.

It was explained by other officers of the association that incubators and brooders combined make better mothers for chicks then hens do. However, it was admitted that there is no prospect of inventing a machine to lay eggs and it looks as if the hens will always have the last cackle.

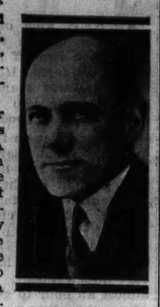
JAMES O'NEILL QUITS AS DIRECTOR OF NRA; IS FOURTH TO RESIGN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—James P. O'Neill, fourth administrator to rule over the ill-fated NRA, is resigning, effective Aug. 1, President Roosevelt announced today.



JAMES O'NEILL.

A successor for O'Neill, who has headed the NRA for only a month and a half, will be selected early next week, Mr. Roosevelt said. The new chief, fifth to take office in a little more than two years, will have a vanishing organization on his hands.

O'Neill, whose primary task was to map out the gradual dissolution of the NRA following the Supreme court's decision, will return to his position as vice president of the Guaranty Trust company of New York, from which he obtained leave of absence to join NRA. He handles organization and personnel problems for the bank, which is dominated by the J. P. Morgan interests.

Under O'Neill's direction approximately 1,700 of the 4,200 persons who were on NRA's pay roll at the time of the Supreme court's decision have been discharged. New jobs have been found for a minority of them. More than 1,000 of those remaining are scheduled to be fired during the next few months.

Employés left on the NRA rolls are consolidating records, doing research into effects of the defunct codes, and preparing to supervise labor standards in factories operating on government contracts.

Negotiation of voluntary trade agreements, originally intended for the codeless NRA, has been transferred to the federal trade commission. President Roosevelt said today that he has not heard of any plans to facilitate this FTC work by new legislation.

2,000 REDS TEAR GERMAN FLAG OFF SHIP AT NEW YORK

New York, July 27.—[Saturday]—[Special.]—A communist demonstration created an uproar on the North German Lloyd liner Bremen and on the big liner's pier last night, shortly before the ship was due to sail, when 2,000 Reds tore a German flag from the bow of the Bremen, tossed it into the Hudson river, and then battled with 100 detectives, 150 uniformed policemen, 25 mounted men, and members of the crew.

In the fighting two shots were fired and it was reported that one of the communists was wounded.

The demonstration started with the singing of the Internationale and shouts of "Down with Hitler!" by a group of communists assembled outside the pier. A number of others, meanwhile, managed to get through the several thousand visitors on the pier to see the ship off and climbed aboard the Bremen. Those on the street saw three men rip the German flag off the ship's bow and toss it away. Cheers went up.

Members of the crew joined with the police in hustling the communists off the ship, while the police squads struggled with the others outside.

Several arrests were made. Then the communists, thinking that the prisoners would be taken to the West 47th street police station, hurried there, massed outside the station, singing revolutionary songs and booing the police. Once more there was a melée. Three persons were arrested there, including Robert Rice, son of the playwright and author, Elmer Rice. Soon the trouble was ended.

POWER OFFICIAL ELECTROCUTED NEAR GALENA

Galena, Ill., July 26.—[Special.]—J. D. Walters, 44, general superintendent of the Interstate Light and Power company, was electrocuted this afternoon while working at Elizabeth, 15 miles east of here.

The accident occurred while he was tying in an addition to the sub-station at Elizabeth. Walters was known to do extremely dangerous work himself rather than expose members of his crew and was said to have insisted on personally performing the work which cost him his life.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Vera Walters, his mother, and a sister at Berlin, Wis. Walters lived in Galena and only recently was elected commander of the Galena Commandery of Knights Templar.

SENATE INQUIRY ON NAZI ACTION ON JEWS ASKED

Treatment of Catholics Is Also Included.

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—A senate investigation of the treatment of Jews and Catholics by the Nazi government of Germany was proposed today by Senator King [Dem., Utah].

King offered a resolution to appropriate $5,000 for the expenses of the inquiry.

The resolution would authorize the senate foreign relations committee to receive "such evidence as may be presented relating to th treatment of th Jewish and Catholic citizens of Germany" and to inquire particularly "into the charges that Jewish citizens have been denied their political and civil rights and have been compelled to leave Germany."

Would Look into Charges.

The committee would be empowered also to look into charges that Jewish citizens remaining in Germany "are being persecuted and subjected to indignities and deprivation of property and opportunities to obtain sustenance for themselves and families."

Treatment of Catholic citizens "and the extent to which they have been discriminated against and deprived of their political and civil rights" also would be investigated under King's proposal.

He made no mention in the resolution of his recent proposal to sever diplomatic relations with the Nazi government.

But the foreign relations committee, under the resolution, would be directed to report to the senate "with such recommendations as it deems proper relating to the policy of the United States."

La Guardia Sticks to Guns.

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia stuck to his anti-Nazi guns today in spite of an increasing barrage of opposition, reiterating his belief that he was right when he refused a masseur's license to a German alien and producing a handful of messages from the state department, showing that the United States has protested to the reich against discrimination against American bondholders.

The mayor also expressed doubt that any responsible official of the state department had ever stated that Americans are not discriminated against in Germany.

The newest protest to the mayor against his attitude had not arrived. It was on its way down in the pocket of the representative of twenty-five societies within an organization known as the Verband Voelkischer Vereinigungen. Kurt Mertig, secretary of the organization, said it was in the form of a resolution adopted last night and that he was taking it down personally.

Hope to Settle Question.

The resolution asserted that it was well known that the mayor hated everything German.

"To settle this matter once and for all," the protest continues, "we are planning to hold a meeting on Tuesday evening, July 30, at the Yorkville Casino."

Acting German Consul Gustav A. Muller conferred today at his office at 17 Battery place regarding the situation.

"We have been interested in the case since the license was first refused," he said, "and we now appear to have exhausted all the possibilities of procedure in New York."

'WOMAN IN RED' JUST ANOTHER ALIEN TO U. S.

Mrs. Anna Sage, John Dillinger's "woman in red," will be deported just as any other undesirable alien, federal authorities declared yesterday. She is to be returned to Rumania and must be aboard a deportation train leaving Chicago on Aug. 17. Department of justice officials will not intercede for her, they said, when reminded that rumor had named Mrs. Sage as the woman who helped trap Dillinger and gave the signal for federal agents to close in on him.

The deportation order against Mrs. Sage was based on proceedings brought nearly two years ago, in connection with her operation of disorderly houses in East Chicago and Indiana Harbor. She was granted a delay, permitting her to wind up her affairs as operator of a beauty parlor at 2401 Orchard street.

BUDGET OF $6,311,000 VOTED FOR ILLINOIS U.; SALARIES ARE RAISED

The board of trustees of the University of Illinois, meeting in the Blackstone hotel yesterday, approved a budget of $6,311,836 for the coming school year and ordered partial restoration of salaries for 1,700 faculty members and employés of the institution. The new budget is $566,017 higher than that for last year.

The trustees provided for restoring 5 per cent on salaries up to $3,000, and 2½ per cent on salaries from $3,000 to $5,000. Salaries and wages make up $4,967,931 of the total budget.

The legislature has appropriated $12,103,802 for the university's use during the next biennium, but only $4,255,051 of this sum will be used for the year's salary and expense budget. Walter W. Williams of Benton, president of the board, explained that less than half of the state appropriation is to be spent because a larger enrollment is expected during the second year of the biennium.

Besides state funds, the university's principal sources of revenue for the coming year are student fees, $1,002,000; federal appropriations, $441,770; sales of products and miscellaneous income, $450,886, and endowments and gifts, $162,129.

The budget allots $1,019,401 to the college of liberal arts and sciences, $807,168 to the agricultural experiment station and state wide extension service, $294,978 to the university library, and $850,949 for physical plant operation and maintenance, including $557,000 for wages of employés. Departments of the university in Chicago will receive $864,943.

Army Flyer Is Killed in Spin from 1,500 Feet

Shreveport, La., July 26.—(AP)—An air reserve officer was killed today after an unsuccessful attempt to leave his spinning plane during bombing and gunnery training at Barksdale field here. Lieut. Franklin Shroyer, just had dropped ten bombs when his plane went into a spin at 1,500 feet. The pilot's partly opened parachute indicated he had attempted to leave the falling craft.

COLBY CHARGES ROOSEVELT RUNS OUT ON PLATFORM

Would Give His All for Another T. R.

Omaha, Neb., July 26.—(AP)—Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under President Woodrow Wilson and an active campaigner for Franklin Roosevelt in 1932, today assailed President Roosevelt and asserted that he had repudiated the Democratic platform "100 per cent."

"This high-falutin' junk that seems to be raising in Washington is something that the American people have little stomach for," he said.

Has Grave Misgivings.

"I heard Mr. Roosevelt say, in sincere tones, that he was for the Democratic platform 100 per cent. The only way he was 100 per cent was in repudiation of the platform," the former secretary of state charged.

Colby, who said he traveled 11,000 miles in 1932 stumping for Roosevelt, said he looked "with grave misgivings and apprehension upon the friends of the administration in Washington."

"Everywhere I go," he said, "the striking thing is the determination to get back to American fundamentals, freedom and individualism."

Insists He's Still Democrat.

Saying that he "would give everything that he has or ever hopes to have for another Theodore Roosevelt," Colby reaffirmed that he remains a Democrat.

"Roosevelt had a formula and we agreed to see if it would work," he said. "But now we're tired of brain trusters and professors with books but no experience, tired of blind alleys and a leadership that itself does not know the way."

Administration's Program Is Repudiated.

there was a paucity of capital available."

Section "Hedged About."

The Virginian explained that the underwriting section had been "hedged around" to make impossible a recurrence of the evils preceding the 1933 banking act. Under the bill, he pointed out, no bank may underwrite more than 20 per cent of any one security issue or more than $100,000 worth, whichever is the larger. The aggregate of all underwriting is limited to twice the bank's capital and surplus, and all underwriting engagements must be carried out under regulations prescribed by the controller of the currency.

Senator La Follette also offered an amendment to strike out that section of the bill which permits a director of a federal reserve member bank to be a director also of not more than one other bank, giving as his reasons the same arguments he advanced on the underwriting section. He withdrew this amendment, however, with the explanation that a vote would be futile.

Another La Follette amendment which likewise was not pressed to a vote would have eliminated banker representation on the open market committee, which determines the policy of buying and selling government securities.

"The banker has the wrong point of view," he said. "In the boom period bankers were in the same frame of mind as the rest of the community. They believed the law of gravity had been suspended."

Provisions of Measure.

The provisions of title II. of the senate banking bill, relating to the federal reserve system, are:

1. A board of governors of the federal reserve system consisting of 7 members, appointed by the President for 14 year terms, instead of the present federal reserve board of eight members. The secretary of the treasury and the controler of the currency, now ex-officio members, are eliminated. The chairman and vice chairman of the board of governors will be designated by the President for 4 year terms.

2. An open market committee consisting of the board of governors and five representatives of the reserve banks, whose regulations for open market operations shall be mandatory. The house bill placed complete control of such operations in the central board, with a bankers' advisory committee having no authority.

Reserve Banks Control Rate.

3. Control of the rediscount rate remains in the reserve banks instead of being placed in the central board, as provided by the house bill.

4. Statutory reserve requirements are retained instead of placing full discretion in the central board. However, the board may increase the statutory requirements by not more than 100 per cent.

5. A house provision authorizing reserve banks to discount any commercial, agricultural or industrial paper and make advances on the promissory notes of member banks secured by so-called "sound assets," was stricken.

6. A house provision permitting real estate loans up to 60 per cent of the appraised value was modified to restrict such loans to 50 per cent of the appraised value, limit them to five years and to properties within a 100 mile radius of the lending bank.

Deposit Insurance Extended.

Title I. of the bill merely extends the federal deposit insurance as provided in a recent temporary joint resolution. Insurance is limited to deposits of $5,000, but is 100 per cent up to that amount. The annual assessment is ¼ of 1 per cent, instead of ⅛, as provided in the house bill, and the assessments are to be discontinued when the fund reaches 500 million dollars.

Title III. of the bill contains miscellaneous amendments to the banking law, the most important of which are the aforementioned provisions for interlocking directorates and security underwriting.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] expressed fears that the banking bill did not contain ample safeguards to prevent a recurrence of the disaster of 1929 and attacked both the federal reserve board and the reserve banks for policies they pursued prior to the crash. He did not, by any means, favor the central bank scheme placing autocratic credit control in the hands of a central bureau, but urged more drastic limitations in the law.

'Just Plain Bill Is Name of the Newest Astor Heir

New York, July 26.—(AP)—"Just plain Bill"—that's the newest member of the Astor family.

The title "William Astor" won over the more pretentious "John Jacob Astor, 4th," and now Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor 3d have named their new baby.

He will be christened within a few weeks in Little Trinity church at Newport, where his parents were married last summer.

The baby's father and his mother, the former Ellen Tuck French, weighed the merits of the two names for a week.

ESTABLISH FREE MEDICAL CARE IN LOS ANGELES CO.

Dentists and Druggists Also Will Aid.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 26.—(AP)—Medical, dental, and pharmaceutical care—ranging from major operations to repair of false teeth—was made available free today to Los Angeles county's 400,000 unemployed.

Contracts have been signed with the State Emergency Relief administration by 4,359 physicians, surgeons, dentists, osteopaths, and druggists to undertake the program, authorized by federal agencies.

The SERA will pay for the medical service at fixed rates, established in the contracts. Charges will be generally below those in private practice, but they will be sufficient to more than pay costs.

Contracts to do the actual work have been signed by 1,827 physicians and surgeons and 650 pharmacies.

The 1,250 expectant mothers on relief rolls will be provided pre-natal, delivery and post-natal care, in addition to a complete layette for the baby.

In addition to the usual service of repairing false teeth, any unemployed person who breaks his spectacles may have new lenses ground.

Undernourished children will be given the services of a public health nurse, who may prescribe special food. The SERA will pay for the added diet.

A family on relief with illness in the home will notify the case visitor, a trained social worker making periodic inspections of every SERA home. The case worker, in turn, will notify the medical society worker stationed in the SERA district for an order on a dentist, physician or druggist.

HUNT BODY OF CAMERAMAN LOST AS BARGE SINKS

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 26.—(AP)—Rough seas near primitive San Miguel island were searched today for the body of Glenn Strong, film cameraman who lost his life when a movie barge sank yesterday with $50,000 in film equipment aboard.

Heavy swells swamped the 80 foot barge, valued at $15,000, as it and other craft were returning to the picture expedition's base on the island, 50 miles southwest of here.

The craft had been fitted up to resemble the British warship, Pandora, which figures in the story of "Mutiny on the Bounty," the picture being filmed.

Only meager information about the accident was received. Strong was said to have been the only person missing. Salvage equipment was dispatched to the island in the hope of saving some of the valuable film equipment which sank.

The company of 75 which went to San Miguel Island included Stanley Fields, screen "heavy," Donald Crisp, director and actor, and Eddie Quillan, comedian.

It also included 30 athletes from Santa Barbara state college playing as extras in the ship scenes. Stars of the picture, Clark Gable, Charles Laughton, and Franchot Tone, were not with the San Miguel company.

SOAK RICH BILL GOES TO HOUSE EARLY IN WEEK

Senate Expected to Tear It Apart.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—With Republicans loosing a barrage of criticism upon the wealth taxation bill Democratic members of the ways and means committee and their experts spent today writing the measure for presentation to the house next week.

The bill, which it is estimated will raise 184 million dollars a year additional revenue, is to be rushed through the house within a week substantially in the form drafted by the ways and means committee. In the senate, however, the measure probably will be almost entirely rewritten.

The senate bill is expected to be more of a revenue measure than that framed by the ways and means Democrats who echo the President's explanation that he is not so much interested in the revenue obtainable as in the "better social order" that he said would be effected by the confiscation of wealth.

Senate Considers Budget.

In the senate the trend of thought is toward a balancing of the budget by increased revenue produced by broadening the base of taxation in such manner as to assess millions of persons now exempt from direct taxation.

The President has virtually lost his battle for taxes designed to penalize bigness in corporations. The provision in the tentative bill for corporation income taxes of 12½ per cent on corporations with net incomes less than $15,000 and 14¼ per cent on those with net incomes of $15,000 or more, is merely a nominal concession to Mr. Roosevelt's recommendation of a sliding scale ranging from 10¾ to 16¾ per cent. The senate is not likely to go any farther than that with the President, if that far.

In both the house and senate the proposed excess profits tax will be urged as more equitable than the President's corporation income tax scheme. The schedule adopted by the ways and means Democrats would exempt corporation profits up to 8 per cent. Profits of from 8 to 12 per cent would be taxed 5 per cent, from 12 to 16 per cent they would be taxed 10 per cent, from 15 to 25 per cent they would be taxed 15 per cent, and over 25 per cent they would be taxed 20 per cent.

Small Increase in Yield.

Under present business conditions not more than 15 million dollars would be expected from these rates. The present excess profits tax is 5 per cent on profits over 12½ per cent. The yield last fiscal year was 6½ millions, a 4 million increase over 1934.

The number of corporations reporting net income declined from 269,430 in 1929 to 82,646 in 1932, the last year for which figures are available. In 1932 only 3,750 corporations had net income of more than $50,000.

Although "soaking the rich" with incomes of more than $150,000 a year by increased surtaxes running up to 75 per cent on income in excess of 10 millions, the ways and means committee expects only 20 millions a year from this source. In 1933 there were only 952 individuals with incomes exceeding $150,000. There is much doubt that even 20 millions would be realized, for the effect of heavy taxes on wealth will be to drive wealth into tax exempt securities.

Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.], ranking minority member of the ways and means committee, said that the house bill "certainly is not up to expectations and would produce revenues in no way equivalent to the administration's extravagant expenditures."

No Hurry, Walsh Argues.

Echoing views of a strong bloc of senate Democrats, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts said that "in view of its relatively small tax yield, there is no urgency for this kind of a tax bill."

Walsh declared it "unfortunate" that the question of taxes has not been presented to congress "as a revenue measure rather than as a reform measure."

"If the present congress is to write and enact a tax bill, let us aim for tax revenues, which the government so sorely needs," he asserted.

The Massachusetts Democrat said the primary purpose of the President's proposals "is social and economic reform," but added:

"None of the proposals for redistribution of wealth, of which we have recently heard so much, is sound or practical. . . . Let us do no injustice to any class."

Walsh declared that unless congress proceeds with "extreme caution" in the matter of taxes "all this source of employment—in the past representing a small army of contented workers—will be wiped out."

Revenues, if they are to come in any substantial volume, must be obtained by increases in the middle and lower brackets, he argued.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Something New in Rodeos

July 26, 1935.

A NEW kind of rodeo staged at 3:30 in the morning has just been run off here on the Yorkville farm. If you ask Clarence Thurow, farm manager, his opinion of this game you will find that he hasn't a single good word for it.

All was quiet on the farm the other morning when Clarence had to pile out of bed to ride herd on some sows that got out of their quarters. It is sufficiently annoying to have to get out of bed and chase pigs at any hour of the night, but when you have to paddle around shushing hogs in the rain the sport is not one that you care much about. It took Clarence almost an hour to get the sows rounded up the other night while the rain was coming down.

There are fifteen sows in the barn near Clarence's house. This bunch has been upset and in a bad humor lately because their litters were taken away in order to wean them. Naturally the sows are locked up so they can't get to their squealing offspring. But the "call of the offspring" conquered gates and locks the other night. One old sow kept rooting around to find a way out. She finally got a door open and away she went. It was here that Clarence started his pig rodeo. He hustled around in the rain with a big flashlight and finally herded seven of them back into the barn. But the problem then was where could the other eight have gone?

He made another search in the rain for the missing eight. Finally he came back to the barn, took a roll call and there were fifteen grunting sows. The supposedly missing eight hadn't even left the barn.

The doors and gates leading to the hog quarters now are double barred and bolted. The idea is—no more pig chasing stunts at 3 in the morning.

The men on the Wheaton farm are keeping a close watch on the new mown hay in the barns. The weather was so damp when the hay was put up that there is the possibility of some mold forming.

The boys have the sparrow traps set. The bird pests have started coming back to the barnyard after they had been cleaned out early in the spring. The traps are taking one or two sparrows every day now, and the boys believe they will have the birds "on the run" before long.

A small house is being moved from the north side of the river to the south side. This house will be used as an information house and a location for the guides. It is going to be quite a pull—taking the house from its present location down to the Five Mile bridge, across the bridge, and then east to Charley Sleezer's house. Two men have been hired to build a foundation for it and do the moving.

The painters have completed their work on the Yorkville farm. They finished by painting one barn behind Sleezer's house. All the farm buildings are cream colored.

LINDY VISITS BOYHOOD HOME IN MINNESOTA

Little Falls, Minn., July 26.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here late today with Mrs. Lindbergh to visit his boyhood home. On a business trip across the country, he flew here from Davenport, Ia., landing at the Camp Ripley airport about 5 p. m.

Brought into town immediately, he went first to the store of M. A. Engstrom, close friend of his father, the late Congressman Charles Lindbergh.

Expressing a desire to visit his childhood home, now the central point of interest in a state park of 99 acres near here, the colonel and his wife motored to the house, and spent considerable time in a tour of the building.

The Colonel seemed pleased at the condition of the house, completely restored since establishment of the homestead as a park. He was told plans by a club to refurnish the house completely as nearly as possible as it was when the Lindbergh family lived there.

Col. Lindbergh said he would leave probably tomorrow, but declined to say where his next stop would be.

Deaf Mute Gets 6 Months in Robbery; Wife Freed

Herman Skedsmore, 26 years old, 26 West Chestnut street, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell and his wife, Florence, 24 years old, was freed when they were arraigned before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan yesterday on a charge of robbing Leslie Lambertson, 5324 Winthrop avenue, on May 12. Skedsmore and his wife, both deaf mutes, admitted the robbery in writing. Mrs. Skedsmore was released when she wrote that she has relatives in Flint, Mich., who want to take care of her.

NEW HAMPSHIRE TOWN HAS $15,000 IN TAX SURPLUS

Boston, Mass., July 26.—[Special.]—Munroe, a tiny Connecticut river, New Hampshire town, suddenly has stepped into the limelight as one spot in the United States where taxes don't count.

Munroe today has a $15,000 tax surplus which has the town fathers in a quandary. If town meetings fail to evolve a legal means for absorbing this wealth it will have to be turned back to the commonwealth.

Munroe's windfall is the result of assessments collected from two immense river power stations of the Connecticut River Power company, located in Munroe. While McIndoe's Falls faces Munroe on the opposite side of the river bank, McIndoe's does not share the tax since—to Munroe farmers—"good old King George" in colonial days decided that the New Hampshire-Vermont boundary line was on the west side of the Connecticut, which leaves everything in the river to Munroe.

Today this little hamlet—a settlement of 500 souls, 13 miles by 3 miles in dimension, is not only enjoying a millennium of prosperity but in the Granite state at least has become one of the most widely discussed towns on the map.

"BEADS" OWNED BY ELSIE JANIS REALLY PEARLS

East View, N. Y., July 26.—(AP)—When Elsie Janis was injured in an automobile accident Wednesday state troopers took charge of her effects. They inventoried them, including:

"One string of beads," and put them in a paper sack at headquarters.

Today they scratched "one string of beads" off the list. They turned the pearls over to an insurance company representative who informed the troopers they were insured for $50,000.

The actress herself continued her improvement at a hospital.

ANOTHER DEMOCRATIC LEADER IN KANSAS AGAINST ROOSEVELT

Topeka, Kas., July 26.—(AP)—Another member of the young Democrats of Kansas came out against President Roosevelt today.

Verner C. Smith of Salina said, however, he would remain a Democrat. Four of his former club associates, three of them officers, quit the party and went Republican last week. They denounced administration policies.

Smith, who has been given credit for organizing 60 per cent of the young Democratic clubs in Kansas, said he believed the President "has totally and completely deviated from the principals of democracy."

ROBBERS GET $40 IN CHAIN STORE.

Three robbers forced Fred Futterer, manager of an A. and P. store at 2958 Seminary avenue, to give them $40 when they entered the store yesterday.

DIVERS BELIEVE THEY FIND LAKE SHIP SUNK IN '42

Holland, Mich., July 26.—(AP)—A trio of young vacationists who went down into forty feet of water with home made diving equipment, while a young woman operated a bicycle pump to supply them with air, believed today they had located the hulk of the schooner Milwaukee, beached and wrecked in Lake Michigan ninety-three years ago.

Joseph Hellmuth of Washington university, St. Louis; Raymond Duvuque of Princeton university, and James Green of Saugatuck, Mich., located the remains of a vessel near Saugatuck.

Miss Nancy Houser, a student of Mrs. Porter's school in Connecticut, pumped air to the amateur divers.

The Milwaukee sank in 1842 after its crew mutinied when the captain wanted to put out from Holland with a cargo of flour and wine while a storm was brewing on the lake.

UTILITY CONTROL BILL CONFEREES REACH IMPASSE

Lobbyist for New Deal Causes Deadlock.

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—A seemingly hopeless deadlock between senate and house conferees on the utility control bill was reached today. For the second time this week house conferees walked out in protest against the presence of Ben Cohen, administration lobbyist No. 1.

Meanwhile the senate lobby committee listened to testimony concerning the mysterious package that Representative Nat Patton, Texas Democrat, accepted from John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power and Light company.

Patton swore that the package contained only a box of cheap cigars and two pamphlets on cattle and horse diseases. He admitted buying four $1,000 government "baby bonds" in March, April and May, paying $750 apiece, or a total of $3,000, for them. These were purchased out of his salary, he said.

Package Small, Light.

But a government employé, E. V. Sellers, testified just as stoutly that he accompanied Patton when he carried away the package and that the package was smaller than a cigar box and light in weight. Two days later, he told senators, Patton boasted about buying the bonds.

There was dismay among the proponents of the utility bill about the deadlock in conference, but Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Radical Democrat from Montana, said he would not yield on the issue of Cohen's presence at the conference. His attitude gave added strength to reports that he does not feel capable of arguing about the measure unless Cohen is present to assist him. Cohen sat beside Senator Wheeler during the debate on the bill on the senate floor.

Objects to Lobbyist.

As soon as Representative George Huddleston, Alabama Democrat, saw Cohen present at today's session he objected.

"Cohen's going to stay," declared Senator Wheeler.

"Then I won't," responded Huddleston. He addressed some sharp words to Wheeler concerning the presence of a lobbyist for the executive branch of the government at a meeting of legislators.

"I wouldn't stand for the presence of the President at such a meeting," Huddleston declared. "It's more evidence of the attempts to destroy the three-branch system of government."

Backed by Republicans.

He was joined by the two Republican house conferees, John G. Cooper of Ohio and Pehr G. Holmes of Massachusetts. Representative Sam Rayburn, Texas Democrat, sided with Wheeler.

No date was set for a future conference.

"There apparently is a permanent breach on this legislation," said Huddleston. "I don't know when, if ever, the conferees will meet again. This is a fundamental question as to whether congress or the President shall legislate. Cohen's presence constitutes executive interference."

Wife is Grieved.

Representative Patton appeared voluntarily before the senate committee. A stout, somewhat untidy figure, he addressed the committee in a Texas drawl, rambling on into a speech about how his "pretty little country girl wife" had been grieved at the "aspersions" cast upon him.

He said he was an old friend of Carpenter and that their two families were socially acquainted. Carpenter called him "Cousin Nat" and he called Carpenter "Cousin John."

"When I like 'em I call 'em cousin," he explained, gravely, to the senators. "And I love and respect that man."

Patton insisted that he always had been against the "death sentence" and that his friendship with Carpenter had nothing to do with that attitude.

CHICAGO POLES WILL TAKE PART IN VICTORY FETE

The victory of Polish forces over the Bolshevik army fifteen years ago which culminated in the crushing defeat of the Russians at the Vistula river on Aug. 18 after the Poles earlier had been driven to the gates of Warsaw will be observed in Chicago and the mother country next month.

A group of 50 Chicagoans of Polish descent will leave New York on Aug. 2 to take part in commemoratory services in Poland, scheduled for Aug. 15, the date when the victorious Polish offensive began. Soil has been gathered from all 48 states to be joined with that of Poland in a memorial mound to the late Marshal Joseph Pilsudski at Krakow. Illinois' soil was taken from the tomb of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield.

On Aug. 18 150,000 Polish-Americans will gather at the statue of Kosciuszko in Humboldt park here for a commemorative program. Among the speakers will be Mayor Kelly; Stanislaw Patek, Polish ambassador to the United States; and John Cudahy, ambassador to Poland, who is visiting his home in Milwaukee.

Passer of Counterfeit $20 Bills Seized by U. S. in Gary

Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, chief of the United States secret service in Chicago, yesterday announced the arrest of Harry Jackson, alias Rex Bain, 39 years old, in Gary on a charge of passing counterfeit twenty dollar bills. Jackson, who Capt. Callaghan said formerly was a part owner of the Rex hotel, 3120 North Ashland avenue, was said to have passed two of the bills in Gary before his arrest. Nineteen of the bills were found in his possession. He is said to have passed more of the bills in Rockford, Ill., and on Chicago's north side.

COUGHLIN WINS; PARK BOARD TO APPEAL RULING

Final Decision Held Up for Months.

with reference to the application, is granting a hearing, and the carrying out of a pre-determined line of action plainly an attempt to prevent the use of the field to persons who are persona non grata to the president of the board."

The courtroom was crowded when the decision was read, but there was no demonstration.

If Father Coughlin ultimately is successful in gaining the field he will have to make a contract with the park board as to the rental rates, usually from 10 to 15 per cent of the gross receipts.

Dunham Explains Board's Policy.

Following Judge Kelly's ruling, Dunham issued a statement in which he asserted that the decision of the commissioners refusing the field to Father Coughlin had been reached after due deliberation and in line with the park district's consistent policy to deny the facilities of the field and clubrooms, assembly halls, and fieldhouses for the dissemination of political propaganda.

"This policy, it was believed, best served the interest of the public," Dunham said. "An erroneous impression prevails concerning the use to which Soldiers' field has previously been devoted. It has never been used in the manner proposed by Father Coughlin, but on the contrary all applications similar in character have uniformly been denied in the past.

"I am advised by counsel, and it is my understanding, that the statute creating the Chicago park district conferred upon the commissioners full power to manage, control, and operate properties within their jurisdiction. It is our intention to appeal from the ruling of Judge Kelly so that the issues involved may be definitly settled by the upper courts."

Two Sent to Prison for Plotting Filipino Uprising

MANILA, July 26.—(AP)—Mariano Untivero and Aurelio Almazan, Sakdalista members of the Philippine legislature, were convicted today of plotting the May 2 uprising in Laguna province. Each was sentenced to four to ten years in prison. Appeals were announced. The May 2 uprising, coming while Gov. Gen. Murphy and Manuel Quezon, president of the senate, were in the United States, cost 60 lives.

Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett Undergoes an Operation

San Francisco, Cal., July 26.—(AP)—After an operation, Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett's condition was described today by attending physicians at the Letterman General hospital as "satisfactory." Gen. Liggett has been in the hospital since last January. His wife, who also has been confined to the hospital, was reported "doing nicely."

Parade Permit Is Refused to Followers of Ethiopia

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday refused a permit to the Followers of Ethiopia, a colored organization, to hold a parade tomorrow afternoon from 32d street and South Park way to Washington park. Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police, explained that the "United States is friendly to both Italy and Ethiopia."

HUEY'S FAMILY DISPUTES IDEA OF RAMOS FIZZ

"Grandpap Was Not the Inventor."

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—A new feud seems to have started in the Long family.

Senator Huey P., who represents the sovereign state of Louisiana in the upper house of congress, yesterday came to New York, temporarily deserted the water wagon, donned a white apron, went behind the bar and demonstrated to the effete east how to make a Ramos fizz.

The senator explained that his grandfather, John M. Long, taught Henry Charles Ramos, the famous New Orleans restaurateur how it was done.

Grandpap Never Drank One.

But today, messages from New Orleans told of the views of the senator's older brother, Julius, of Shreveport, who sometimes has offered to knock the senator's ears flat unless he pins them back to run fast.

"Our grandfather was a farmer and never saw or made a Ramos gin fizz," Julius said. "Our grandpap took his likker neet, not in cocktails."

But Senator Long insisted that his "grandpappy" had introduced the drink to New Orleans while visiting that city in 1852.

The Two Recipes Contrasted.

There seems to be some difference between the original Ramos recipe and Huey's concoction as demonstrated here yesterday. Says the original:

One tablespoonful powdered sugar, three or four drops of orange flower water, one-half lime [juice], one-half lemon [juice], one jigger of sweet gin, the white of one egg, one-half glass of crushed ice, about two tablespoonfuls of rich milk or cream, a little seltzer water [about an ounce] to make it pungent; shake it well and strain.

The Huey Long recipe, as spread in New York to eager consumers yesterday was:

An ounce and a half of Ramos gin, juice of half a lemon, juice of half a lime, tablespoonful of powdered sugar, two dashes of orange flower water, the white of an egg, milk with a spot of cream, a dash of vanilla extract; ice and shake ten minutes.

Bartenders all over the country were reported as swooning when they read that Senator Long had put vanilla in a gin and milk drink.

AURORA CITIZEN CELEBRATES HIS 100TH BIRTHDAY

Bert S. Wilder, Aurora's oldest living citizen and pioneer, celebrated his 100th birthday yesterday at a reception held in the city hall.

With his wife, Hannah, who will be 81 years old next Friday, Wilder walked a mile from his home to the city hall where he delivered a basket of sweet corn from his garden to Mayor Conrad F. Bjorseth. He was served with a warant charging him with working on his 100 birthday, and in a mock trial was found guilty and paroled for another 100 years with the condition that he is to report annually to the mayor.

Later he attended an ice cream party with children of his neighborhood. To friends he displayed a telegram of congratulation from President Roosevelt.

Wilder, who is active and agile, working his own garden and walking several miles each day, is a retired farmer. He was born in St. Lawrence county, New York state, on July 26, 1835. When he was 2 years old his parents brought him west in a prairie schooner and the family settled in Aurora.

Wilder said his recipe for a long life is to mind one's own business.

Kills Herself When Sons Refuse to Arise from Bed

Oakland, Cal., July 26.—(AP)—Police Inspector Clarence Covill said Mrs. Anna Moshkowsky, 41, killed herself today when her sons wouldn't get out of bed. Several times she called to Walter, 21, and Leonard, 18, to arise, her husband said. At length she went to her room and fired a shot into her temple.

SAN DIEGO BASE TO BE HOME OF MARINES' CHIEF

Staf Will Be Trained in Fleet Operation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—The westward movement of the American navy, which has been carried on gradually for fifteen years in the face of unofficial although none-the-less militant Japanese objections, moved today toward complete concentration of naval forces on the Pacific coast.

The navy department revealed that Major General John H. Russell, commandant of the marine corps and his staf are preparing to move the headquarters of the fleet marine force from Quantico, Va., to San Diego, Cal. The shift will take 50 officers and 600 enlisted men to the west coast and place the full complement of the country's defense afloat in the Pacific ocean.

Coördinate Force Sought.

The motivating reason for the change in headquarters is to coördinate the marine force with the United States fleet with which it is designed to coöperate. The decision was based on lessons learned in the recent war games of the fleet.

The marines in time of war are landed by small boats into enemy country. To give the corps training in such landing it was believed essential to have the corps at the fleet headquarters rather than on the eastern coast.

The western concentration of the navy was begun late in the Wilson adminstration under Josephus Daniels, then secretary oft he navy. Under a reorganization the United States fleet was divided into a battle fleet and a scouting fleet and the former was sent to the Pacific coast.

Move Called Unfriendly.

The Daniels order created a sensation in Japan, although the navy department declared there was no political signifiance in the division. The Japanese press was loud in its denunciation of the move on the ground that it constituted an "unfriendly" demonstration against Japan.

With succeeding administrations and the situation in the Far East became more and more tense, the strength of the Pacific fleet was increased and the time of service on the west coast lengthened. Finally in 1929 the fleet for the first time abandoned its practice of holding war games in the Atlantic and held the exercises at the Panama Canal.

Veiled Complaint Made.

Last year and again this year the navy held its war games off Hawaii and Alaska. Although the Japanese government made no formal protest against any of the maneuvers, "certain representations" were made to the navy and state departments, according to officials, that the exercises "might be misunderstood" in Japan and it would be in the best interest of friendship between the nations to hold the games elsewhere.

This protest did succeed in halting a proposed mass flight of navy planes across the Pacific ocean to the Philippines as part of the war games.

G. B. S. IS 79 AND HE DOESN'T WANT TO TALK ABOUT IT

MALVERN, England, July 26.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw didn't want to be reminded that he was 79 years old today. He didn't want to talk about it. He didn't want any one else to talk about it. He didn't, in fact, take time off from his work on another play—"The Millionaires," to be produced in London this fall—to celebrate it.

"If you are ever 79 you'll not want to discuss the fact," he said testily. "And who is in the least interested in my birthday? I am not distinguished by having birthdays. The public interest in me depends on things I can do that nobody else can. Anybody can have a birthday."

His eyes as sharp and his beard as white as ever, G. B. S. looked in fine fettle as he pushed ahead with rehersals of his latest work, "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles." It will be produced here Monday.

BAR JAPANESE WITH CAMERAS FROM AIR SHOW

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—[Special.]—All cameras except those carried by accredited newspaper men and commercial photographers were barred from the All American Aircraft show at the City airport following alleged complaints to the show management that Japanese had been showing undue curiosity concerning the army's radio and aircraft exhibits.

Ray Cooper, manager of the show, said he issued the order when reports came to him that several Japanese with cameras had visited the exhibits and had photographed the radio devices and planes.

The order called for immediate removal of the equipment and its return to Wright field, Dayton, O. The equipment consisted of radio blind flying and landing apparatus developed by the air corps and of great value in wartime maneuvers.

DECLARES NAVY RESPONSIBLE FOR CRASH OF MACON

Akron, O., July 26.—(AP)—A statement by Prof. A. V. De Forest that the navy was responsible for the crash of the dirigible Macon in the Pacific ocean last February, brought a variety of reaction tonight from officials attending a forum here on lighter-than-air craft.

Prof. De Forest, attending the conference, made the statement today in an interview. He is a member of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology faculty. He served on an eight man commission which investigated the crash.

Dr. Karl Arnstein, vice president of the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation, builder of the Macon, named by Prof. De Forest as "having begged the navy to allow him to strengthen the dirigible while it was under construction," said:

"Don't for heaven's sake run down the navy. Navy men are my best friends."

De Forest said "the navy's refusal to permit reinforcement of the Macon's ship structure at the vital point it gave way was responsible for the crash."

Washington navy officials declined comment on De Forest's statement but pointed to an official report signed by Rear Admiral O. G. Murfin and approved by Secretary Swanson.

The report was the verdict of the court of inquiry appointed to investigate the disaster. The report said some requested repairs had not been carried out when the ship crashed, but officials at the time said these were of a minor nature.

FUNDAMENTALIST SESSION HONORS BRYAN'S MEMORY

Dayton, Tenn., July 26.—(AP)—William Jennings Bryan's fight in the John Thomas Scopes evolution trial here ten years ago, tonight was praised as an aid to religion.

Standing on a wooden platform on the same spot where Bryan testified, Patrick H. Callahan of Louisville, Ky., friend of the lawyer and churchman, said Bryan's battle brought reaction beneficial to Christianity.

The occasion was memorial services for Bryan on the tenth anniversary of the trial.

From the hills and the valleys about Dayton came the hosts of fundamentalism to honor Bryan.

PLAN $9,647,000 REFUNDING BOND ISSUE ORDINANCE

After a conference with bankers yesterday City Controler Robert B. Upham announced that an ordinance providing for the sale of $9,647,000 worth of city refunding bonds bearing 3½ per cent interest will be submitted to the next meeting of the city council. The proceeds of the sale, with $1,000,000 in cash now in the bond and interest fund, will be used to retire $10,746,000 worth of city bonds which mature Dec. 31. The bonds to be retired bear 4 and 5 per cent interest. It was estimated that the lower interest rate on the refunding bonds will save the city $90,000 annually. The board of education will act on its $6,000,000 bond refunding plan in two weeks, it was stated.

'MARRYING PARSONS' AT ELKTON, MD., MUST RAZE OUTDOOR SIGNS

Elkton, Md., July 26.—(AP)—Elkton's two "marrying parsons" will have to pull down their "marriage information" signs by Aug. 5.

The town commissioners of Maryland's Gretna Green, where 6,000 persons come for marriage every year, outlawed the information billboards in an ordinance which permits erection and maintenance of advertising signs on nearly any subject other than marriage.

The commissioners' action came on the heels of a record "marriage" month in June when more than 600 couples secured licenses here. The town's population is only 3,500.

Only two ministers, who have no regular churches, are affected by the ordinance. They have 10 signs erected in various parts of the town, however, and all 10 must come down.

Park Workers Commended for Economy Program Aid

Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, yesterday sent to the district's employés letters commending them on their coöperation in the park economy program which reduced operating costs by 16½ per cent for the first half of the fiscal year. He predicted in the letter that a saving of at least 20 per cent will be effected in the second half of the fiscal year.

REVEALS STORY OF ATTEMPT TO SPLIT CAR DEAL

Ten Million Contract Sought by Pair.

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—The purported inside story of a plan to split a 10 million dollar army motor car order between Chrysler and Chevrolet was related today to the house military committee.

It was told by Frank Speicher, New York dealer in inner tubes. He said that back of the plan was Joseph Silverman Jr., who at one time conducted a huge business in excess army supplies.

For a 7½ per cent commission, Speicher said, Silverman sought to arrange with Norman K. Haig, General Motors company official, to set up a General Motors agency in Washington to which, through his alleged influence with the war department, Silverman was to swing the huge truck and auto contract.

Hunted for Months.

Federal agents hunted Speicher for months last year as a witness in the inquiry, now being continued by the committee.

Today he told the committee that Silverman claimed to have influence with the war department because Ralph T. O'Neil, past national commander of the American Legion, "the closest man to Woodring in the United States," was on the Silverman pay roll. Woodring is Harry W. Woodring, assistant secretary of war.

Silverman claimed, too, Speicher asserted, that he had been able to obtain inclusion in the specifications for the motor equipment—mostly for the CCC—of a provision which would have blocked Chevrolet bids.

Specification Change Planned.

But for the 7½ per cent commission, Speicher said, Silverman proposed to Haig that he, Silverman, could have the provision eliminated and divide the contract between Chrysler and Chevrolet.

Speicher said he was interested in seeing Chevrolet obtain army orders so Haig would give him inner tube business.

Despite the fact that Silverman offered both Haig and himself a 2½ per cent cut, Speicher said, he warned Haig he might get in trouble with Silverman because he had learned the 7½ per cent commission was to be added to the regular price of the cars for the army.

Speicher said he refused to become involved, explaining:

Charges Husband Wooed Rival by Air; Asks Divorce

Charging that her estranged husband, a licensed pilot, used his plane to fly to a sweetheart in Louisiana, Mrs. Wilma Brown Searle, 2145 East 72d street, filed suit yesterday in Superior court for a divorce from Clinton E. Searle, air-conditioning engineer for the Pullman Car company. The suit charges infidelity. Mrs. Searle asks custody of a daughter, Karen, 3 years old. The bill also asks that Searle be restrained from leaving the state until after the divorce suit is settled.

SEN. LEWIS TO SEEK U. S. FLYING CROSS FOR MAJ. R. W. SCHROEDER

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] announced today he would present a bill asking that the distinguished flying cross be awarded Maj. Rudolph W. Schroeder of Chicago, chief of the airline inspection service of the bureau of air commerce. The award will be asked as recognition of the achievements of Maj. Schroeder in aeronautical research.

Maj. Schroeder is a former chief of the flight test section of the army air corps. When serving at McCook field, Dayton, O., from 1920 to 1924, he devised many instruments and methods of flight testing that still are in use. In February, 1920, he established a world altitude record for airplanes, ascending to 38,180 feet before his oxygen failed and he became unconscious.

After falling for five miles he regained his senses and landed his ship safely. His eyebalis, lashes, ears, and nose were frozen. Before the war Maj. Schroeder was a barnstorming pilot. He joined the signal corps in 1918 and rose to the rank of major. He established and operated the school of night flying at Ellington field, Texas.

AMERICA ON THE AUCTION BLOCK.

In the interview recently published in THE TRIBUNE Henry Ford showed how costly to American workmen and consumers would be the excessive taxation of inheritances which Mr. Roosevelt is demanding.

Mr. Ford foresaw the enforced pawning of successful enterprises to raise the money with which to pay the new taxes. That would mean a large extension of the influence of money lenders over industry. In addition, the government would drain off so large a proportion of the liquid capital of industry that businesses would be starved and progress would be retarded. The ability of industries like Mr. Ford's to expand employment while giving the public a continually improving article at a low price would be seriously curtailed.

With these conclusions only those who are blinded by envy, hatred, and malice will quarrel. The wealth of the country, as every one who will look about him knows, lies not so much in its bank balances and its steel vaults as in its productive capacity. The disorganization and disruption of our most productive enterprises which would result inevitably from excessive taxation would do incalculable damage.

Mr. Ford mentioned the increasing influence of the money lender. The analysis might have been carried a point farther. The businesses which Mr. Roosevelt would force to the auction block or into pawn to raise tax money would hardly attract American investors, for they would face the certainty of confiscation within a relatively few years. Foreigners, however, would be in a different position. Our government would no doubt attempt to tax their American holdings as an American inheritance, just as it attempts now to tax the American portion of nonresident aliens' estates, but the possibilities of tax avoidance through a variety of legal devices would be considerably improved. Under the circumstances it would be remarkable if the foreign ownership of American industrial properties did not increase rapidly once the Roosevelt taxes were imposed.

The evils of absentee ownership would result. Management by American owners, brought up in the American tradition of decency and friendliness in industrial relations, would be exchanged for long range management by foreigners brought up in a tradition of class consciousness and human exploitation. It is difficult to believe that any Americans can regard such a change as for the better.

Another consequence of the tax program which has been insufficiently considered is its effect upon a great variety of educational, religious, and other philanthropic institutions in this country. If the government is to take a far greater proportion of the accumulations of wealth than it now does there will be few and small contributions for humanitarian purposes. There will be few, if any, free beds in privately run hospitals. County hospitals, which are already crowded, will be unable to take on the additional load, particularly in view of the fact that most of the other hospitals will be forced to raise their charges if their income from gifts is cut off. If the standards of education in such private institutions as Harvard, Yale, and Chicago are not to be lowered, tuition fees may have to be doubled and trebled and there will be few free scholarships. Research, which is an expensive business, will languish. Perhaps even free attendance at church will become a thing of the past.

Mr. Roosevelt's tax program, promising as it does the disorganization of production, the possible transfer of our industries to foreign owners and the certain crippling of all philanthropic activity in the country, seems to fall considerably short of perfection. If this is social planning, we can do with a great deal less of it.

THE LONG AND SHORT HAUL.

Midwest industry and the western railways have passed another milestone in their uphill struggle toward equality of opportunity with seaboard districts in Pacific coast markets. The Pettengill bill repealing the so-called long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act has been favorably reported to the house of representatives by its commerce committee.

The original act provided that all freight rates must be just and reasonable. The act went on to say that to charge more for a short haul than for a longer one was not just and reasonable. The truth of the matter is that generally the higher rate for the longer haul is just and reasonable but quite often it isn't. Perhaps the framers of the bill wrote the long and short haul clause in the belief that it could never be in conflict with the general rule of justice and reasonableness. Lawmakers seem to find pleasure in piling up verbiage and perhaps those who framed this law yielded to the temptation to do so. They did not foresee the construction of the Panama canal or its effect in drawing the Pacific and Atlantic coasts together at the expense of the mid-continent area.

But passage through the house of representatives will be but a milestone. Opposition in the senate will be far more pronounced than in the house. The intermountain bloc will continue its dog in the manger attitude of keeping the midwest manufacturer from competing in Pacific coast markets, while the east is able to maintain a monopoly through the Panama canal, in the vain hope that some day the railways will be obliged to tear down their entire structure or starve. In reality it is within the power of the commission to correct the situation without legislation, but up to the present it has insisted that mileage shall be the czar of reasonableness and also that the digging of a canal at the expense of the entire public gave the east a "natural" advantage, although admittedly in a somewhat unnatural manner.

ROME BANGS THE BRASSES.

It being about the proper time to start the loud acclaim, sound the trumpet, bang the brasses, Mussolini summoned all ye lower middle classes in Rome to turn out and glorify the impending war in Ethiopia. The reports say that in the celebration Rome rocked. It wasn't the first time. Rome has rocked for centuries and has about a forty foot depth of débris to show for it. It may be rocking again. The price of Italian bonds would say it was.

Mussolini's approach to his adventure is so naïve as to be almost nitwit. He has rebuked Great Britain, saying that the old native devouring lion is a fine one to protest against the civilizing march of the Roman legions. Probably what shocks the British most is not what the Italian is doing but the way he is going about it. He says he is the real Nubian lion and intends to have his prey. It is life's most glorious sport and the stronger should exult in his strength and slam the weaker down. War is a spiritual adventure and the little man always has his neck out. The tramp of its troops is the heartbeat of a nation. The light shining on its burnished armor is the radiance of its soul. A black boy running away from a machine gun is the triumph of civilization over nature.

To this the British and other nations must reply, O dear, O dear. Mussolini is making a scandal where there is no need of one. How have the vast empires of modern days been obtained? The British could tell the Italians that they were gained because the conqueror was imposed upon. The lands were taken more in sorrow than in anger. An oil well must always be found in a field of moral purpose.

The preliminary incidents should all reflect credit upon the moral forbearance of the procurer. A noble sacrifice will be a heroic regiment overwhelmed on a Zulu hill. Gordon should die in Khartum. Then Kitchener and the Maxim guns can come in. If there are no troops for the first post of honor, there may be some missionaries. The mighty nation must not show its might at once. A few young subalterns, a company or two from the king's own something and a detachment of native troops form the spearhead. The great nation blunders. The Boers chase its brave troops through the valleys. The generals are stupid. The ministry is incompetent. The political opposition in parliament is savage. It's all a dreadful muddle and everything seems lost. Then somehow or other the victor is coming home with a large addition to his real estate holdings and all's in the best of spirit.

Mussolini apparently hasn't even studied the proper method or, if he has, concluded that his own is better. It isn't. It is antiquated. The cave man used it. Nowadays a nation staking out a claim where it has no title must be plainly impelled to do so against its real wishes. It must take up a burden it would prefer not to carry. If there should be anything valuable in what it picks up that will be regarded as purely providential.

The vestry of nations is not unsophisticated. It contains its men of the world who, knowing what doors are for, know also that a lapse need not be a scandal

It pains them to see Mussolini running a nudist colony.

The Other Side

WHAT IS A CONSTITUTION FOR!
[Decatur, Ill., Herald.]

Farmers have lost the first round in the attack launched by the packers and millers against AAA. There is a possibility of collapse of all gains toward prosperity thus far made in our middle west. It is true that adverse decisions by District and by Appellate courts are still to be passed upon by the Supreme court, but after the knockout suffered by NRA it is only too apparent that a narrow construction of the constitution can be used to destroy AAA also.

The threatened blow is real and it is important. Comparatively speaking, the execution of NRA was a happening of academic interest. Public spirited employers were left free to observe, voluntarily, the higher standards for hours and wages brought in by NRA, and most employers have proved that they do not wish to go back to the old ways. Unfortunately, if AAA processing taxes are set aside, nobody will volunteer to make up for the farmers the quarter billion dollars compensation for crop reduction.

Direct payments to farmers from the processing taxes have been, of course, but a small part of the gain through the operation of AAA. The more important benefit has been the improvement of the market position for grains and live stock. Export markets have not improved but have diminished since the crop reduction experiment was started. Before AAA we saw ten cent corn, thirty cent wheat, and three cent hogs. One big crop year, without AAA control, can bring prices crashing down again to those levels. Linked with the fortunes of the farmer in this case would be the fortunes of every business.

The bright spot in the picture is found in the fact that this year's crops, by the joint workings of law and nature, already are restricted to the approximate volume of consumption demand. A year's grace will be allowed in which to repair the breaches in the dike threatened by court action. In that time we shall have opportunity to see whether a constitution set up "to promote the general welfare" can be used only to promote general poverty.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT ISN'T THE FISHERMAN that takes the fanciest things in tin minnows and rubber frogs and beautiful flies to the lakes that catches the most fish. Sometimes the freckled farmer lad with torn jeans and bare feet who only has a hickory pole with a string line and a bent pin for a hook will catch fish while the city angler looks on in jealous rage. So when all my fancy lures failed me on my last fishing trip I just went over to the woods, cut me a hickory pole, got some common grocery twine for a line, tied a bent pin to the end of the line, put a common whisky bottle cork on for a bobber, baited with a common or garden worm, and went back fishing. And I fished two hours and nary a bite. Which proves something or other, I haven't decided what.

ANYHOW, WHEN THE NEXT DEMOCRATIC national convention meets and the chairman says, "Well, we will now proceed to the drawing up of the party platform," somebody in the gallery is going to yell, "What for?"

AS A MATTER OF FACT, the Democrats don't seem to pay much attention to the party platform, although they spend perspiring days and nights haggling over it. Probably the best thing for the next Democratic national convention to do will be to drop the old custom of drawing up a platform which would be thrown into the garbage can as soon as the convention adjourns, and instead just indorse the Ten Commandments and signify a full approval of the Sermon on the Mount and let it go at that.

POET.

Words blundering through his lips
Are birds following phantom ships.
His words are the small gray shapes of a thought
Winged but everlastingly caught
To the skies of his dreaming. His eyes the nests
From which the little feathered breasts
Of birds have gone. I have seen them winging
After a ship. I have heard them singing
But I have seen him grasp thin air
Trying to recover a bird when there
Was none in sight, his lips bent
With the agony of having sent

IT CERTAINLY OUGHT to work both ways. Anyhow, it's worth trying. Oh, Harvey Woodruff. Help! Help! Help! I want to take my vacation and start out next week. Honest, Harvey, I do need a vacation very, very much. But I can't take one unless you bring your Wake of the News over here on this page and do a little common or garden merging for the month of August. Help! Harvey T. Woodruff, Help! Help! And it isn't like I was going away to waste my time fishing, Harvey, or to loll around on a hotel piazza and play bridge or drink gin rickeys. Or sit around on a sandy beach at night and listen to the little wavelets lapping on the shore and the wind sigh through the pine trees while I sing sweet, old time songs to the silvery moon. Mush! That's what that sort of thing is. No, Harvey T. Woodruff, Help! Help! Help! I'm constructive on my vacations. I want to learn something. You'll agree that I'm getting old enough to learn something. I'm going to attend a photograph school in the Catskills and learn all about Composition and John Ray (he's often spelled "genre," but he's the same fellow) and still life. I'm going in strong for still life; the stiller it is the better it will suit me. And landscape work! I'll be a bear at landscape work just so the landscape is not too far away and I can get to it in the old gas buggy. Trudging up the Catskills on a hot, dusty August afternoon lugging a twelve pound camera is no way to spend a vacation even if one is learning something. So, Harvey T. W., you must Help, Help! Do you hear me, Harvey? Help! Help! Help! Help! Assistance! Assistance! Come right over! Help! Help! Help! Fire! Police! Murder! Help! Help! Help!

ETHIOPIA.

Five hundred miles of Africa
Goes rolling toward the sea,
And every road is shaken
With the tramp of Italy.
Her banners fill the sunlight
And all her guns are loose,
With a million sons and fathers
As a blood gift to Il Duce.

An ancient granite Pharaoh
Looks by in cold disdain—
A host of other conquerors
Have tried this land in vain;
From old Assyria's spearmen
To Baratieri's doom,
The only spot a foe has held
Is shadowed by a tomb.

The flags are out in Africa,
The guns are loose again,
A million men are marching
To an old and mad refrain;
A million men for slaughter
And a peace-land drenched in gore
To make another Cæsar
Where the Cæsars failed before.

THE THYMUS GLAND.

THERE are some structures in the body that have refused to disclose their secrets, while other organs and glands have admitted the searchlight of science to a limited extent only.

One of the most puzzling glands is known as the thymus, which lies in the front part of the body where the neck joins the trunk. On the average it weighs a little more than one-third of an ounce at birth. Although it doubles in size during the first five years of life, its growth thereafter is slower. After puberty [the period of sexual development] the gland gradually shrinks, decreasing in weight until in the older decades but a remnant remains.

In composition the gland resembles lymph tissue somewhat similar to the tonsils and it is probable that its true function has not as yet been determined. Hammar, a Swedish writer, believes that the gland cells have something to do with the production of antitoxin whenever infection attacks the body. Other authors state that it produces an internal secretion that is related to body growth and the development of bones. It is found to be enlarged in patients with Graves' disease [exophthalmic goiter] and sometimes when disease of the adrenals exists. Some authorities are of the opinion that the thymus is closely related to the sympathetic nervous system and recognize its influence on the digestive tract.

Just as other glands may enlarge, so overgrowths of the thymus are occasionally encountered. This is particularly observed in the condition commonly known as status lymphaticus, although the very existence of this state is denied by many physicians. They believe that sudden deaths, in which the gland is said to be overgrown, are due to other undiscovered factors having no relation to the thymus.

There are certain cases, however, in which the gland is obviously increased in size and in which the children present symptoms indicating excess amounts of lymph tissue in other parts of the body.

Excess of thymus tissue has also been blamed for attacks of holding the breath and of certain other difficulties in breathing. More recently the theory has been advanced that there is an increased susceptibility to chemical agents, such as anæsthetics as well as a peculiar sensitivity to various substances [proteins] that is more marked whenever the gland is enlarged.

Regardless of what relation sudden deaths in children may have to the thymus gland, their occurrence cautions us that surgical operations are attended with unusual risks and that these children stand emotional excitement poorly. All sorts of shocks to the nervous system, such as very warm or very cold baths, must be avoided. In any case the child with a greatly enlarged thymus should be surrounded with every possible precaution should surgery become necessary.

We may conclude then that as far as our knowledge goes the thymus gland exists as a part of the lymph system of the body; it begins to atrophy after puberty, and its function has not yet been determined. In order to guard against untoward accidents in children operative procedures should not be attempted until after the youngster has had a period of preparation sufficient to bring nutrition to the highest possible level. It is also well to test children for signs of excessive sensitivity, so that shock shall not appear suddenly and find those responsible for the child's welfare unprepared to meet this type of emergency.

Sudden deaths in children do occur and until we know positively to the contrary it will be well to respect an enlarged thymus. Fortunately one or two X-ray treatments will reduce the gland in size and minimize its potentially dangerous character.

COLDS AND DRAFTS.

W. D. R. writes: Why are some people so subject to colds in the head that they cannot stand an electric fan or air-cooled theaters in hot weather?

REPLY

Some recent data have been compiled showing that individuals who are subject to frequent colds lack neutralizing substances against such organisms as the pneumococcus and the streptococcus. Those who have a large amount of these substances in the blood have fewer colds. In a sensitive skin a drop in temperature or a draft may cause capillaries to contract and flood internal organs with blood [congestion]. This is one of the phases of lowered resistance and predisposes to the growth of bacteria in the nasal passages, sinuses, etc.

ENLARGED HEART.

F. O. writes: I have an enlarged heart. Can it be made smaller?

REPLY.

No, not in the way you think. A stretched or dilated heart can under proper treatment be reduced in size, but if the heart has enlarged because of some valvular leak then you want to keep it enlarged. When a valve leak permits a portion of the blood to flow into an upper chamber of the heart or to return to a lower chamber then the heart must enlarge in order to pump the required amount of blood into the general circulation.

TUBERCULOSIS TESTS.

C. E. E. writes: Why is it so difficult to diagnose tuberculosis? I have already had a Von Pirquet and a sputum test and now an X-ray is advised.

REPLY.

If you have symptoms of tuberculosis, even though the skin and sputum tests are negative, you may still have the disease. Your physician must continue to search for positive evidence. An X-ray plate plus a careful physical examination will give the desired information.

SPOTS ON NAILS.

H. B. H. writes: What causes white spots on the nails?

REPLY.

The state of the general health is sometimes indicated by the condition of the finger nails. Skin diseases such as psoriasis, eczema, syphilis, and ringworm may affect the nails. Chalklike deposits in the finger nails and around the edges are often due to ringworm or arthritis. Any wasting disease or one characterized by a low state of the blood or of nutrition may show in poor development with a ridging or spotting of the fingernails.

RELEASE DEED.

Chicago, July 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought some land in Illinois from A and have paid off mortgage on time. A died without signing a quit-claim deed for release of mortgage, but sent promissory note and deeds, etc. He left no administrator, but deeded the balance of his land to three brothers. There are also about ten children, nieces and nephews of Mr. A, whose parents have died. 1. Would these children also have to sign release deed? 2. Is it necessary that they all appear before a notary to sign release deed? 3. How can some of them sign if they live in another town? 4. Mr. A promised to pay expenses for recording of deed and I have letter to that effect. Would I now be forced to pay for it? 5. Is there any way I could get my tax bill sent to me for this year without employing an attorney? T. B.

1. Yes.
2. Yes.
3. Go before a notary public there.
4. It seems probable that the amount involved would not be worth the cost of trying to enforce the promise against the estate.
5. Ordinarily all that is necessary is to ask the county collector to send the bill. You do not state whether you have made this attempt nor what difficulties have been encountered.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

EXECUTOR VS. ADMINISTRATOR.

Chicago, July 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there any legal difference between an executrix of an estate and an [2] administratrix, W. W. A.? 3. A died leaving a will in which he appointed a trust company executor. The trust company refused to act. B, one of the legatees, asked the court to be appointed executor. When B received the papers they read, "Administratrix, W. W. A." Should they have read "executrix"? 4. If there is a legal difference between these two titles, just what is it? 5. If there is a difference can you give a possible reason for the court's decision?

6. Would it be because of the small bequest left to B in comparison to size of other bequests? M. A. C.

1. An executor is named in a will.
2. An administrator is named by the court.
3. This is the customary procedure. The abbreviation means "Administratrix with the will annexed."
4. See 1 and 2.
5. See preceding answers.
6. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MORTGAGE LIABILITY.

Chicago, July 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and I are interested in two pieces of property, namely, A and B. Property A has a first mortgage; interest and taxes all paid up to date. Property B has a first mortgage; we are the second mortgage holder, having sold the property on contract. There has been a default, so that the first mortgage holder is foreclosing. Since we have signed interest notes on this property, can this in any way affect property A? A. C. R.

If you have signed interest notes it seems probable that you have signed either principal notes or an extension agreement. Your personal obligation depends on the wording of the documents which you have signed. As to documents which you have not signed the mortgage holder could not reach your assets which had not been pledged.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Children have been warned of the effects of "sweets" on their teeth and have gone without candy for years, only to find their teeth decaying worse than those of some of their friends who ate all the candy they wanted. Studies at the Sheffield Scientific school in England indicate that the chief causes of tooth decay lie in faulty diets, principally those lacking in mineral and vitamin content. Calcium is especially necessary for hard teeth, and without it decay sets in readily. Milk and green vegetables are the best sources of the necessary minerals.

A PUZZLED VISITOR FROM CHINA.

Chicago, July 23.—Sons and daughters of Uncle Sam, please listen to me. I am a voice from China. I speak for four hundred million.

When I was a boy you were introduced to me by your diplomats, merchants, missionaries, and those that carried guns with shining bayonets. Since then I have longed to visit you in your land of Christianity, democracy, and liberty. At last, after many years of preparation, I have come to visit you in your own home, wearing your own clothes and speaking your own language.

Alas, I find you don't know me! You take me for Dr. Fu Man Chu. You treat me as a mysterious Mr. Wong. You believe I have no love even for my own wife like Wang Lung. I am dumfounded. I demand an explanation from you. Please answer me!

Do I not respect your Uncle as my only friend in this wide world? Have I not presented you to my children as a George Washington or an Abraham Lincoln? Why do you portray me as Dr. Fu Man Chu, or a dealer in white slaves? How can you allow your official, Sergt. William Bowler, to spend most of his life between the underground dens and the second story chop suey parlors of Chicago's Chinatown?

Are there really underground dens in Chicago's Chinatown? What are they for, to grow bean sprouts? If they are for vice and opium, have the municipal authorities no jurisdiction over them?

When one Chinese is suspected of crime, the police force arrests almost any Chinese they meet. If a blonde is similarly suspected of a crime, will the "force" arrest every blonde on sight? Have you no human decency? Can it be true that you are not aware of the misrepresentations of my people? Is it reasonable for you to think that such a sinister and cruel race as mine has been represented in your books, magazines, and movies can achieve a civilization that has outlasted many others?

What is the matter with you? Have your universities failed to produce any clear, unselfish, thinking Americans? Is it to your advantage to persecute me to whom you have given your own God? Have you not spent millions of dollars to make me a Christian? Why then permit some of you to do the deeds of Satan to the very people whose souls you have tried so hard to save? What has become of the kindness of God? Where is the spirit of that dovelike Holy Ghost? Answer me.

WHEN TO EXPECT RECOVERY.

Chicago, July 19.—If, and when, certain political deterrents to recovery are removed I would go much farther than Gen. Dawes in predicting that the vast shortages of durable goods as well as consumer goods, combined with the great credit resources of the nation, would—within the space of a few months—generate the greatest trade boom in American history. But the one unsurmountable barrier is and has been the Roosevelt administration. His dictatorial and revolutionary policies, insincerity and questionable motives, arbitrary and unwise judgments, and disloyal, dishonest, and dishonorable practices have alienated all clear thinking Americans. Business confidence is always superimposed upon the foundation of confidence in the integrity and stability of the American system of government.

I believe the American people are slowly but surely waking up to the Roosevelt menace to their liberty and prosperity, and by 1936 there will be an overwhelming vote for his retirement. Thereupon the business skies will clear overnight and America will electrify the world with the rapidity of its recovery.

EARLE F. RUTHER.

SLEEPING LIKE A LOG.

Chicago, July 22.—Allow me to add my brickbat to the general effort to debunk your "debunker" who holds forth daily on your editorial page. In today's TRIBUNE he makes the discovery that nobody "sleeps like a log"—after a bedding manufacturer has spent great sums of money in telling the public via the radio and full page advertisments of the work of the Mellon institute investigations. However, the Debunker is wrong in his statement that about an hour is lost every night in movement by the average sleeper. Observations made at the University of Chicago and published in scientific journals show that the average sleeper loses only about 30 seconds per hour in movement. In other words, during a night's sleep of eight to ten hours one is liable to "toss and turn" for about four to five minutes. Thus is your own Debunker debunked. N. K.

THE HOUNDS AT DAWN.

Chicago, July 24.—Perhaps when Mayor Kelly, Dr. Bundesen, and Ald. Grealis start action to enforce the anti-noise ordinance something may also be done about dogs barking at 5 a. m.

Perhaps something could also be done about burning of leaves on hot nights in front of homes. Instead of carrying these leaves to the alleys they are piled in front of curbstones and burned there, thus creating terrible smoke which comes through windows. F. L.

WE BITE. WHAT IS IT!

Macomb, Ill., July 22.—Millions for teachers' colleges and less than the barest necessities for many of our public schools. Meanwhile thousands of unemployed teachers are milling around in useless endeavor. What will happen when the faculty members exceed the student body in number? Oh, for the good old days when even the backwoods pedagog possessed common courtesy! What is this? J. G. WILSON.

Learns Penny Prize at Party Is Worth $25

Club's Scavenger Hunt Turns Up a Treasure.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE scavenger hunt that Miss Janet Castle and William D. Bangs won last Saturday night turned out to be a treasure hunt for young Mr. Bangs, for among the two hundred and fifty pennies that he was given as a prize was one that is worth $25. Miss Castle also was given a bag of two hundred and fifty pennies, but alas and alack, hers were worth only $2.50.

The hunt was one of a series of entertainments for members of the Geneva Golf club planned by the entertainment chairman, John J. Finley. Mr. Bangs would have used all the pennies on those little taxes which keep pocketbooks filled with pennies nowadays, no doubt, if his younger sister, Sally, were not enough of a numismatist to have recognized that one of them was valuable, so she thinks her brother owes her part of the $25 he received for it.

The list of things that the young couple assembled successfully is about as ridiculous an assortment of articles as could be imagined. A burned out electric light bulb, a live angle worm, a complete issue of a newspaper two months old, a package of matches from a place of refreshment outside the limits of Geneva but within five miles of the Kane county courthouse, a photograph or tintype of one member of the hunting team taken before the age of five, a horseshoe, a peeled hard boiled egg, and the given name of the wife of the mayor of Elburn, Lily Lake, or Wasco were the things on the list.

Miss Castle is sailing today from Montreal with Mrs. Walter Wood for a month in England and France. With six other young women they will bicycle through the English countryside and then cross to Paris for a week of gayety and sightseeing before returning home.

Potter Palmers Wed 27 Years.

Today is the 27th anniversary of the wedding of Pauline Kohlsaat and Potter Palmer Jr., but Mr. and Mrs. Palmer have no plans for celebrating the occasion in any especial way. They are at their summer home in Bar Harbor, Me., and only one of their four children is with them. That one is Miss Pauline Palmer who is to be a debutante of the coming season.

The other children are Gordon, Potter Palmer III., whose wife is the former Rose Movius of Boston; and Bertha, now Mrs. Oakleigh L. Thorne. The young Palmers and the Thornes have houses at Biddeford Pool this summer, which is within motoring distance of Bar Harbor so they undoubtedly will motor over to see their parents some time today.

Much to the regret of their many friends here, young Edward Lasker and his bride are taking the train tomorrow morning to return to their home, Little Chieftains, at Port Chester, N. Y. The couple are terminating their two weeks' visit with Mr. Lasker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Lasker of Lake Forest, by spending today at the Arlington racetrack.

Interested spectators at races today, but at races in a different part of the country, will be Mr. and Mrs. George R. Beach Jr. [Jane Schuttler] of Montclair, N. J., who are spending the week-end with her father, Walter Schuttler, in the house he has taken at Saratoga for the racing season.

Mr. Schuttler went east two weeks ago. Mrs. Schuttler still is in their Wheaton home where her other daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Love, are her guests. Mrs. Schuttler will go to Saratoga the middle of August and the Loves will go down some time during the season for a visit. Before returning to Chicago Mrs. Schuttler will help Mrs. Beach settle a new apartment in New York where this attractive bride of a few months is apartment hunting daily.

Polo Tomorrow at Fort Sheridan.

The Fort Sheridan polo field will be the destination of many horse lovers tomorrow afternoon, for there is to be a polo game at 3 o'clock followed by a demonstration of jumping of a modified Olympic course by members of the Fort Sheridan Horse Show association with a number of mounts, some of which were in the United States Army Olympic squad of 1932.

The jumps will be from four feet to four and one-half feet in height and it should be a thrilling exhibition. Playing polo will be a team representing Fort Sheridan and one selected from the 122d field artillery.

The Fort Sheridan horse show will be held this year on Sept. 20 and 21.

After a quiet visit of a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson, in Glencoe, William Simpson and his bride, the former Beatrice de Menocal of Boston, are leaving Monday morning for their new home on Long Island. "Bill" Simpson and his wife spent a night with the junior James Simpsons at their home in Millburn and another with the John Simpsons at their home on the Shoreacres grounds in Lake Bluff, but none of the family nor any of their friends has entertained for them, for the bride and bridegroom wanted to rest after their European honeymoon.

Miss Ellen Adair Orr, sub-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Orr, is spending the summer in France with Mr. and Mrs. John A. Storrs. This picture of her was taken shortly before she sailed at one of the many weddings that kept society busy during the late spring and early summer.

Adair's parents and her younger sister Nancy are leaving the middle of August for Santa Fé to visit Mrs. Orr's mother, Mrs. Wheaton Augur, and the junior Aug[illegible]. They will visit in Colorado Springs en route.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

A SITUATION REPEATED.

On Monday I gave a hand in which an opponent, holding four trumps against declarer, with two tops, deliberately ducked the first trick offered him in the hope that the declarer would play trumps again. The declarer did play the suit and the opponent was thus enabled to draw dummy's trumps, force the declarer, and set him several extra tricks.

NORTH.
♠A-K-5-3-2
♥Q-7-6
♦K-Q-6

WEST.	EAST.
♠6-4	♠J-10-9-7
♥A-K-3-2	♥8
♦J-10-8	♦9-5
♣J-9-6-2	♣A-K-Q-10-8-3

SOUTH.
♠Q-8
♥J-10-9-5-4
♦A-7-4-3-2

The bidding:

WEST.	NORTH.	EAST.	SOUTH.
Pass	1 Sp.	2 Cl.	2 Ht.
3 Cl.	3 Sp.	4 Cl.	4 Di. [1]
Pass	4 Ht.	Pass	Pass
Pass

First, there's nothing like rebidding your values several times.

West might have doubled the bid, or bid five clubs. He did not do the latter because he expected to set four hearts. He did not do the former because he saw little point in letting the declarer in on the fact that there were four trumps out against him in one hand.

The opening lead was a club. South trumped the second round and led a trump toward the queen in dummy. West ducked, for the reasons I stated in my opening paragraph. But South, noting the drop of East's eight, correctly placed West for the three outstanding trumps. The only chance of making the hand was to find West with two spades and three diamonds—exactly what he so conveniently has.

South played the two spades and the three diamonds, winding up in his own hand with the ace of diamonds. After that West could make no more than his ace and king of trumps.

MONDAY'S HAND.

NORTH.
♠6-4
♥A-J-9-6-4
♦5-3

WEST.	EAST.
♠5-3-2	♠J-10-9-8-7
♥K-8-7-5	♥Q-10-3
♦9-8	♦Q-10-4-2

SOUTH.
♠A-K-Q
♣K-Q-J-2

This was recently played at five clubs instead of the easier contract of three no trumps—easier, that is, if you know that the queen of diamonds is in the East hand. Because of West's ill advised opening and his flitting from suit to suit, South made his contract.

Stork Parties for Dads Given in Hollywood

Stuart Erwin Entertained at Stag Affair.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 26.—[Special.]—Stag stork showers provide Hollywood's latest novelty. Frank McHugh gave the first such party last March, shortly before the advent of his infant son, Michael Spencer McHugh. All the guests were men from the studios. This week Pat O'Brien and Stuart Erwin were hosts for similar parties. O'Brien entertained a group of male cronies for George Meeker at whose home an early arrival is expected. Among those who brought gifts for the father were Jimmy and Bill Cagney, Burton Churchill, and Frank McHugh.

After Stuart Erwin's wife, June Collyer, became mother of a daughter last week, Stuart's pals decided to tender a party for him, because June had been getting all the attention. Snowshoes, a Russian dictionary, a cartridge belt, and other gifts of similar inappropriateness were heaped on Stuart by his palsey-walsies, including the Cagney brothers, Roger Pryor, Charles Farrell, Jim Gleason, and Paul Kelly. Even Stuart Jr., now about 3, capped the list of useless gifts by presenting his dad with a stray kitten.

Googoo, Joe Penner's duck, has been retired. . . . Tarzan Weismuller has been coaching his pal and former director, W. S. Van Dyke, in swimming, with the result Van can now stroke the length of his pool eighteen times. . . . Katharine Hepburn has suddenly decided to get chummy and talk to reporters. She has agreed to talk to six of them, one of them at a time.

Myrtle Buckley, widow of Charles [Black Crow] Mack, and a former musical comedy girl, has retired to a ranch at Newhall, Cal., which is located just opposite the knoll on which Bill Hart has his palatial mountainside home.

The greatest Joe E. Brown fan in Hollywood is Francis Lederer. Lederer ferrets out all of Brown's previews, goes to see his pictures a couple of times, and nearly laughs himself to death.

The young players on contract to Metro studio will be given a stage run in the Hollywood Music Box theater under Olive Hinsdel, studio dramatic coach, in order to help round out their experience. The play is "House Party" and the cast will include William Henry, Mary Carlisle, Mary Doran, Robert Livingston, Ann Darling, Eddie Norris, whose recent marriage to Lona Andre is being annulled, and Jean Chatburn.

Preston Foster was called on the carpet by his employers yesterday, and a new clause inserted in his contract forbidding hazardous pastimes during the making of a picture. His power cruiser was laid up for repairs. He was cutting capers in Avalon bay last Saturday and nearly crashed into a yacht there on which his director, Ernest Schunach, was aboard. The near crash was too close to be funny to Schoedsack, particularly since $1,000,000 is tied up in "The Last Days of Pompeii," just being completed with Foster as star.

"Floor Rest" Is a Simple Cure for Insomnia

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you're an insomnia sufferer you may be interested in a sleep-courting trick told to me recently by a friend. For years she's been one of those tossers and turners for hours after getting into bed. Some one told her about the "floor rest," as it is known.

You simply get down on the floor, cross your arms peacefully on your chest, bend your knees all the way up so that the soles of the feet are resting flat on the floor—and then forget everything. Let go of every nerve and gnawing fiber. Stay there till you feel drowsy, then hop into bed.

It's a good trick for that five or ten minute rest often necessary or at least desirable, before the guests troop in for dinner, or before you can get the stamina to dress to go out to dinner.

For the sedentary worker who wants to untie herself from the knots of nervous tension, wriggling, stretching, squirming while on the floor helps a lot. A mighty stretch and a couple of jaw breaking yawns are recommended by one expert for untying oneself from knots.

Another suggested way of releasing pent up emotion of high powered strain is one suggested to me by a Hollywood star. Sit in a chair and simply flop from your thigh joint, letting your head, hands, and arms dangle down between your knees, like a rag doll.

There's a still simpler means of getting rid of the tension and strung up nervous pressure, suggested to me by Annette Kellerman. When you're tired and sunk and blue, reach for the window instead of a chair. Stand before the window and breathe in as much fresh air as your lungs will hold; breathe out; breathe in again. But take one of those deep breaths that you can feel right down to your toes, so to speak.

We go speeding along on such high tension that acquiring little practices like those mentioned above should be done and practiced a couple of times during the day. It's little pickups of the sort that can keep you awake past your bedtime should your social activities call for a late dinner hour or after theater supper. Besides, they are good for your efficiency during the working day hours.

Bigalli Leads Orchestra in Park Concert

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Dino Bigalli, whose labors have been many and efficient, though generally not public, in connection with the seasons of the Chicago Opera, was the conductor of the company's orchestra at Grant park last night. If, as was to be expected, much of the program was operatic in character, Mr. Bigalli is so greatly conversant with the field of opera that he was able to assemble a seldom heard program.

Wherefore there was pleasure in hearing an excellent performance of pieces like the overture to Pedrotti's "Tutti in Maschera" and excerpts from Charles Wakefield Cadman's "Shanewis," the latter being the American contribution to the program.

The soloists were two. Ada Belle Files, contralto, was greatly liked for her two arias, "Printemps qui commence" from Saint-Saëns' "Samson and Delilah" and "Condotta ell'era in ceppi" from Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

Elizabeth Rushmore, soprano, who followed in the second part of the program, made one of the notable hits of the season with "Caro nome" from Verdi's "Rigoletto," having preceded it with "Ah, non credea" from Bellini's "La Sonnambula."

Glenn Cliffe Bainum and his concert band will play tonight, with Edward Kozak as the xylophone soloist. The program:

1. Overture to "Euryanthe".....Weber
2. Romanza and Finale from 4th Symphony .....Schumann
3. "London Suite".....Eric Coates
4. Toccata Marziale.....R. Vaughan Williams
5. Symphonic Poem, "The Universal Judgment".....DeNardis
6. Ballet Suite—"The Shoe".....Ansell
7. Xylophone Solo.....Selected
8. "A Childhood Fantasy"..Clifford P. Lillya
9. Humoresque—"The Wearin' o' the Green".....Arranged by Douglas
10. Ballet Music from "Prince Izor"..Borodin

Right Clothes Add Joys to Your Vacation

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Struggling through the crowds shopping for vacation clothes makes any one ready for the quickest and easiest route out of town. These super-out-of-doors wardrobes are twice as exciting as a new fall hat. Low price marks make them grand buys for a depleted allowance and they are the snappiest things in town. One shop has some snow white cotton overalls that will make a most decorative person out of a sun tanned gal just lounging about. The same things come in delightfully faded blue regulation "jeans," with bib cross straps, and cuffs on the trousers.

Play suits in every imaginable color and material from one dollar up in price are neat little uniforms for tennis, golf, and even kitchen police duty. Some of these play suits come with shorts and shirt, others are made with both shirt and shorts combined in one creation, and more brief affairs are the tricky shorts and bandanna top.

If you are bound for a dude ranch you can be outfitted in a certain sports shop with just the corect thing in blazing colorful shirts, neckerchiefs, "leis," and the hat with instructions how to crease. And lest you think that is unimportant, listen for the howls of derision when you wear the hat creased in any other way than the right formation.

For outgoing fishermen, and the ladies who tag along, the obligzing experts in this same shop will show and fit you with waders, boots, shirt, hat and the empty creel to hold the trout you hope to write home about.

Or if you are heading for the country to listen lazily to the katydids, to lie around all day miles from jangling telephones, they'll show you a perfect uniform—slacks and a shirt of crinkled cotton in navy, orange, and two other wearable colors that are the best and most comfortable duets available. Trimmed with wooden buttons and fitting like a sailor suit, what else could you ask? They tub as easily as your pocket hanky, and no pressing is required.

Rockwell Kent Back from North; Explodes "Hardship" Beliefs

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—Laden with a roll of paintings, illustrations and the manuscript of a new book, Rockwell Kent, artist and author, returned today after a year's absence in Greenland.

"There is a lot of nonsense about the terrible north," Mr. Kent said. "My boy Gordon, who accompanied me, stood the cold as well as an Eskimo. He learned to turn his kayak over in the water and come up on the other side, the supposedly marvelous trick of the Eskimos. I found I could trust him out on the ice with a dog team for days without ever worrying about him."

Mr. Kent added that he had taken his son, who is 14, to Greenland to "give him the best education he could get in a year" and that "Gordon went there as a little boy and came back as a man."

Good Morning!

After all, the person questing for adventure hasn't far to look for it!

Let him board a trans-Atlantic liner [if he has funds] or a cross country bus [which takes less] and there he or she will find enough assorted thrills to make him—or her—content to lean back on the peaceful life for the remainder of his—or her—life.

[I seem, with Mark Twain, to be attaining "that sort of mastery of the language which enables a man to travel all day in one sentence without changing cars."]

But, judging from our movies, I have said something profound in that there sentence. Cast your minds' eyes back over various releases, including "It Happened One Night," "Fugitive Lovers," "Trans-Atlantic Merry-go-round" and "One Way Passage," and see if I haven't.

The section of "Black Sheep" takes place on a ship plowing the ocean toward New York. Those concerned in the events with which the story's concerned are a professional poker player [Mr. Lowe], a pretty, brainy actress [Miss Trevor], a slim, beauteous, thieving dame [Miss Ames], a boy who's infatuated with her and whom she attempts to use for furtherance of base ends [Tom Brown], and a jolly pair of traveling men who think they're mighty good at cards till John Francis Dugan teaches them to know better.

The plot is worked out skilfully and amusingly to the patter of bright, punchful dialog, and under the guidance of a director who knew how to make his scenario material sing as he wanted it to.

You'll be strong for Mr. Lowe as Dugan. Not a crook—just smarter than the average in his own little way, Mr. Dugan. And when it comes to having a heart of gold—O MY!

Claire Trevor in the romantic lead is ONE PEACH! She's not only an A1 little actress but she has, to an unusual degree, the faculty of inspiring instant and sincere liking. Adrienne Ames, looking, somehow, so unlike Adrienne Ames that you ask "IS that Adrienne Ames?" is nonchalant, naughty and picturesque as the lady who stole the polls.

Other rôles are consistently well acted and the piece moves along at a lively, entertaining clip.

Altenheim Jubilee.

Grapes

BY NANCY CABOT.

During the early days of this block's history women used print materials for the grapes and leaves because of the difficulty encountered in securing "fast" colors. Since the manufacturers have perfected dyeing, vast quantities of shades in rich purples and soft greens are available for the luscious fruit. "Grapes" may be applied to a white ground or to any of the delicate pastels harmonizing with purple and green.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

X-BAZIN removes HAIR

This famous French formula is the safe—quick—sure method. Leaves skin soft and smooth—discourages regrowth of hair. Simple to use—just apply—wash off. Remove ugly hair and really look lovely all summer—the money saving X-BAZIN Cream in the Giant Tube never costs more than 50¢—smaller tube 10¢ stores.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

She may be the leading lady of "Curly Top" and have a staggering bank balance, but Shirley Temple is a baby who drinks her milk, minds her mother and eats her vegetables. She doesn't know yet that she has dimples and a million dollar smile.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—We never thought we'd live to see the day when we would go gaga, insane, hoop-de-doo, or what have you over a child movie actress, but here we are all limp after getting pally with Shirley Temple. She took us like Grant took Richmond.

Cross our heart and hope to die if she isn't unspoiled. And if she isn't the most captivating youngster in the world. She's all round and cuddly, for one thing, and she has indescribable charm. We were flattered to pieces when she cottoned to us; the world was ours after we'd swung on her swing, inspected the black and white rabbits in their pen in back of her bungalow on the Fox lot and seen her report cards. Her plump curls bob up and down when she prances around. Her eyes never stop twinkling. She's genuine and gay and the cutest little monkey we've ever explored a doll house with.

Her eyes are brown, not blue; there are a few tiny freckles across her nose and she's a hefty little thing, solid as a rock. She doesn't know yet that she's a pretty important person. She adores jokes. Her lessons, which she started in January, are very important. The alphabet is almost easy for her now and she's graduated to the stage in arithmetic [a word she can't quite pronounce yet] where she can add three numbers instead of two. Every once in a while she stumbles on a word.

Shirley minds her mother beautifully. And her mother is the sort of person who won't let her get away with a great deal. When "mom" says "no" it sticks.

According to her mother there's no special technique in rearing a Shirley Temple. When Shirley came along the two other Temple children, both boys, were fairly grown up. Mrs. Temple had practically forgotten how to take care of a baby, so she did it up brown with the assistance of baby books, baby specialists and her own good sense. Shirley has been perfectly brought up from the standpoint of health.

Eight o'clock is her bedtime. She drinks about a half of pint of milk with each meal and always eats her vegetables. Mealtime, bedtime, and playtime are regular. There would probably be an industrial crisis on the Fox lot if Shirley's lunch were late. It's served in the kitchen of her bungalow—a lovely little house that a lot of us would appreciate as a permanent home.

No nursemaid takes care of Shirley. Her mother washes her hair herself, and curls and cuts it. It's brushed religiously, by the way. Her clothes are simple; fussy ones are worn only in a picture when the script calls for it. For the most part she wears little bloomer dresses of gingham.

Shirley has the dimple situation well in hand. A couple of them twinkle beside her mouth on either side. Her eyes are an unusual shape—almost straight along the lower lid. With those eyes and those dimples and that dazzling charm it's inevitable that she'd have the world at her feet. And it's intensely nice to know that she's sweet besides.

Janet Gaynor Gives Up Studio Bungalow Before Starting Trip

Hollywood, Cal., July 26.—(AP)—Janet Gaynor sailed toward a Hawaiian vacation tonight while the movie colony speculated on why the petite actress gave up her bungalow-dressing room on a studio lot before leaving.

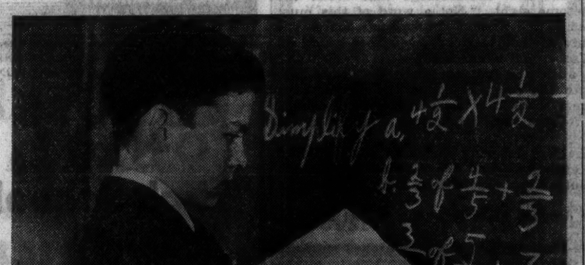
Miss Gaynor ordered her furnishings removed from the bungalow, but said the action meant "nothing at all," and that the Fox company's new management told her the quarters might be needed.

No similar change was made, however, at the bungalow-dressing quarters of Shirley Temple, Fox child star who recently sailed for a Honolulu vacation, nor at that of Will Rogers, now vacationing in New Mexico with Aviator Wiley Post.

School Hangs Painting Lost in Attic 41 Years

Omaha, Neb., July 26.—(AP)—Creighton university officials today hung in the law library a valuable painting, given them in 1894, which was found only a few days ago after it had been lost for 41 years in an attic. The painting is "Autumn," by Dwight Frederic Boyden, which in 1892 won second prize in an international art exhibition at Munich, Germany. It was purchased for $3,500 and given to the university by a friend of the school.

PUZZLED ABOUT SCHOOLS?



If you are puzzling over the question of a school for your boy or girl, why not look into the facilities of the schools which advertise in the Educational Directory of the Chicago Tribune? In this convenient directory, boarding schools, prep schools, colleges, business and dramatic schools, and schools teaching such subjects as music and art give helpful outlines of their courses and requirements. Read the announcements published tomorrow in the Chicago Tribune Educational Directory.

Predict Curves Will Return in Paris Openings

Busts and Hips Again in Style World.

PARIS, July 26.—(AP)—Bigger and better figures will have a leading place in the 1936 fashion shows starring Monday, say whispers leaking from designers' workrooms.

Busts and hips were being talked about and something faintly reminiscent of the old wasp waist was forecast as the dressmakers staged final fittings today on mannikins with well-rounded curves.

At one of the summer costume balls, where outfits are often the tipoff on coming fashions, an American-born countess, known for her chic, appeared as Venus in a flesh colored bathing suit effect designed by Schiaparelli and liberally padded at bust and hips.

Several dressmaker's mannikins, much in demand a few years ago because of their "match" figures, which haven't a curve in sight, are now looking for jobs. "Too flat-chested and too thin in the neck," is the verdict on them.

Everybody connected with the fashion business hastens to say that the new trend doesn't mean women's waists are to be pinched and tortured à la gay nineties or that hips are to assume Mae West proportions. But figures are going to show more curves and in anticipation many a fashionable is eating more and longer than she has in years.

Foreign lands have inspired new fashions which are coming out next winter. Draped effects reminiscent of the Greeks are among the advance hints. They have been creeping in slowly for several months, and report says they will be seen in increased numbers in both day and evening clothes. Shoulder scarfs and draperies are looked for, too.

The Italian influence—inspired by the recent Franco-Italian understanding and Mussolini's exhibition of old Italian masters in Paris—is much discussed. Rich brocaded silks and wools in such colorful tones as old Italian blue, Veronese green, Sienna brown, yellow and copper have been evolved by fabric designers.

Dr. Carl S. Patton Vacation Preacher at Hyde Park Church

During the absence on vacation of Dr. Douglas Horton the pulpit of the United church of Hyde Park will be served for the next three Sundays by the Rev. Carl S. Patton of the Pacific School of Religion at Berkeley, Cal. Dr. Patton was formerly professor of homiletics at Chicago Theological seminary and came into national prominence in 1931, when he was appointed moderator of the general council of Congregational-Christian churches.

St. James Methodist Episcopal church, 4600 Ellis avenue, has announced its list of guest preachers during the absence of its minister, Dr. Thomas Millison Pender, who is on vacation at his home on Long Island, N. Y.

The services tomorrow will be taken by Dr. O. W. Auman, treasurer of the World Service of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the Rev. Milo J. Vondracek, morning and evening respectively. Other ministers who will officiate include Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and morals of the M. E. church.

The Ortega Feud

By Marie De Nervaud

SYNOPSIS.

Chris Jackson is sent by Bill Benton, new sheriff of Monterey county, in early Spanish California, to put an end to the Ortega-Alvado feud, which has resulted in many murders. Chris encounters Guido Ortega, Ramon, his dare-devil son, and Ysabel, his beautiful, sad eyed niece. He falls in love with Ysabel at first sight, and has a quarrel with Ramon and publicly spanks him. He receives a note from Ysabel, hinting of a mysterious danger and begging his aid. Chris camps in a canyon on the northern boundary of the Alvado ranch. He is advised by Rocky, an old Indian hunter, to leave the country. Next day Chris meets Francesca Alvado, flirtatious Spanish beauty. He tells her of his encounter with Ramon Ortega. It wins him welcome at the Alvado ranch. He is invited to a rodeo to be held there in a week. During the rodeo the warring families hold a traditional three day truce. Ysabel Ortega is facing a forced marriage with her cousin, Ramon. Her uncle refuses to tell her the secret of her birth, as he had promised to do on her 18th birthday. She appeals to Rocky, who promises to delay the priest's arrival. José Alvado, in love with Ysabel, ventures to Ortega ranch and is held a hostage. The Ortegas arrive at the Alvado ranch for the rodeo. Francesca is jealous of Ysabel and hints to her that she is engaged to Chris. Chris is bewildered by Ysabel's coolness. The night of the rodeo ball Ysabel's uncle allows her to wear her mother's jewels. She plans to escape at dawn with Rocky's aid. Before she is able to carry out her plans the Ortegas have her kidnaped and sent back to their ranch, where she is imprisoned in a cell-like room. In an old chest in the room Ysabel discovers a secret panel which contains a letter from her mother. Ysabel learns that she is not Guido Ortega's niece. Her mother was the daughter of an Alvado who had eloped with an Ortega. Ysabel is heir to both ranches. Chris and Rocky learn of Ysabel's disappearance and set out in pursuit. They break into the Ortega ranch and rescue both Ysabel and José Alvado. They return with all speed to the Alvado ranch. Ysabel determined to avenge her mother.

INSTALMENT XLII.
AN EARTHQUAKE.

There was the clatter of a knife on the floor, then a paralyzed silence as Chris, without ever taking his eyes from Guido Ortega, told Ysabel to begin.

In spite of his concentration on the one figure, Chris could glimpse, out of the corner of his eye, the rest of the company. Pietro Sanches with his half closed lids and quizzical look on his fat, inscrutable face; Francesca, her cheeks crimson and her eyes flashing as they darted from José to Chris to Ysabel; Ramon, half crouched as though ready to spring, and Señor Alvado, amazed and indignant, but with a glad look of relief, as his gaze rested on José.

"All I need to do is to read you this letter that I have found hidden in a chest in the room where Guido Ortega imprisoned me," Ysabel's voice, faltering at first, gained strength as she started to read the damning indictment of her mother's words.

Stupefaction superseded every other emotion as the company listened with an absorption that shut out everything else, to the account of Guido Ortega's treacherous cruelty.

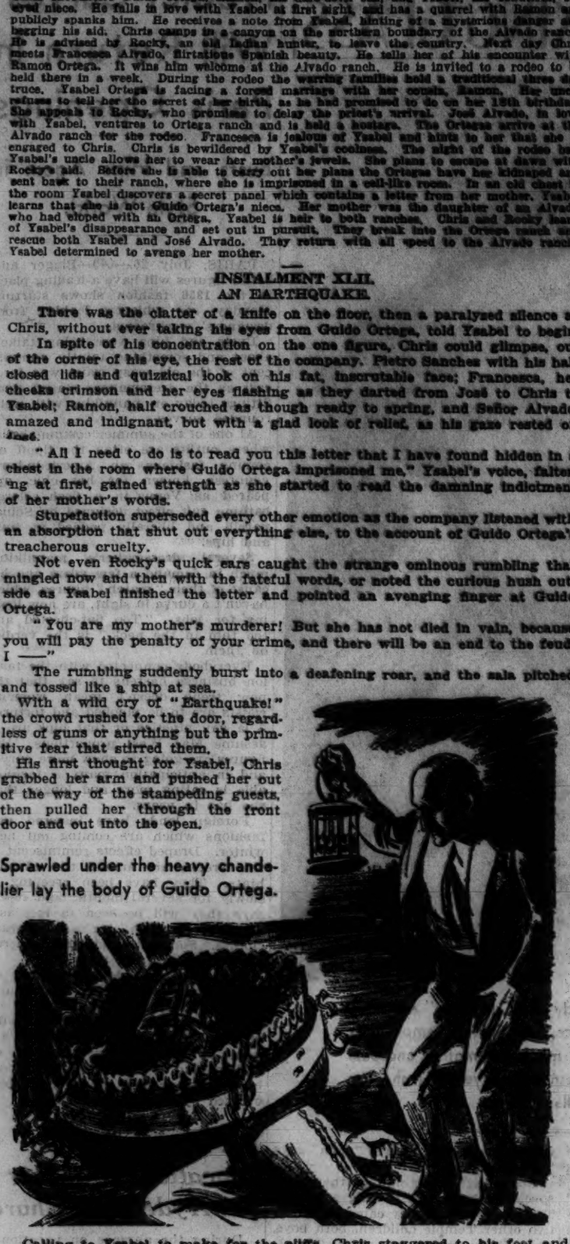
Not even Rocky's quick ears caught the strange ominous rumbling that mingled now and then with the fateful words, or noted the curious hush outside as Ysabel finished the letter and pointed an avenging finger at Guido Ortega.

"You are my mother's murderer! But she has not died in vain, because you will pay the penalty of your crime, and there will be an end to the feud. I ——"

The rumbling suddenly burst into a deafening roar, and the sala pitched and tossed like a ship at sea.

With a wild cry of "Earthquake!" the crowd rushed for the door, regardless of guns or anything but the primitive fear that stirred them.

His first thought for Ysabel, Chris grabbed her arm and pushed her out of the way of the stampeding guests, then pulled her through the front door and out into the open.



Sprawled under the heavy chandelier lay the body of Guido Ortega.

Calling to Ysabel to make for the cliffs, Chris staggered to his feet and darted through the yelling and excited crowd, his voice roaring through their demoralized shrieks with a boom of authority as he ordered the vaqueros to fight the fire before it got beyond them.

Guido Alvado's voice answered him from the dark confusion, and the next minute he was beside him and the two took command, not daring to stop to look for any individual until the fire was under control.

Working with frenzied energy, the vaqueros rallied under Chris and threw dirt on the flames while Guido Alvado and his father organized a bucket brigade to bring water from the reserve tanks that were always kept filled for such an emergency.

The terrorizing glow with its menace of destruction gradually subsided, and after what seemed an eternity of struggle, but was actually only a few minutes, the danger of fire was stamped out.

In one of the fitful glimpses that had flashed into his consciousness through the kaleidoscopic nightmare of those moments Chris had seen Rocky through a broken window in the glowing sala pulling down curtains and draperies and stamping out the flames as he directed the men who brought the buckets of water where to use them to the best advantage.

With relief Chris noted that no cries of pain mingled with the shrill hysterical shrieking that still made the darkness hideous, and, judging that all had had time to get out before the walls of the rancheria had crumbled, his mind flew back to the scene that had had such a dramatic interruption.

Realizing that Guido Ortega and Ramon might well choose this confusion to make their escape, Chris rushed over to the hacienda and groped his way to the door, calling to Rocky as he went.

At the sound of his voice, a dark figure detached itself from a group by the steps and rushed toward him.

Sensing rather than seeing his danger, Chris sidestepped and ducked as a knife whizzed past his ear and lodged in the door frame behind him.

The next instant he whirled and dove for the knees of his assailant, bringing him down with a crash, then grappling with the wiry, struggling figure until he managed to twist his arms behind him and peer into his face.

It was no surprise to meet the eyes of Ramon Ortega glaring into his. With a grim satisfaction Chris gripped his arms twisted behind him with one hand as he slipped the other into his pocket and brought out the handcuffs he had never been without since coming to this hostile country.

It was the work of a second to clasp them on Ramon's wrists and transfer his grip to the shoulder of the struggling figure.

"The game's up, Ortega." Chris looked at the dark shapes crowding curiously about them.

"I'm the deputy sheriff of Monterey county," he explained tersely, "and I arrest Ramon Ortega for murder and abduction."

"Take charge of Ramon Ortega, Rocky. I must find his father."

Before Rocky could answer, José Alvado sprang out of the darkness.

"I will take charge of my brother's murderer!"

In a flash Chris dropped Ramon and gripped the uplifted arm of the would-be avenger, twisting the knife from his hand.

In the confusion a light gleamed down the hall and Señor Alvado appeared with a lantern that threw a flickering glow over the extraordinary scene.

Chris still had his hold on José's upraised arm while Rocky held Ramon in a grip of iron.

With the appearance of light to dispel the weird uncertainty of what was actually happening, excited oaths and comments burst out from the crowd, but Rocky held up his other hand for silence.

"Guido Ortega has been judged by a higher court than yours," he announced to Chris.

Curiosity overcoming the fear of another tremor, the crowd stampeded to the door of the sala and Señor Alvado muttered a strangled "Dios de mi alma!" as he held his lantern high to light the room.

Sprawled under the heavy chandelier, which had fallen on his head, lay the body of Guido Ortega.

Chris formed a hasty resolve as his mind flashed to the possible effect this might have on the excited vaqueros of the two outfits in loosing all the pent up passions of the feud.

"Wait!" his voice cut through the first murmurings that broke the amazed silence that greeted the gruesome sight. "Not a word of this must get outside until Ysabel has explained to the Alvado family what course she means to take. All of you here go into the court. Rocky, you keep guard on Ramon Ortega; and you, José, find Ysabel and Francesca."

Rapping out his orders with an authority that surprised the crowd into obedience, Chris herded them all into the court, realizing the danger of a panic if there should be another tremor while they were inside the hacienda. Señor Alvado was one of the last to step out, his lantern shaking in his trembling hands.

Realizing the strong emotions he was laboring under as the combined result of the earthquake, Ysabel's revelations, and the safe return of José, Chris crossed over to his side as Guido took the lantern from his father's hand.

"There is no need to worry," he dropped his voice, "but Ysabel must be the one to tell you."

As though in answer to his words Ysabel appeared at the arched entrance to the court with José, and behind them Francesca, clinging tightly to the arm of Roberto Gomez.

BY MARY MEADE.

A couple of weeks ago we showed a picture of a luscious chocolate marshmallow refrigerator cake, remember? Well, the recipe for it was crowded out, by mistake, so we've been kept busy ever since mailing out copies to dozens of interested hostesses. If the dessert illustration intrigued you and you forgot to inquire, either by mail or telephone, about the makin's, this is just a reminder. We'll be delighted to send you the recipe for this simply elegant concoction if you'll send us your name and an addressed, stamped envelope.

And now for Saturday's questions.

"What information do you have on the drying of peas?"

"May a jam be made from fresh pears?"

"May I have some suggestions for summer tea menus?"

"Why do jellies made with commercial pectin require so much sugar?"

The first question, about the drying of peas, comes from Mrs. A. L. W. of La Grange. If the peas grow in her own garden we'd suggest letting them mature on the vines. Otherwise regular green peas may be shelled. The peas may be dried by natural heat and sunlight by spreading them on flat trays in the sun, stirring frequently to prevent molding, or by drying in the oven from 3 to 4 hours at 110 to 145 degrees F.

A word, too, about the storing of dried vegetables. They absorb water readily and will rapidly mold and lose flavor if the moisture content exceeds 20 per cent. For that reason they should be tightly wrapped in waxed paper or placed in tightly capped jars and stored in a cool, dry place.

From D. H. of Palisades Park, Mich., comes the query about the sugar content of jams made with added pectin substances. The reason is this: The texture of the jelly is improved by increasing the amount of sugar as the amount of pectin is increased. Within certain limits an increased amount of sugar increases the quantity and tenderness of the jelly. Yes, the amount could be decreased and jelly still could be made, but the quantity would be much smaller and the jelly inclined to be dark and rubbery.

PEAR JAM.

To 5 pounds of hard [slightly underripe] pears, peeled and cut in small pieces, add a like weight of sugar and let stand overnight. Then add one pound of seedless raisins, the finely sliced rind of 2 oranges, and the juice of 3 oranges and 2 lemons. Cook until the pears are soft, pour into hot sterile jars, and seal.

From Kankakee comes the query as to suitable summer tea menus, sent by Mrs. E. E. K. Here are several we think she may enjoy serving to her guests on a warm afternoon:

Lace Cookies Cucumber Sandwiches
Horseradish Butter Sandwiches
Iced Tea Lemon Salted Nuts

Small Cakes with Pastel Jelly Toppings
Salted Almonds Pastel Mints
Tea Lemon Ginger

Toasted Orange Marmalade Sandwiches
Watercress Sandwiches
Chocolate Macaroons
Iced Tea Lemon Ice Cubes

Sally's Guests to Be Listed in Sunday Paper

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Such a lot of slow pokes as we had this week! Yesterday morning I received all kinds of mail from boys and girls who wanted to come to our baseball party at Comiskey park. But letters were a day too late, and the winners had been chosen on Thursday.

I also had to throw out quite a number of letters from youngsters who forgot to include either their full names, addresses or ages. I guess you were a bit excited over the prospects of seeing the White Sox and the St. Louis Browns next Friday. There were, of course, plenty of boys and girls who made no mistakes and who'll be rewarded by finding their names listed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. They'll all receive personal invitations from me, and I'll see them at the baseball game on Aug. 2.

You youngsters who didn't win invitations will, I think, forget your disappointment when you see the good news I have for you, which you'll also find in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. I'm announcing our next party, and it's a humdinger! It's a very special kind of entertainment which just seems to have been invented for the very purpose of making boys and girls laugh and scream and have a good time generally.

A Sleeveless Compromise

WOMAN'S DRESS.

The dress pictured today is a particularly good choice for the larger figure. Its simplicity of line makes it smart and conservative for town or country wear. As you can imagine, the dress will be cool, sleeveless, without any suggestion of bareness. Shantung linen, dotted swiss, gingham, piqué, and mercerized cotton broadcloth—to say nothing of the lovely Chinese damask—will, any of them, make up beautifully in this design.

The pattern, No. 3155, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, and 54 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material.

with her family she will be making plans for a house warming in the new quarters of the Girl Scouts at 35 East Wacker drive.

Dividing their time between camping and moving this summer, the Scouts already have transported most of their furniture to the new quarters which provide additional private offices and a skyscraper view.

Mrs. Selz is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the house warming. She will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur Farwell, commissioner of Chicago's Girl Scouts; Mrs. Richard Bentley, first deputy commissioner, and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., who is the second deputy commissioner.

Mr. and Mrs. James Molloy, who are spending a quiet summer in Chicago, have exciting plans for the coming fall. They are hoping to go on a long cruise to the orient and spend four or five months on the other side of the world. If these plans materialize they will leave Chicago the latter part of September.

Miss Jeanette Genius is in Chicago for a few days en route from the east to Wyoming, where she will spend August. Miss Genius will be a guest on the H F Bar ranch, Buffalo, Wyo.

Mrs. John P. Wilson Guest at Fish Creek.

The visit to Fish Creek, Wis., of Mrs. John P. Wilson, whose summer home is at Charlevoix, Mich., is occasioning much entertaining in that simple but delightful summer resort. Mrs. Wilson is the guest of Mrs. Chalkley Jay Hambleton.

Luncheon and dinner parties have been the most popular mode of entertaining the visitor with bridge as the entertainment after luncheon and dinner in most cases. There is a large colony of St. Louisans at Fish Creek and they have been prominent in helping Mrs. Hambleton make her guest enjoy her stay at Fish Creek.

Miss Barbara Soper, who finished at the Ethel Walker school at Simsbury, Conn., in June, is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Soper, at their summer home at Lake Delavan, Wis., occasionally driving back to Lake Forest to spend several days at their home there. At last reports it still was undecided whether Miss Soper would make her debut next autumn or continue her education.

Alice Grant ROSMAN'S new love story
"The SLEEPING CHILD"

Books Easy for Him Stimulate Child to Read

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Reading seems to come almost as naturally to some children as breathing. At 5 they can read with ease, having had only the most casual sort of help from their family.

Others respond satisfactorily to the teaching process in school a couple of years later.

But there is a large group of children around 7 who find reading an almost insurmountable undertaking. This distresses them in school and distresses their parents. Efforts are made to teach them at home but often without result, because they are not ready for this particular mental activity.

If these children could be let alone and not made to read at this time, the skill would come with ease at a later time. But reading being required of them in the classroom, the waiting process isn't practicable, nor comfortable for them.

There is also another possible cause for a child's inability to learn to read, and that is lack of interest. The teacher, the teaching method, and the books in school may have been dull and lifeless, and so not stimulated your child to learn.

Since so many distressed mothers write me about this trouble, I want to make a suggestion for this summer which may bring results.

Go to the library or to a good children's book department. With the vocabulary of your child's school reader in mind, try to select a book which looks easier to read than that. This should not be of the school or textbook type, though occasionally a young reader is gotten up in charming form.

If your child knows how to read well but does not like reading, follow the same procedure. Choose several books that are attractive but easier to read than the books used in school and with an interesting content and pictures. In both cases the sense of ease makes the enjoyment of the story possible. And in both cases don't force the books—just leave them around where they may be picked up in an idle moment.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Stark Young Writes Stories of Rare Beauty

Zweig Tales Deal with Post-War Germany.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"Feliciana," by Stark Young. [Scribners.] Published yesterday.

"Playthings of Time," by Arnold Zweig. [Viking Press.] Published on July 12.

"The House of the Four Winds," by John Buchan. [Houghton-Mifflin.] Published Tuesday.

"The Endless Furrow," by A. G. Street. [Dutton.] Published Monday.

TWO books of short stories and two novels are on the list of books published this week. To the thousands of readers whose enjoyment of "So Red the Rose" kept it on the best seller counters everywhere in the country for months this new collection of tales by Stark Young will be a delight.

In its slender compass they will meet again some of the well loved figures of the novel. There is Cousin Micajah McGehee, whose adventures with the Frémont expedition to California furnish the incidents of the opening narrative. And there is Caroline McGehee's daughter, who married Charles Dandridge and lived at Parlange. Other figures of the deep south, not glimpsed before, are briefly sketched.

Several plotless stories with an Italian background and one with a western locale are also included, but Mr. Young is at his best when writing in the manner of "So Red the Rose." Here his imagery is so beautiful, his prose so simple and lucid that the pictures he evokes take on the rhythm and cadence of music. Some of his descriptions of gardens and river terraces are poignant with loveliness.

"Shadows on the Terrebonne" is one of the most artistic of the tales. "Jalous Business" is hardly more than an anecdote, but delightful in its humor, and "Promise Land" is a tender portrait of an old plantation Negress. Our only criticism of this book is that there are too few stories in the collection. One would like at least five or six more.

Zweig's Stories Tell of Post-War Germany.

The man who wrote "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," Arnold Zweig, penned the short tales in "Playthings of Time" in Germany between the years of 1915 and 1933. They are valuable in their depicting of the vast changes that have come across the lives of the people, like an enveloping black shadow, during that time. Dealing for the most part with folk who never make the headlines, with tramcar motormen, booksellers, florists, clerks, small business men and women struggling to earn a bare living, the narratives have a strong, fatalistic flavor.

Chance, mere trivialities that are blotted out in a moment, change a whole career, a man's life. These people have had no power in shaping the present economic and political régime in Germany; they are simply cogs in a wheel, but the wheel grinds them and they can only suffer and endure.

The best of the stories are those in which Zweig does not seize the bit of politics or anti-militarism in his teeth and dash off with the plot. Or in which he only subtly does so. Among these are "Otto Temke's Good Luck," "The Enemy," "A Bit of Blood," and "The Snake." Unforgetable is the touching figure of the old Jew, Herr Kräutel, a victim of inflation days, in "Old Man with a Stick."

John Buchan Creates His Own "Graustark."

What does a governor general do in his moments of relaxation? It's a pretty safe bet to say that at least one writes novels. John Buchan, when he takes his new office in Canada, will have a list of thirty-four books to his credit. His new one, published Tuesday, is just the sort of adventure story to read on your vacation. It is light, entertaining, amusing, and it has its exciting moments.

Remember the dear old days of "Graustark"? Mr. Buchan evokes them once more in his creation of Evallonia, a little kingdom in eastern Europe, where a revolution is about to pop. Seems the populace is discontented with the republic, but doesn't want Fascism, communism, or a return to the old monarchy. The youth of the country is banded together in a league known as Juventus, and as Juventus goes, so goes Evallonia.

Enter, some Britishers, keen on a little-to-do and excitement, and not adverse from putting their fingers in the political pie. Those Buchanites who read "Huntingtower" will recognize the little group of gay gallants who fought side by side in its skirmishes, for they are together again in this tale. There are, also, mysterious counts, countesses, princes, a beautiful English girl, an ancient castle in the mountains, and an elephant. Mr. Buchan must have had a very jolly time doing "The House of Four Winds."

Here's English Novel of Desire for Land.

The last book on the list today is also by an Englishman. It is called "The Endless Furrow" and is a simply told, straightforward novel about one man's great ambition—to own land. James Horton was the son of an innkeeper, but his grandmother had mighty hopes for him. She wanted him to rise out of his class, to become first a tradesman in order to accumulate money, and then to be a farmer.

She instilled in the child personal pride and a high spirit. "'Tis better to live in spite than pity," she told him. No one had ever pitied her, and no one was ever to feel sorry for her grandson. Better to be angry with him instead.

Mr. Street tells of James' schooling, of his apprenticeship to Nicholas Crawford, a grocer with a philosophy all his own, and, finally, of his first little business and its growing success. Always there is the desire for the land in his mind. Always he is working to realize his dream, and at last it comes true. The latter part of the book deals with his life at Underdown, his growing young family, the war years, and his old age.

"The Endless Furrow" is a quiet sort of book, sturdy, unpretentious, filled with the small incidents of the daily round of a rural Englishman's life in the latter years of the 19th century and the early ones of the 20th.

Strongly emphasized is class distinction, that ironbound caste system that made it extremely difficult for a boy to pull himself up by his own bootstraps. Strongly felt is a Briton's love of the land. "When a man owned a piece of England, he became a piece of England himself. He belonged. Nothing else could give a man such a feeling of complete satisfaction." At the end of his furrow, old, ill, bereft of his son, James still has his land, still has a purpose in life.

Short Stories Reviewed Today

ARNOLD ZWEIG.

[Ossip Garber Photo.]

Stark Young, whose beautiful story of the old south, "So Red the Rose," was read by thousands last year, is introducing some scenes in the same locale in his new collection of short stories, "Feliciana," which Scribners published yesterday. The fragrance of jasmine and the beauty of the oleanders are in its pages. Arnold Zweig, author of "Sergeant Grischa," also has a new book of short stories. It's called "Playthings of Time" and is about post-war Germany.

IMPORTANT BOOKS OUT THIS WEEK

Poet J. W. Turner Writes First Novel in Humorous Vein

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—I am told that W. J. Turner has written a novel. Now, Mr. Turner has long been known as a highly original poet and dramatist [his "Man Who Ate the Popomac" has been performed by many repertory companies throughout England]; and his musical criticism, although it has provoked Sir Thomas Beecham, the idol of English highbrows, to eloquent reprisals, has an independence as rare as it is refreshing.

But as far as I know he has never before attempted prose narrative. More than this, the book is said to be a humorous novel, a fantastically amusing work the idea for which came to him with irresistible force one happy day last winter. What the idea was, I do not know; all I know is that when the London publishing firm of Dent heard all about it a contract was instantly drawn up, signed, and delivered, and that the book is now complete, ready to burst upon the world in the early fall.

Mr. Turner is not an Englishman—he was born in Australia—but he has resided in England for many years. His passion is music, and his mind moves most freely in concert with the work of composers whose work is saturated with either humor or strangeness. Thus, Mozart is his favorite composer of opera; and his book on Berlioz was much noticed last year. Of modern composers his favorite is Prokofiev. I expect much of this fantastic humorous novel.

Old Customs of Dairymen Face Change

Parmelee Prentice Points to Costly Errors.

"Breeding Profitable Dairy Cattle," by E. Parmelee Prentice. [Houghton-Mifflin.]

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

OLD habits in the dairy world may be upset in the next few years by E. Parmelee Prentice's new book, "Breeding Profitable Dairy Cattle." For a long time to come this book likely will be talked about frequently in college classrooms, in convention halls, in cow barns, and right out in the middle of hundreds of America's green pastures.

On his Mount Hope farm at Williamstown, Mass., the author, with the aid of Dr. Herbert D. Goodale, geneticist, has searched for years to find "correct, accurate, scientific, and true breeding principles as they apply to the every day farm problems of live stock production." Live stock breeding literature, old and new, has been studied to get facts to guide them in their work. The results of this research is presented in Mr. Prentice's book. Some parts of the book are quite technical.

He says the purpose of "Breeding Profitable Dairy Cattle" is "to do for agriculture in the twentieth century by application of the new knowledge of inheritance as much as was done in the nineteenth century by the invention of agricultural machinery."

His farm, operated not for commercial profit, has become a world famous center for scientific cattle breeding. Out of his varied experiences comes information for the practical farmer and others interested in reducing the cost of producing milk and increasing the farmer's profits.

In proposing new things for dairy farmers Mr. Prentice knows he is setting his "face against custom." On this point he says, "Old habits are hard to change, and the habits of agricultural communities hardest of all."

Officials and members of dairy breed associations may be surprised and even shocked at some of the adverse criticism sprinkled in with praise of the work of their organizations. Mr. Prentice thinks the present system of registering dairy cattle is indefensible. "The simple truth is that American dairy breed associations register animals on pedigree alone," comments the author. ". . . Considerable changes are needed in our herd book practices if present breeds are even to maintain their present place."

Then he adds this: "So far as concerns native productive ability we are working with cattle not unlike those of mediæval times." He finds "no substantial difference in producing ability between the 'grades' and the so-called 'pure breds.'"

It is his opinion that "before many years pass registry certificates may lose most of their value."

Score cards used in judging dairy cattle come in for a round of criticism, too. This should interest thousands of agricultural students who have spent years in classrooms and judging arenas mastering the long list of points. Mr. Prentice says that it takes but little study of a score card to see that some of the points upon which breed associations insist have no relation whatever to productive value.

The Mount Hope farm index system used in determining the rating of a dairy bull is discussed.

By following some of the things learned at his farm, Mr. Prentice believes "it is easily possible to develop a race of cows whose average mature production will exceed 20,000 pounds of milk [a year] testing 4.25 or 4.5 per cent [butter fat]."

The author is convinced that there are men in America who will be glad to engage in the dairy cattle breeding enterprise described in "Breeding Profitable Dairy Cattle."

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

IN SUMMER TIME when we most need the simple distraction of a well planned murder, we have only the bungled affairs elaborately reported in the daily press. Authors of detective fiction hibernate seemingly and the good hard work they put in in the spring and summer comes to publication at the height of a busy winter. Publishers should do something about this.

So what we must report today are "thrillers," so-called or stories of adventure. One, "Scarred Jungle" [Harpers], is by Hulbert Footner and packs quite a wallop. It's all about a young New York policeman who goes wrong. He has expiated and repented when the story opens in darkest Brazil in those days when rubber sold for $3 a pound and bad men were at their worst. There are a lot of them in this tale and one beautiful girl about whom the plot centers. And a lively plot it is and very well handled.

Mr. Footner makes you uneasily at home in that sink of iniquity and discomfort Bom Sucesso, but when the hero and heroine move out you are glad to go with them. If you like to read about intrigue in its lowest forms and enjoy a lively red blooded fight, this is just the book for you.

Milder and less gory is "Wind in the Rigging" [Doubleday, Doran], by Howard Pease, whose sea stories have for some time been pleasing the young and adventurous. It's all about a plot to ship arms to wild African tribesmen and how that plot is broken up by a trusty sea captain and his young assistant. It has an authentic atmosphere, too, and I can see how it might please very much those who like a good straightforward story well and heartily told.

There is a French murder story to bridge the gap, "Death of the Deputy" [Lippincott], by Roger Francis Didelot. What it is that makes French detective stories different from those written in English is hard to define, but somehow they lack richness, are dry and less romantic than Anglo-Saxon literature of crime. This one has a good, if implausible, plot and arouses your curiosity. In its original tongue it is probably very good, since it comes so highly praised. But it must be much of the essence is lost in translation. Dorothy Abbott makes a better job of doing it into English than the usual anonymous hack.

REDS OF WORLD TO FIGHT HITLER IF HE MAKES WAR

Ready to Join Bourgeoisie, Repel German Attack.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, July 26.—The old slogan of world communism, "Turn imperialist war into civil war," which bound communists in capitalist countries to turn on their own governments in case of war, has been shelved by the communist Internationale, now holding its seventh congress here.

Because of what is regarded as the acute menace of Fascist Germany a new and radically different strategy has been adopted for use if Germany should make war.

This was disclosed today in editorials in the soviet press and in the publication of the keynote speech made at last night's secret session by Wilhelm Pieck, leader of the German communist party, in behalf of the executive committee of the communist Internationale.

Well United to Repel Attack.

The new strategy is in line with the change of policy toward a united front with more moderate elements in capitalist countries. It is briefly this:

If Fascist Germany attacks any small country—such as Lithuania, Latvia, Czechoslovakia or possibly Austria—the communists in the country attacked will join with the "bourgeoisie" in an effort to repel the German attack. War to prevent Fascist encroachment will be considered by communists as a "just war" even if it is waged by a "bourgeois" state.

How great an aboutface this constitutes in the policy of the world revolutionary party is shown by a reference to the declarations of the sixth communist congress in 1928 which obligated communists in capitalist countries to sabotage war efforts. Less than two years ago the executive committee of the Internationale ordered war communists to prepare "for the transformation of imperialist war into civil war."

Cheers for Stalin.

Pieck's address, which opened the congress after Dictator Stalin had been vociferously cheered, elaborated on the new united front policy.

"In those countries where remnants of parliamentary government and democratic freedom remain the proletariat still has a chance, though a pitifully trifling one, to organize and openly defend class interests despite the heavy oppression of the capitalist system," Pieck said.

To Defend Democracies.

"We are ready to defend the remnants of parliamentarianism and democracy together with the real adherents of bourgeois democracy against Fascism in order to fight for proletarian democracy.

"If German Fascism attacks the national independence and unity of small independent states in Europe, war waged by the national bourgeoisie of these states will be a just war which proletarians and communists cannot avoid."

RESERVE OFFICER INJURED IN FIGHT; CIVILIANS SEIZED

Lieut. Edward L. Dugan, 30 years old, a reserve officer of the army quartermaster corps, is in the Fort Sheridan hospital with a fractured skull incurred Wednesday night when he and two other lieutenants of the Reserve corps, H. W. Hicks and Raymond Jennings, fought in Highland Park with three civilians. Dugan's home is at La Crosse, Wis.

The civilians are Henry De Vroeg, 25 years old, 218 Llewellyn avenue, Highwood; Henry Metz, 30 years old, 743 County Line road, Highland Park; and Edward Lehmkuhl, 30 years old, 390 North avenue, Highland Park. All were arrested after the fight on charges of disorderly conduct and were assessed fines on Thursday. By order of Assistant State's Attorney John R. Bills of Lake county, they were again taken into custody yesterday and charged with assault. They will have a hearing before Justice of the Peace Charles Buell in Highland Park today.

De Vroeg, it was alleged, started the battle because Dugan, who is assigned to civilian conservation corps duty, paid attentions to a young woman who had previously been friendly with him.

UNION HEAD GETS 1 TO 14 YEARS FOR SLAYING IN HOME

Thomas Cronin, 27 years old, union labor official, was sentenced to one to fourteen years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge E. I. Frankhauser in the Criminal court for the slaying of William Bahnfieth, friend of Cronin's wife, Mae. Cronin was sentenced for manslaughter, the charge on which he was convicted by a jury that disregarded his unwritten law plea.

Judge Frankhauser pronounced the sentence after denying a plea for a new trial. In arguing against a new trial, Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers, who prosecuted the case, said the jury had shown Cronin consideration in returning a verdict of manslaughter instead of murder. A thirty day stay was granted Cronin in which to arrange his business affairs.

Cronin, who is president of the International Brotherhood of Coal Drivers, Helpers and Handlers, local 704, shot Bahnfieth on April 5 in Cronin's home at 4856 North Kenneth avenue. Bahnfieth had been more than friendly with his wife. Bahnfieth, 40 years old, an oil salesman, was separated from his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Bahnfieth, who lives at 1321 Carmen avenue.

Coast Guard Gets New High Speed Rescue Boat

Coast guardsmen at the old Chicago station at the mouth of the river will now be able to perform emergency rescue work in one-third the time previously required. A new 150 horse power speedboat, capable of a speed of forty miles an hour, was received by that station yesterday. Three similar craft, purchased by the government for the coast guard stations at R[illegible], Shebo[illegible]n, and Two Rivers, W[illegible]s., [illegible]ed and will be taken to their [illegible] quarters today.

FOUR ARE NAMED TO DIRECT ARTS RELIEF PROGRAM

"White Collar" People Will Be Aided.

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins sought to bring work relief jobs in the creative arts a step nearer today by appointing four technical assistants to direct the employment of painters, musicians, writers, and actors.

With 300 million dollars available for the estimated 750,000 white collar people on relief, scores of surveys, censuses, trafic studies, and similar projects have been provided for those with no particular skill.

Some scholars will get jobs from the $20,000,000 worth of white collar projects already approved for New York City, but other projects have awaited appointment of the four directors named today: Nikolai Sokoloff for music, Hallie Flanagan for the theater, Holger Cahill for painters and sculptors, and Henry G. Alseberg for writers.

More for California.

Other work relief developments today included allotment of $20,000,000 of work relief funds to the Central Valley, California, development, a part of the 100 million dollar reclamation program, and President Roosevelt's announcement that he would approve the remainder of the $61,900,000 slate recommended by the allotment committee.

Meanwhile, Hopkins reported there were 270,061 fewer families on general relief in June than in May, a decline of 6.6 per cent. He estimated expenditures had declined 9.8 per cent from $188,323,706 to $169,840,125. The report did not include transients and single persons, of whom there were 286,861 and 863,498, respectively, on relief in May.

Camps for Idle Women.

Hopkins also announced that camps for unemployed women, initiated last year, would be revived this summer, with a suggested term of from six weeks to two months. State relief administrators will be in charge. Educational programs will be offered, but all but three of the camp staf must come from relief rolls themselves.

Twenty-eight camps were established last year, attended by 1,800 unemployed and unattached women.

Miss Flanagan is professor of English and director of the experimental theater at Vassar college, and will carry out her summer course before she comes to Washington in September. Alsberg has been working for the relief administration compiling reports and is a former newspaper man.

FIRST 3% SALES TAX RETURNS GO FOR IERC COSTS

The first returns from the new 3 per cent sales tax which was passed by the Illinois legislature at the dictation of Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins last spring, will be used for August expenses of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. This was disclosed in a report to the commission at its meeting yesterday by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary. He estimated the tax collection on July sales, which will be available next month, at $1,500,000.

The commission ordered administrative expenses for August reduced $50,000 in keeping with a recent action to reduce the staf in Chicago and throughout the state by 10 per cent. This left administration of relief costs at $1,000,207 for next month.

Total August needs of the IERC were estimated at $10,821,695. With the sales tax revenue, funds on hand were estimated at $2,713,768. The commission adopted a resolution asking the federal government for the remainder, $8,107,927, of the funds needed for August.

Mr. Hopkins, who is also federal works progress administrator, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to Iowa City, Ia., where he is to make a speech. He said he had little doubt that large grants of federal public works funds would be made to Chicago for sewers and street resurfacing. A large sum of money, he added, will be taken from the work relief funds voted the President by congress to promote aviation in all the states.

SIX FROM N. U. MEDICAL SCHOOL SAIL FOR PARLEY

Dean Irving S. Cutter of the Northwestern university medical school announced yesterday that six members of the school's faculty had sailed to attend the 15th International Physiological congress which will be held at Moscow and Leningrad in Russia from Aug. 8 to 18.

Three of the six will read papers before the congress. They are Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Dr. Lathan A. Crandall Jr., and Dr. Bernard Mortimer. The others who will attend the congress are Dr. Arthur E. Abt, Dr. William Duryee, and Dr. George Halperin.

TROTZKY VISIONS NEW WORLD WAR AFTER CONFLICT IN AFRICA

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

OSLO, Norway, July 26.—Leon Trotzky broke his long silence today to predict another world war would follow hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia.

War in Africa, the old revolutionist said, would do just what the Balkan war of 1912 did—marshal the world's powers into opposing coalitions and prepare the ground for history to repeat itself.

"It is very difficult to prophesy," he told the Norwegian labor newspaper, Arbeider Bladet, "but I believe an eventual Italo-Ethiopian war is in the same relation to a new world war as the Balkan war of 1912 was to the world war of 1914. Before a new great war the powers would have to be classified and here an African war will point out the positions and mark the coalitions.

"It is impossible to say whether a world war will break out in three or five years, but we ought to focus rather on a short than a long time."

GOLD IN FLIGHT FROM HOLLAND IN CABINET CRISIS

Catholic Leader Tries to Form Ministry.

THE HAGUE, the Netherlands, July 26.—(AP)—Gold fled from the Netherlands to France and the United States today as Premier-Designate D. P. Aalberse, Catholic leader, withheld announcement of his financial policy.

Although informed quarters believed Aalberse and the government he was trying to form would continue efforts of his predecessor, Hendryk Colijn, to save the guilder from devaluation, the franc and the dollar still were moving above the gold export point.

Queen Favors Gold Basis.

Queen Wilhelmina, who called Aalberse after Colijn resigned in the face of parliamentary opposition to his retrenchment program, was believed strongly convinced the gold standard should be maintained. The cabinet resigned after the Bank of the Netherlands raised its discount rate from 5 to 6 per cent to keep the guilder on the gold standard.

Aalberse was given the premiership on that understanding, it was reported, even though most of the Catholic members in the chamber—who caused Colijn's downfall—favored devaluation.

Act to Defend Guilder.

Pending information of Aalberse's ministry, Colijn and the retiring cabinet received authorization from the queen to take necessary steps for defense of the guilder.

The outgoing group also was asked to deal with any other passing matters and submit essential legislative matters to parliament.

Today's gold withdrawals from the Bank of the Netherlands were valued at about $15,000,000.

TAVERN KEEPER KILLED TRYING TO BALK HOLDUP

Constantine Pentaris, part owner of a restaurant and tavern at 744 South Halsted street, was shot and killed yesterday by one of two robbers whom he resisted in the place. Pentaris and his brother and partner, Achilles, had about $200 on hand to cash checks when the gunmen entered.

Genevieve Emanuel, 218 North Francisco avenue, a waitress, and Alex Pappas, 545 South Halsted street, the cook, were the only others in the restaurant at the time. They told police that one of the robbers was masked. When the gunmen announced their purpose, Constantine reached for a pistol hidden beneath the counter.

One of the bandits jumped over and hit him on the head with a revolver and then the other one shot him. The bullet went through his right arm and lodged under his heart. The robbers escaped with the money from the cash register.

Sergt. James Sullivan of the Maxwell street police said he believed the masked bandit was known in the neighborhood and he had hopes of learning his identity.

Reginald Denny Must Pay $29,763 to Former Wife

Los Angeles, Cal., July 26.—[Special.]—Irene Haisman, stage actress, today emerged winner in a court hearing on her plea that Reginald Denny, movie actor and writer, be compelled to pay her $29,763 balance due on a property settlement arranged at time of their divorce seven years ago. When the Dennys were divorced, Mrs. Denny was allotted $40,000 as her share of community property, it was brought out today. She showed in court that only $13,050 had been paid.

ARM BROKEN BY LIGHTNING.

Rochester, Ind., July 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Stella Erickson was tying her shepherd dog in its kennel today when a storm came up. A bolt of lightning struck the steel chain, killing the dog. Mrs. Erickson's arm was broken.

SENTENCE THREE PALS OF SUICIDE POLICE SLAYER

199 Years, Life, and 14 Years Given.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Thomas Cronin, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge E. I. Frankhauser.

Edward Darlack, murder, sentenced to 199 years in the penitentiary; Jerry Reporto, murder, sentenced to life imprisonment; Thomas Arelano, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort.

A few hours after Frank Banks, confessed slayer of Policeman Thomas Kelma in a holdup, committed suicide by hanging himself in his county jail cell yesterday morning, three of his companions during the fatal shooting were sentenced to prison by Judge Rudolph Desort of the Criminal court.

Edward Darlack, 27 years old, 1417 West 15th street, received the most severe sentence. After denying a motion of Darlack's attorney to permit him to withdraw his plea of guilty, Judge Desort sentenced him to 199 years in prison.

Jerry Reporto, 24 years old, 737 South Paulina street, was sentenced to life, and Thomas Arelano, 21 years old, 1612 Taylor street, to 14 years. Arelano received a shorter term on the recommendation of the state's attorney's office, which said he had aided authorities in the case.

Found Hanged and Stabbed.

Banks was to have been sentenced with his confederates but when Martin Milek, jail guard, entered the killer's cell yesterday morning he found Banks' body hanging from a cross bar. The prisoner had twisted a bed sheet to make a noose and, according to Milek, had stabbed himself several times.

Banks left two notes, one a prayer, and the other addressed to Miss Margaret Carr, who formerly lived at 908 Wilson avenue. Miss Carr, according to Assistant State's Attorney Frank Donaghue, who prosecuted the case, attended every court session.

Policeman Slain Off Duty.

Policeman Kelma, who was 38 years old and lived at 1946 South Racine avenue, was fatally wounded May 31 in a gun battle with the four young men during a holdup of a tavern at 2023 South Ashland avenue.

He was off duty and playing cards when the robbers entered. During the fight Banks lost his hat and it was through this clew that the gang was rounded up.

BAN SWIMMING AT 2 PRESERVE DAMS; WATER UNCLEAN

Clayton F. Smith, president of the forest preserve board, announced yesterday that swimming at dams Nos. 1 and 2 in the Des Plaines river has been banned because of the dangerous condition of the water as revealed in a report just received from the state department of health. The health department's report was based on analyses of the water.

"The Des Plaines river is polluted by sewage from the villages of Libertyville and Wheeling and by private institutions," Mr. Smith said when he announced that signs warning bathers had been erected and the life guards removed. "Danger of contracting dysentery and typhoid by swimming in the river is imminent."

Swimming in the Des Plaines river was discontinued last year during the drouth, but the beaches were reopened rains would make the river safe for this year in the belief that the heavy the sport, Mr. Smith said.

20 YEARS' PRISON FOR 'CHISELER' IN KIDNAPING CASES

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—Alfred Otto Wagner, 38, "misery chiseler" accused of trying to extort money from the relatives of persons whom others had kidnaped, interrupted his trial in federal court in Brooklyn this afternoon by pleading guilty as charged.

Judge Clarence G. Galston at once sentenced him to serve twenty years in a federal cell.

He pleaded guilty to the third count, which charged that he mailed such a letter to Alfred E. Distelhurst of Nashville, Tenn., on Sept. 26 last, following the kidnaping of Distelhurst's daughter, Dorothy Ann, on Sept. 19 last. The body of the Distelhurst girl was found in November, 1934.

Jarecki to Sign Order for Tax Cut Extension Monday

County Judge Jarecki announced yesterday that on Monday he will sign the order giving some 200,000 small home and flat owners the benefit of the 15 per cent reduction on 1931 real estate taxes. The order will extend the reduction to those taxpayers who paid their bills in full before the original cut was made by Judge Jarecki last year.

Gov. Laffoon of Kentucky Undergoes an Operation

Lexington, Ky., July 26.—(AP)—An operation on Gov. Ruby Laffoon for appendicitis was made tonight. Hospital attendants said "the governor did fine. He's in excellent shape." The 66 year old governor was brought here early today. The governor's condition brought five struggling candidates in the Democratic primary, a week away, to tense attention.

$60,000 RAISED TO FORESTALL SALE OF CHURCH

The Rev. Alvin A. Smith, pastor of the Rogers Park Presbyterian church, Greenleaf and Greenview avenues, announced yesterday that $60,000 had been raised to redeem from escrow the deed to the church property.

The deed was placed in keeping of the Chicago Title and Trust company two months ago as demanded by the Mercantile Title and Trust company of St. Louis, holder of the church's $80,000 mortgage, against which $16,000 defaulted interest had accumulated. The St. Louis institution agreed to release the deed to the church for $60,000 if that sum were raised before noon today, Dr. Smith said. The property has an appraised valuation of $250,000 and it had been reported that the St. Louis company would sell it to the Mormon church if the Presbyterian congregation failed to redeem the deed. Dr. Smith said that fifteen Presbyterian churches cooperated financially with the Rogers Park church in raising the $60,000.

CUBS GAIN ON GIANTS WITH 5 TO 1 VICTORY

BIERMAN TAKES LEAD IN ALL-STAR COACH POLL

FRANK THOMAS HOLDS 2D PLACE; FIRST 15 CLOSE

622,000 Ballots Are Counted.

BY ARCH WARD.

Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, whose 1934 football team swept through the Big Ten conference undefeated to share national championship honors with Alabama, has taken the lead in the coast-to-coast poll being conducted by newspapers in all parts of the country to pick a coaching staf for the team of College All-Americans who meet the Bears at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 29.

Bierman, like Frank Thomas of Alabama, No. 2 man in the poll, is running well everywhere. His real support, of course, is coming from the Twin Cities and from New Orleans, where he coached at Tulane before moving to Minnesota. He is leading the returns in Huntington, W. Va., and is picking up hundreds of first place votes and thousands of seconds and thirds in Western conference centers.

First 15 Closely Grouped.

The first 15 in today's standings are so closely grouped that any one of them can take the lead with a single day's returns. More than 622,000 ballots already have been counted and perhaps another 100,000 have been cast which have not yet been accounted for. The contest department of THE TRIBUNE, which handles the votes, is 24 hours behind in its tabulations and a similar situation no doubt exists with many of the 105 newspapers which are coöperating in the poll.

The coach who wins will be able to attribute his success to national popularity. It is apparent that community enthusiasm will not be adequate to boost a man into first place and keep him there. The field is too huge. The leader must have national appeal.

Heavy Vote for Madigan.

Slip Madigan of St. Mary's college, California, is polling a heavy vote in Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, and his home town of Ottawa, Ill. He is running 2 to 1 ahead of Tiny Thornhill of Stanford in the San Francisco bay district. Braven Dyer of the Los Angeles Times reports that Madigan is the favorite in southern California, although Thomas will be backed stoutly because of his team's decisive victory over Stanford in the Rose bowl last New Year's day.

The contest will end at midnight Aug. 4. Choose three coaches in the order of your preference. First place counts three points; second, two, and third place, one. The coach receiving the greatest number of points will win the poll. Send your selections to the All-Star Game Editor, Chicago Tribune.

YOU PLAN—
to attend the All-American football game Aug. 29.

YOU WAIT—until tomorrow to get your tickets.

YOU SWEAR—
because the delay deprived you of a chance to see the greatest players in college last year meet the Bears, professional football's most powerful team, in the game's outstanding contest and spectacle.

All seats are reserved. There are only 80,000. Don't hesitate. Mail a check or money order to the Football Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, today. All checks must be made payable to the Chicago Tribune.

Prices are $1.10, $1.65, and $2.20, including tax.

BUDDY BAER WINS QUICK KNOCKOUT —IT'S TOO QUICK

Long Branch, N. J., July 26.—(AP)—Buddy Baer scored a two punch victory tonight, but the referee spoiled the fun by calling it "no contest" and the state boxing commission impounded Baer's purse.

The 237 pound brother of former heavyweight champion Max Baer dropped Artie Suss, 205, of New York, with a left to the jaw at the start of their scheduled 10 round bout. Suss wabbled to his feet and went down for good under the second blow.

Referee Jimmy Manley halted the fight less than 10 seconds after it began and declared it no contest on the ground that Suss, a former wrestler, was not a fit opponent for Baer. State Boxing Commissioner George Keenen, who saw the bout ordered the purses of both men sent to the boxing commission's office at Trenton until an investigation can be made. Baer's share of the purse was $748.

Toronto Defeats Braves in Charity Game, 4 to 1

Auburn, N. Y., July 26.—(AP)—Behind the five hit pitching of Frank Nekola, former Holy Cross star, Toronto defeated the Boston Braves, 4 to 1, in an exhibition charity game here today before 4,500. The Braves scored their run in the eighth when Nekola walked in a man. Handley's triple drove in two of the Leaf's runs off Bobby Brown.

DISCOVERY SEEKS SIXTH IN ROW AT ARLINGTON TODAY

BY FRENCH LANE.

It isn't often done—that job of carrying 135 pounds to victory in a race at a mile and a quarter in America—yet the thousands who will see Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery try to do it in the $10,000 Arlington handicap today have made him the 1 to 2 favorite.

Eight, most of them with little more than a feather on their backs, were named in the overnight field to oppose the great Vanderbilt champion which is in quest of his sixth straight handicap victory in as many weeks. There was some support for the Canadian champion, Stand Pat, and a slight amount of backing for Riskulus from California, which won the same race last year. If you wanted to back the others to beat Discovery you could just about write your own ticket.

Few Get Away with It.

The number of times the weight crusher of 135 pounds has been carried to victory in important American stakes at a mile and a quarter or more can just about be enumerated on the fingers of one hand.

It was done once before in the Arlington handicap, even though this race is but seven years old. The mighty Equipoise won it in 1933, beating Watch Him, which opposes Discovery this afternoon.

Only on two occasions has this sort of a weight package been carried victoriously to the winning post in such a famous old fixture as the Suburban handicap in New York. Whisk Broom II. won the Suburban in 1913 with 139 pounds on his back. Grey Lag won it in 1923 carrying 135 pounds. Back in 1921 in the Autumn handicap at Woodbine in Canada, Exterminator carried 137 pounds to victory. Those are the most notable weight carrying feats in races at a mile and a quarter in America during the last 30 years.

Better Than Equipoise?

Yankees Lose to Senators, 9-3; Tigers Take First Place

New York, July 26.—(AP)—The Washington Senators, whose series here was considered a possible means of getting the Yankees back on the hitting and winning track, stepped out of character today long enough to whip New York 9 to 3 and deprive the home club of the American league lead, which it had held since May 30.

The senators won despite the fact that Ed Linke, the starting pitcher, was hit on the side of the head by Jesse Hill's liner in the third inning and was carried from the field in a semi-conscious state.

Execute Freak Double Play.

Although the only visible sign of danger to Linke was a lump on his head, he was taken to a hospital for X-Ray examination. He was believed to be suffering from a severe concussion. The injury led to one of the oddest plays of the season. The ball, striking the left side of Linke's head, bounded high in the air and Catcher Jack Redmond dashed down the third base line, caught the ball before it touched the ground and made a quick throw to Red Kress at second to double Ben Chapman off the base and end the inning.

Leading 2 to 0 at that point, the Senators went on to win mainly because of two home runs by Heinie Manush. He hit the first in the fourth inning to start a two run rally and the second with the bases loaded in the seventh to wind up a five run rally that drove Johnny Broaca to cover.

Tigers Lead by 1½ Games.

The Yankee defeat, coupled with Detroit's victory over Cleveland, cleared up an odd situation in the standings which had seen the Yankees holding the lead in the percentages by the margin of .6071 to .6067 for Detroit, although the count of games won and lost showed the Tigers a half game ahead. Today's results gave Detroit a clear 1½ game margin. Score:

TIGERS, 8; INDIANS, 2

Cleveland, O., July 26.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers cleared any doubts about their status in the American league pennant race which had been left after their series with the Yankees by trouncing the Indians, 8 to 2, today and taking a clear hold on first place.

The victory and the Yanks' defeat by Washington put Detroit 1½ games ahead and provided a triumphant climax for their climb in the standings. On May 30 when the Yanks assumed the lead, the Tigers had just left sixth place and were tied with Boston for fourth. The move into first place today came a week ahead of last season's advance, when the Tigers took the lead Aug. 2 and never were headed.

Two rousing attacks on Thornton Lee in the sixth and seventh innings clinched the game for Mickey Cochrane's team, bringing in five runs to break up a tight pitching duel between Lee and Elden Auker. Hank Greenberg led the attack, making a single and two doubles and driving in three runs. Auker was touched for ten hits but yielded only one unearned run up to the ninth, when Ralph Winegarner's pinch double brought in the second.

U. S. OPENS FINAL CUP SERIES WITH ENGLAND TODAY

WIMBLEDON, England, July 26.—(AP)—A final spirited practice session today put America's Davis cup warriors in trim for tomorrow's big push when they encounter England's two stars, Fred Perry and Bunny Austin, in the opening singles matches of the challenge round.

Scoffing at information that one of London's biggest commission houses was offering 7 to 4 against their chances, the veteran Wilmer Allison and his California teammate, Donald Budge, radiated confidence after each had played a pair of sparkling sets against John Van Ryn.

Allison Plays Austin.

Allison, the 31 year old Texan who who will start the ball rolling against Austin tomorrow in what may be the key match of the series, refused to get agitated over the betting odds.

"If I play like I played against Von Cramm in the interzone finals, I'll not worry," Allison declared. "Austin beat me two years ago in the interzones at Paris, but that was on a hard court. We're playing on turf this time."

The sensational Budge, who celebrated his 20th birthday only a few days ago, was equally impervious to the electrified atmosphere although he will be playing in a challenge round for the first time.

Doubles on Monday.

After tomorrow's singles matches, Allison and Van Ryn will meet the British pair of George Hughes and Charles Tuckey in the doubles Monday. On Tuesday Allison plays Perry and Budge meets Allison.

It was the consensus of experts who watched the final practice sessions of both teams that the final decision would hinge on the outcome of Allison's match with Austin. The draw today, giving Allison his chance at England's second-string player while still fresh, was regarded as a big break for America. If Allison can win there seems to be a good chance of the cup's returning to the United States for the first time since France carried it away in 1927.

Jocky Injured in Spill Sues Turfman for $50,500

Covington, Ky., July 26.—(AP)—Charging that his ability to become a jocky had been destroyed, and his power to earn money impaired, Charles Bell Jr., 18, through his father filed suit today against J. B. Respess, turfman, for $50,500. He alleged that on June 27, 1934 he was directed against his wishes to ride a yearling; that the horse was fractious, and threw him, breaking one leg. The leg, fractured at the hip, became shortened by three inches, the petition sets fourth.

FRENCH STOPS REDS TO MAKE IT 19 OUT OF 22

Two Errors Upset Derringer.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Larry French and the relentless Cubs yesterday beat the Cincinnati Reds, and their most persistent enemy, Paul Derringer, 5 to 1, to move a half game closer to the league leading Giants, whom they now trail by 2½ games.

Derringer presided at three of the four lickings the Reds accorded the Cubs this season before they became pennant conscious. He started out in great form yesterday. Successive errors by Kiki Cuyler and Lew Riggs in the fourth upset Big Paul's nefarious plans, however, and thereafter the outcome never was in doubt, seeing as French was working with great verve in quest of his ninth victory.

You'd Never Believe It!

The Reds had scored their run in the first of the fourth and it seemed a big run until Cuyler and Riggs fell down. Ki's error consisted of dropping an easy fly—you probably never saw the veteran make such a surprising misplay. Riggs' was a bad throw, much more excusable than Cuyler's nervous fumble. Hartnett and Demaree, beneficiaries in the two misplays, scored when Stan Hack singled with two out.

The superfluous runs were scored on Augie Galan's single and Phil Cavarretta's double off Derringer in the fifth on Hack's double and Bill Jurges' single off Derringer after two were out in the sixth; and on singles by Galan and Gabby Hartnett off Don Brennan in the seventh.

19 Out of 22!

The victory was the Cubs' 19th in their last 22 games and their eighth in a dozen starts against the Reds. It was their sixth straight since they dropped a 14 to 13 decision to the Dodgers last Monday.

The contest was the most rapid the lads have played at Wrigley field in many a day. It took only 1 hour and 28 minutes to polish off the spirited but inadequate visitors.

The Cubs' hitting in the first three innings was confined to a single by Cavarretta with two out in the opening inning. The Reds' hitting in the same period consisted of harmless singles by Goodman, with one out in the second, and Derringer with one out in the third.

Both Teams Score in Fourth.

The Reds got around to scoring after two infield outs in the fourth. Herman threw out Riggs and Hack threw out Cuyler, after which Bottomley started things with a single to right and went to third on Goodman's second single. Lombardi singled to right, scoring Bottomley and putting Goodman on third. Kampouris forced Lombardi to end the distress.

Here's the way the Cubs grabbed unearned but mighty welcome runs in the home fourth. With one down Cuyler dropped Hartnett's easy fly. Demaree bounced to Riggs, who made a wide throw to first, Hartnett pulling up at second and Demaree landing on first. The runners advanced while Kampouris was throwing out Klein the second of four straight times. Hack singled to left, scoring Hartnett and Demaree.

MISS WILLIAMS AND MRS. ATWOOD IN FINAL TODAY

Meet at Oak Park for District Title.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Ellamae Williams, the talented River Forest girl who has been making her golf shots heard throughout these parts for the last two years, made them more than audible yesterday in the semi-final round of the Chicago Women's District Golf association tournament at the Oak Park Country club by eliminating the defending champion, Rena Nelson of Exmoor, 3 and 2. Sounding just as clearly were the shots hit by Mrs. Philip T. Atwood of Olympia Fields, who reached the final by defeating Shirley Ann Johnson of Sunset Ridge, 1934 Western Junior title holder, 6 and 5.

This is the same Mrs. Atwood, who, as June Beebe in 1933 ran off with the C. W. D. G. A. title, not to mention the western open and the western Derby; the same Mrs. Atwood, who on Wednesday came within a stroke of tying Virginia Van Wie's course record of 76.

Ellamae Marches On.

And the Ellamae Williams, whom she will meet in this morning's 18 hole final, is, aside from being the daughter of Eddie Williams, River Forest professional, the same miss who not only was runner-up in both the state and western junior this year but also won the qualifying medal in this event on Monday.

Mrs. Atwood	564	5
Miss Johnson	444	6

Mrs. Atwood wins, 6 and 5.

Miss Williams tossed in four birdies on her card, reaching the turn two up on her opponent with a medal card of 42, two over par for the front nine. Mrs. Atwood bettered that in her match with Miss Johnson, rounding the ninth in 39, a stroke under par, and going to the tenth tee with a 7 up advantage.

Miss Nelson Makes Mistake.

Miss Williams took the first hole with a par five, when Miss Nelson three putted, but the champion squared the match on the next green by putting her tee shot 4 feet from the pin for a deuce. Rena went one up at the third, when Miss Williams encountered a trap, but it was even again after the fifth where the champion inadvertently soled her club in a water hazard, and Ellamae claimed the hole.

Miss Williams went one up by driving within 2 feet of the sixth pin for a deuce, but on the next hole her second shot hit a tree and bounded into a trap, costing her a seven. She redeemed this by dropping an eight footer for another bird at the eighth and took the ninth with a par after Rena had hit a poor drive.

Ellamae opened the home trip with a 4 foot putt for a third birdie at the tenth and went four up at the 12th with a six footer. She was trapped at the 13th, and Miss Nelson took the hole by chipping up to 2 feet after being short. Ellamae had her share of troubles on the 14th and 15th, but Rena could take no more advantage of them than to gain halves, Ellamae earned one of these herself by holing a five footer around a partial stymie on the 15th, and the match ended when both took par 6's on the 580 yard 16th.

Easy for June.

Mrs. Atwood won seven of the first nine holes of her match with Miss Johnson, halving the fourth and the eighth. Shirley Ann lost the first when her third shot found the creek, she was trapped at the second, in the rough at the third, in the water at the fifth, and trapped again at the ninth. Along with these, Mrs. Atwood won two holes with birdies, the sixth by holing a 30 foot chip shot and the seventh with a 10 foot putt.

Shirley Ann then prolonged the match with a rally which netted two holes, the tenth with an eight footer for a birdie, and the 11th with a par four, after Mrs. Atwood had put her third in the rough. Both were trapped at the 145 yard 13th, but Mrs. Atwood took it and the match with a five after Shirley Ann had had difficulty in escaping a trapped second.

Time, :23 2-5, :47 3-5, 1:13 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Sister Vinie, $10.40 straight, $4.80 place, $4.00 show; Supremart, $38.40 place, $19.80 show; Wendover, $38.60 show. Winner trained by J. W. Johnston. Went to post at 2:17.

SISTER VINIE, under occasional light pressure the first three-eighths, appeared to impede OUR PRINCE when working her way to front under vigorous riding, and, holding on well, just lasted. SUPREMART, a strong factor from the start and on inside early, came out entering stretch, and closing under good handling, was wearing down the winner. WENDOVER improved his position gradually and finished fastest of all.

SECOND RACE—Five and a half furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23 1-5, :46 4-5, :59 4-5, 1:06 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Emer J., $18.40 straight, $5.00 place, $3.60 show; Highland Lane, $4.00 place, $3.40 show; Cardarrone, $4.00 show. Winner trained by C. H. Smith. Went to post at 2:48.

EMER J. followed ECCENTRICS pace under strong restraint, took a short lead under light pressure soon after reaching stretch, and came away as HIGHLAND LANE bore over in final eighth to win handily. HIGHLAND LANE, forced very wide on the turn, was moving up stoutly when Robertson had to ease him so as not to interfere with winner in final eighth, and continued to bear over after winner had drawn clear. CARDARRONE failed to keep up on the turn, but closed with good speed.

Time, :23 3-5, :48 2-5, 1:00 3-5, 1:07 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Lady Confucius, $5.20 straight, $3.40 place, $3.00 show; Bistourian, $43.40 place, $11.00 show; Peloria, $6.40 show. Winner trained by E. H. Battie. Went to post at 3:19½.

LADY CONFUCIUS had good speed from the start, was under pressure after reaching last three-eighths, slightly impeded PELORIA as she swerved when making an attempt to savage PELORIA in stretch, and, holding on well, outstayed BISTOURIAN. Latter raced wide early, went to inside in stretch and closed fast. PELORIA, in hand for three-eighths, was moving up slowly when winner impeded him in stretch, and held on well when clear.

FOURTH RACE—Three-quarters of a mile. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23, :46 1-5, 1:12 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Dancing Spirit, $20.00 straight, $7.60 place, $4.60 show; Epernay, $3.60 place, $3.00 show; Imperial Betsy, $8.60 show. Winner trained by C. W. Damon. Went to post at 3:46½.

DANCING SPIRIT, after displaying ability to keep up after beginning well, lost much ground on the turn, but came with a rush when straight in stretch, and overtook EPERNAY in closing strides. Latter, poorly rated, was rushed into a long lead and tired badly from the effort after five-eighths. IMPERIAL BETSY lost ground and finished well in a good performance.

FIFTH RACE—Hertz course. One mile out of chute. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23 2-5, :47 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:38. Two dollar mutuels paid: Synod, $15.20 straight, $6.40 place, $5.80 show; Hope Eternal, $5.80 place, $4.20 show; Foggy Night, $10.00 show. Winner trained by J. A. Healey. Went to post at 4:16½. At post ½ minute. Start good from permanent stalls. Won driving, place same.

SYNOD began to improve his position when racing on outside after reaching the turn; took a good lead with a rush in stretch, then weakened and barely lasted. HOPE ETERNAL, raced wide throughout and under steady restraint for five-eighths, gained steadily thereafter and just missed getting up. FOGGY NIGHT, a factor from the start, held on courageously.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :24 1-5, :48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:38 2-5, 1:52 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Legal Gamble, $5.00 straight, $3.40 place, $2.80 show; Cherokee Sal, $13.20 place, $6.60 show; Uluniu, $4.40 show. Winner trained by W. Burbach. Went to post at 4:44. At post ½ minute. Start good. Won handily, place driving.

LEGAL GAMBLE, much the best and on inside throughout, had to be eased as KING PIN, fastest when racing directly before him, swung back stretch, but recovered fast, and after being rushed for front held CHEROKEE SAL safe to win handily. Latter, a factor from the start, failed to withstand winner's rush when racing wide on stretch turn, but held on well. ULUNIU lost ground throughout and stood a drive gamely.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :25, :49 1-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:52 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Sultry, $97.20 straight, $33.80 place, $12.20 show; Battalle, $4.00 place, $2.80 show; Trek, $4.80 show. Winner trained by R. Bendow. Went to post at 5:12½. At post ½ minute. Start good. Won handily, place driving.

SULTRY, going in his best form and rushed into command after five-eighths, tired badly after a mile, but won without need of strong pressure. BATALLE, restrained for seven-eighths, closed badly, and under a better judged ride might have been a strong factor. TREK came through on inside when making up ground in stretch.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23 4-5, :48, 1:13 3-5, 1:40, 1:54. Two dollar mutuels paid: Orinoco, $9.80 win, $6.60 place, $7.20 show; Barcardi Sweep, $27.20 place, $13.00 show; Busy Storm, $10.80 show. Winner trained by F. Chiavetta. Went to post at 5:41. At post ½ minute. Start good. Won ridden out, place driving.

ORINOCO began to move up after half a mile, was rushed into a long lead after reaching final quarter, and tiring badly after a mile, was under pressure the final eighth. BARCARDI SWEEP, far out of it early, saved some ground on lower turn, where he began to better his position and held on well under strong pressure the final quarter. BUSY STORM, far out of it for seven-eighths, closed strongest of all.

It was a mile and three-sixteenths Grey Lag carried 135 pounds to a triumph in the Knickerbocker handicap at Empire in 1921, but this race was at only a mile and a sixteenth. Exterminator won the Pimlico spring handicap under 133 pounds in 1922. It was over the mile and a sixteenth route.

These records give some idea of the big job confronting Discovery this afternoon and if he comes bounding home in front as the wagering indicates he will, there can be no denying him a place among the great horses of all time. He is better perhaps than such a star as Equipoise, because Discovery is as sound as steel and thrives on hard work. Equipoise suffered from one infirmity or another almost from the time his racing career began.

Riskulus One to Beat.

Riskulus, with a 19 pound pull in the weights, appears to be the one horse that is capable of stopping the furious rush of Discovery toward new money winning records. The California 4 year old is in better shape for today's race than he has been at any time this year. He won the Arlington handicap in the fast time of 2:02 2-5 last year under 108 pounds. He was a 3 year old at the time, which made possible his light impost.

The 3 year olds in today's renewal of the Arlington are much better fixed as far as weight is concerned than Riskulus was a year ago. Discovery will attempt to give Count Arthur 32 pounds, Calumet Dick 33 pounds, Skip It, which ran a smashing race in the Classic stakes a week ago to be fifth, gets a 39 pound pull in the weights from Discovery.

What's Five Pounds?

Yet 131 pounds did not stop Discovery from making a run away of the Bunker Hill handicap in Boston a week ago. The five pounds additional he picks up today are not likely to change his speed entirely from that of an express train to the clip of local combination freight No. 19.

Discovery's presence in the handicap field today again promises to pack Arlington Park with customers. Only during the last six weeks have racegoers come to realize that the son of Display has developed into one of the great horses of the age.

After today's race Discovery moves to Saratoga to be freshened up before he makes his next start in the $50,000 Narragansett special to be run four weeks from today.

CROAKS EVENT, HULLABALOO TO BE HELD TODAY

Heading the Chicago district golf program for today will be two invitational tournaments—the Rolling Green Croaks day and the Nordic Hullabaloo. Both are expected to draw large fields because on the Saturday date, and each offers a fulsome prize list.

Opening next week's schedule will be one of the most unique events the district ever has seen—the first annual pro-girls' event sponsored by the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association, the first time that professional stars have played in a mixed foursome event with girls as playing partners.

Among the pros who will appear for the event, which will begin at 1 p. m. Monday at the Waveland avenue course of the Lincoln Park Golf club will be Tommy Armour of Medinah, Eddie Williams of River Forest, Horton Smith of Oak Park, Denny Shute of Westward-Ho, Bob McDonald of McDonald's driving range, Don Gardner of Flossmoor, Matt Matteson of Ridge, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Ky Laffoon of Northmoor, and Jock Hutchison of Glen View. The girl stars expected in the field are Ellamae Williams of River Forest, Eleanor Dudley of Ridge, Hilda Livengood of Flossmoor, Shirley Ann Johnson of Sunset Ridge, and Miss Shane of Bryn Mawr. The Chicago park district will award prizes.

An exhibition match for members and their guests will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Skokie Country club, when Bob Stupple of the home club and Horton Smith of Oak Park meet Harry Cooper of Glen Oak and Ky Laffoon of Northmoor.

233 TO COMPETE IN TRIBUNE SWIM MEET TOMORROW

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Two hundred and thirty boys and girls are eligible for THE TRIBUNE'S 100 yard swimming championships which will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Lincoln park lagoon. This field consists of 155 qualifiers from the four preliminary sectionals and the winners in events held by the life guard captains of the Chicago park district beaches.

Larger groups have competed in the Lincoln park lagoon when the races were held without benefit of preliminaries, but no better list of swimmers has been brought together in one pool. In five age classes, from the 11 and 12 year olds to the senior class for those 19 years of age and over, the lists bristle with names of former champions, A. A. U. winners, high school stars, and those who already have proved their ability in the 1935 trials.

Compete in Ten Classes.

Competition will be keen in each of the ten classes. Following is the numerical table of contestants:

BOYS.	GIRLS.
Class A—25	Class A—18
Class B—29	Class B—22
Class C—30	Class C—21
Class D—23	Class D—21
Class E—28	Class E—15

If all contestants report it is probable that three preliminary races will be held in each class with the possible exception of Classes A and E for girls. However, as many as possible will be qualified for the finals, so that at least three swimmers in each of the preliminary heats [where three heats are necessary] will qualify while in the preliminaries where two heats are held up at least four will qualify for the championship.

Medals for Winners.

The winners tomorrow will receive gold medals. Second place in the championships will be rewarded with silver medals, while bronze medals are the awards for third place. Two team trophies will be presented, one for the organization of boys scoring the most points, the other for the girls' teams.

All contestants must report to the clerks at the Lincoln Park Boat club between 1 p. m. and 1:45 p. m. to be assigned to preliminary heats. The first race will start at 2 o'clock and approximately an hour and a half will be required to finish the competition.

The Lincoln Park Boat club is on the west bank of the lagoon south of the stone bridge which connects with the outer drive. It is approximately 2400 north.

Loud Speakers Installed.

Thousands are expected to see the championships. A loud speaker system will be installed on the starting and finishing barges so that the names of contestants will be announced before the championship race and all qualifiers and winners can be announced at the finish line.

Programs containing the names of the swimmers and the officials will be distributed without charge.

Brundage Sees No Reason for Jewish Alarm

Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, yesterday refused to get excited over the disclosure in Berlin that no Jews have been named among the athletes chosen to compete for the German Olympic team.

"The fact that no Jews have been named so far to compete for Germany doesn't necessarily mean that they have been discriminated against on that score," he said. "In forty years of Olympic history I doubt if the number of Jewish athletes competing from all nations totaled 1 per cent of those in the games. In fact, I believe one-half of 1 per cent would be a high percentage.

"I do not imagine that the American team will have many Jews either, but no one can say we discriminate against them. Every man with the ability is welcomed on the American team, and German officials have promised us that all Jews with enough ability will get a chance on their team. Until there is a concrete proof of racial discrimination, I do not see how or why we should make a protest."

Brundage said on his last trip to Germany he was surprised to learn that one or two star athletes with Jewish sounding names were not Jewish, but German.

NAZIS DENY CHARGES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 26.— wish leaders and Nazis sports officials continued to issue conflicting statements today regarding Jewish participation in Olympic trials in Germany.

Answering Jewish charges that tryouts were marked with such discrimination it was likely no member of their race would win a place on German teams, Nazi officials said the failure of Jewish athletes to qualify was strictly a matter of inferiority in actual competition.

Representatives from the office of Hans von Tschammer und Osten, Nazi sports head, cited the establishment of a training camp for Jewish athletes as conclusive evidence of Nazi open-mindedness and fairness. These representatives said Jews competed in the first tryouts, but that they were beaten in competition.

It was officially announced by the Nazis that 20 Jews were included among the number which trained under an Aryan instructor and that only six of these reached the tryouts.

No Jew Named.

Jewish leaders answered these statements with the charge that their athletes were treated in the trials as if they had not participated. Eight or ten athletes have already been named for each German team, but no Jew is included in this group.

NIESENS FACE COALS.

Billy Niesen will lead his All-Stars to Spencer Coal field tomorrow for a double header with the Spencer Coals, who are fighting to remain in the running for the Chicago Semi-Pro league title.

SPEEDBOATS TO MEET TODAY IN GOLD CUP RACE

Bolton Landing, N. Y., July 26.—(AP)—Five speedy craft rested in their boathouse cradles tonight awaiting the gun that will send them skimming over Lake George tomorrow in quest of the 31 year old gold cup, symbolic of American speedboat supremacy.

Observers on hand for the 90 mile test looked for a smashing of existing records in view of the increased power and superchargers permitted under new rules of the American Speedboat association.

On the eve of the race, which will be run in three heats, Wild Bill Horn of Newport News, Va., pilot of Delphine IV., was considered the most dangerous challenger of George Reis of Lake George, whose 13 year old El Lagarto sped to victory in 1933 and 1934. Horn won in 1932 and was runnerup to Reis last year.

Two other former competitors will be in the race, Hotsy Totsy II., owned by Victor Kliesrath of South Bend, Ind., and Impshi, formerly the Hornet, owned by Hubert Lucker of Detroit and to be piloted by Benjamin Hill. The fifth entrant is a new craft, the Notre Dame, built this year for Herb Mendelsohn of Detroit and to be driven by Fred Perry.

JOLIET LEGION WINS DOWNSTATE CROWN, 17 TO 9

Bloomington, Ill., July 26.—[Special.]—Joliet post, second division winner, captured the downstate junior American Legion baseball championship today, defeating Herrin post, fifth division titleholder, 17 to 9, in the final game of the tournament.

Joliet won the right to play the Chicagoland winner for the state championship here in a three game series Aug. 3, 4, 5. The Cook county title rests between the Melin-Romer post and Neighborhood Boys' club. Score:

Herrin	006	000	300—	9 9 5

Batteries—Claunch, Cluck and Oldain; Wilkus, Kalliar and Haunes, Privisc.

NATIONAL ROQUE MEET TO BE HELD IN GARFIELD PARK

The American Roque league has selected the Roque courts at Garfield Park as the site for the national Roque tournament of 1935. The tournament will be played from Aug. 12 to the 24. According to B. E. Euchner, president of the Garfield Roque club, which is acting as host to the tournament, prominent players are coming from Elgin, Aurora, Decatur, Peoria, Cleveland, Washington, D. C., Los Angeles, Spokane, and Philadelphia to compete. Teams from Washington and Lincoln parks also will compete.

Star Yachts Open Week's Regatta at Wilmette Today

The Sheridan Shore Yacht club today will open a seven day regatta for Star class yachts. More of these fast 22 foot sloops will gather in the S. S. Y. C. harbor at Wilmette than have ever attended a race for Star boats on the Great Lakes.

Sixty-six men will sail the 33 yachts entered. Yachtsmen are here from Peoria, Ill.; Paw Paw, Mich.; St. Joseph, Mich.; Two Rivers, Wis.

The entries:

Two Rivers, owned by Edward P. Hamilton; Maybe, Fred E. Bloom of Illinois Valley Y. C., Peoria; Sandpiper, Philip Upton, St. Joseph River [Mich.] Y. C.; Ibis, Stuart Bell, Paw Paw, Mich.; Spinster, Robert Vested; Nancy Lee, William W. Woods, and Kathleen, Jack Stanton, all of Jackson Park Y. C.; Jane II., George Harvey, and Fred Price, Columbia Y. C.; Bee, Bert Williams; Ann, Dr. Harry A. Richter; Sans Blague, R. M. Greenlee; Sparkler, Albert D. Erskine; Galatea, Faurot-Wiman; Kamo, Kales-Woon, all of Chicago Y. C.; Omar, Robert Teare; Yokel, Stewart Beal; Walrus, Stockton brothers; Hummer II., John Dennison; Silver Spray, Robert Kendig; Twinkle Dilly, Bayford-Jones; Hermes, Dr. Alexander Davis; Carol, Elliott-Gos; Blue Mist, C. R. Jenkins; Glider, Bingham-Clay; Ali Baba, Fitzsimmons-Morton; Sea Dove, Charles Pajeau; Neo, Price-Brandriff; Skipt, Waage-Knight; Bad Wolf, Tom Wolfe; Asterisk, Other brothers; Gmini, Pirie brothers; Bonnie B., Bowman-Floyd.

The only other boat racing on the lake front this week end will be done by model skippers of the Chicago Model Yacht club. Tomorrow, at the Lief Ericson pool, 51st street and the lake, 6 meter class modelmen are to compete in the first round of the Carson Pirie Scott trophy series at 10 a. m.

WAR BRIDE TO ENTER ROLLER SKATING DERBY

A war bride, Frenchie De La Bahthe, born in Paris, France, yesterday announced her intention of entering the roller skate derby in the Coliseum, starting the first week in August. Miss De La Barthe, married to an American aviator, came here with her husband after the war. The latter died, and Miss De La Barthe was left with two children.

Rugg, Davis Go to Finals of Valley Tennis Tourney

Iowa City, Ia., July 26.—(AP)—Dick Rugg, Waterloo, and Ed Davis, Peoria, Ill., advanced to the finals of the Mississippi valley tennis meet today. Rugg, the defending champion, defeated Ken Black, Peoria, Ill., 6-3 5-7, 6-1.

Davis had less difficulty with Ken Cline, University of Iowa player, winning the straight sets, 6-1, 6-3.

Sox to Battle Browns Today; Start Fischer

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 26.—After three days of thumb twiddling as the result of bad weather and the necessity of traveling from Philadelphia to this place, the White Sox hope to get back to their chosen profession tomorrow in the opener of a four game series with the Browns. The latter are just back from a long road trip in which they won nine while losing ten, and this record is sufficient to convince the Sox that they have a real job on their hands for the next three days.

The sudden revival of the Browns while on foreign fields furnished just one more dizzy chapter in a generally dizzy baseball season. By taking three out of four from the Yankees in New York, the Browns showed that even though they are tailenders they are nobody's pushover. It really was this piece of work that softened up the Yanks and paved the way for Detroit's taking first place. But the general belief is that the Yankees, who had become a bit too complacent for their own good, still have an edge because of schedule arrangements.

Fischer Hurls Today.

In the single game with the Browns tomorrow the Sox pitching will be handled by Carl [Lefty] Fischer and on Sunday Manager Dykes plans on giving the enemy his big guns in the double-header. The big guns of the staf, at least in victories achieved, are Ted Lyons and John Whitehead. The series will be closed Monday with either Les Tietje or Johnny [Specs] Salveson. This arrangement will leave Vernon Kennedy for the first of the series with Cleveland at Comiskey Park next Tuesday.

Al Simmons, who yesterday was asking for a brief vacation so that nature could make repairs on his groin injury, was feeling pretty fair today. He reported himself greatly improved when told he had hit at close to a .400 clip during the eastern trip in which the Sox won 8 and lost 7. He'll probably be in there tomorrow. In the event Simmons is forced to rest Mule Haas will move into center field and Vernon G. Washington will return to right field.

C'mon, You Hitters!

Manager Dykes is hoping for a few more base hits to support the excellent pitching the team has been enjoying. For some unknown reason almost all the regular hands, Simmons excepted, are off form. This includes Radcliff, Haas, Bonura, and Appling. This may all be changed when the third placers resume business in their own park. Most of their good hitting has been done there this season. It's a particularly choice spot for Bonura.

After their series at Chicago with the Indians and St. Louis, the latter including a double-header on Sunday, Aug. 4, the Sox will encounter some tough opposition at Cleveland and Detroit. They are billed for four games in three days at the former and four games in as many days in the home of the league champions. Then the eastern teams will begin their season's final drive on Comiskey park. That will keep the Sox busy from Aug. 13 to 28. In this stretch they must dispose of 22 games, seven of them in the shape of double-headers. Four of them will be with the Yanks and three with the Athletics.

MASTERS OPEN CHESS TOURNEY WITH 4 DRAWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 26.—The master's tournament in the thirty-sixth annual American Chess federation congress opened today at the Schroeder hotel. Four of the five matches resulted in draws, with A. C. Simonson of New York defeating Arpad Elo, Milwaukee, in the other. Simonson won with a French defense in thirty-seven moves.

Samuel Factor of Chicago held Arthur Dake, Portland, Ore., to a draw in nine moves with a Sicilian defense. In one of the longest games on the program, F. R. Chevalier of Holliston, Mass., employed a queen's cambit declined play to earn a tie with Isaac Kashdan of New York. Chevalier and Kashdan called a halt after forty-two moves.

COULSON WINS IN SINGLE SCULLS; FACES CAMPBELL

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., July 26.—(AP)—Johnny Coulson, Toronto sculler, today scored an impressive triumph in the singles race of the 53d Royal Canadian Henley's association meet and qualified to oppose Charlie Campbell of the Toronto Argonauts for the senior title tomorrow. Campbell, United States and Canadian champion, has been defeated by Coulson three times this season.

Coulson today defeated Erwin Konrad of the Buffalo West Sides, U. S. and Canadian sprint champion; R. W. Bates of the Union Boat club of Boston, and Herb Miller of the University of Toronto. His time was 3 minutes 25 seconds for the mile and a quarter.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

"CALLING" THE RACES.

CALLING the races is one of the most important jobs at any race track. The caller, whose charts are the basis of handicapping or predicting future results, is not exploited nor publicized. Unless you are a frequenter of the press stand you probably never have seen him. Not one in a thousand race goers know his name. Yet this one chap records the relative positions of the horses in a race, making as many as six calls in the space of two minutes in the longer events where field often includes twenty horses.

LINCOLN PLAUT.

Perhaps you have wondered how many persons are used in compiling the form charts published in daily newspapers and in the Daily Racing Form, a turf publication. Perhaps you have thought one or more persons was stationed at various parts of the track to report the order in which the nags passed that particular point. No, it's simpler and harder than that. One man does the work. True, he has an assistant to take his call as he rapidly names the horses and the relative distances, but his alone is the responsibility.

The caller at Arlington Park is Lincoln Plaut, a young man of 34 years who learned his turf around Kentucky tracks and served his apprenticeship as a turf writer on a Cincinnati newspaper. He succeeded the late John L. [Jack] Dempsey at the major midwestern tracks upon the latter's death. "Link," as he is known to intimates, has been calling for thirteen years. He has not made a wager on the ponies for eight years.

Let's take the Arlington Classic for instance. Only ten starters, so it's comparatively easy, you say. But is it? The Arlington track is a 1⅛ mile oval, so the field is at the eighth pole for the 1¼ mile journey.

They're away quickly and Link, perched high in the press stand and with powerful binoculars, is calling their respective positions on the getaway. No time to think it over or go back, for soon they'll be at the quarter pole, three furlongs of the journey where another call is due. Then another at the half-mile post, or five furlongs at this track; another when a mile has been completed; another in the stretch with a furlong yet to go, and still another at the finish—six calls in all, in 2:01 2-5, the time of the race.

How did he learn to do it? Let's ask Link: "O, I just picked it up." He might have said, "O, it's a gift. You either have it or you don't have it. It's not something that can be learned." That's The Wake viewpoint. Of course a keen eye and color vision is essential.

Callers rely principally on the stable colors worn by jockeys. Occasionally some horse has an outstanding characteristic to identify it. But colors are more reliable because horses so often are side by side in a race, shutting off the view of others. If an entry is racing, the boys usually wear different colored caps. You no doubt have noticed that.

"Ever get 'em wrong?" we asked.

"No, I'm like a baseball umpire," answered Plaut with a smile. "Seriously, there may be minor miscalls of position or intervening distances, but nothing very bad, I think. Otherwise handicappers using the call would complain to my employers and eventually I'd lose my position."

"Why don't you bet?" we persisted.

"There are several reasons," replied Plaut. "The most important from the viewpoint of my employers, although they do not prohibit betting, is that when you bet on a horse you are more interested in it than in the others. Tendency is to watch it and I might miss something concerning the others. You know I also have to write a story of the races for my turf paper.

"Some people think you remember a race better if you bet on it. I believe that is your theory. You may remember one horse better, but I doubt whether you remember the whole field as well. Anyway, I don't bet, so I have no speculative worries."

Cubs Defeat Reds, 5-1, to Gain in Race

arretta doubled to left center, scoring Galan. Hartnett fanned.

Cuyler opened the sixth with a single through Hack. Then Bottomley popped to Herman and Goodman hit into a double play launched by French.

Hack got a double to left center, with two out in the sixth and scored on Jurges' single to right center. French grounded out to Bottomley.

Cubs Pick Up Another.

Derringer gave way to Erickson, a pinch batsman, in the seventh and Brennan was the Red pitcher at the start of the Cub half of the inning. Galan opened against Brennan with an infield single and went to second while Riggs was throwing out Herman. Cavarretta filed to Goodman. Hartnett singled to right, scoring Galan, but was out trying to reach second, Goodman to Myers.

USE WARNEKE, HENSHAW

Lon Warneke will seek to make it an even dozen victories for himself in one of the games of today's double header between the Cubs and Reds. Roy Henshaw will go after his No. 8 in the day's other match.

A ladies' day crowd of 24,600 saw the Cub-Red opener. About 15,000 were guests of the management.

The Reds brought word that a big carnival is to be staged in connection with the Cubs-Reds game in Cincinnati on Aug. 5. The Cubs were to have left Cincinnati for home after a double header on Sunday, Aug. 4, the Reds going to St. Louis. But the schedule has been changed so the Cubs and Reds will remain in Cincinnati for the fiesta. The game may be played at night.

They Show Enthusiasm of Young Players.

BY FRANK J. MURRAY.

[Football Coach at Marquette University.]

The football battle between the All-American team and the Chicago Bears last August taught me several important lessons. I was a most interested spectator and I certainly will be at Soldiers' field again Aug. 29 for this second All-Star game, which I believe offers even greater possibilities as a spectacle than the first.

Last year's contest exploded that fallacy that seniors usually are fed up on football and that during the season they scarcely can wait until the last game has been played. These All-Americans had remarkable spirit and enthusiasm when, by the nature of the contest, such spirit might have been lacking.

Players Adapt Themselves.

Strikingly noticeable, also, was the fact that the boys who had been grounded in the fundamentals of the various so-called systems had so speedily absorbed the fundamental technique of the Notre Dame shift. That, it seems to me, is to the credit of coaches throughout the country. It merely shows that after all the teaching of football is largely done along generally accepted lines and that the boy who is properly trained in the fundamentals of the game can adjust his play to the slight changes encountered in carrying out the ideas of a particular coach.

The play of the college team, particularly on offense, reflects on the men who were in charge as well as the individuals on the squad. Defensively the boys adjusted themselves to the Bears' attack. The result was an excellent exhibition of America's most popular sport.

The attendance last year also proved that football does not have to be confined to the fall months. Actually I think football would be better off if the season started earlier and ended earlier. This would eliminate the late November games in weather which handicaps players.

Public Likes Early Games.

Experience has shown that fewer serious injuries occur in warm weather. If a baseball player can loosen up better in warm weather, isn't it logical to assume that the boys can better stand the bangs of football in moderate temperatures? Too many are prone to associate football with Thanksgiving snows.

The All-Star game also demonstrated that the public will turn to football long before the world series baseball games. Neither sport will suffer.

Most colleges are under way by the end of September. Football schedules can be advanced and from the tendency to play important games early in the fall, many coaches, apparently, are of this opinion.

The setting for this year's game is ideal. That was shown last summer. Football is not confined to daylight, either, for the lighting at Soldiers' field made every bit of action clear to the spectators. There's no doubt but that a night game is far superior to a game during a rainy or cold, inclement Saturday in November. And night games eliminate the argument that it's too hot to play football in late August or September.

Team Is Strong.

This year's All-American squad is a splendid group of athletes. They possess remarkable offensive ability. The team has more material than the 1934 aggregation. I do not wish to predict the winner, but I do know that it will be a brilliant game. It will be a parade of stars against a great professional eleven, and it will be a game, not an exhibition.

I extend my best wishes to both teams, and to their coaches. They have been honored highly and their responsibility is great.

Grant Leads Qualifiers in Shenecossett Golf

Eastern Point, Conn., July 26.—(AP)—Bobby Grant of Wethersfield, Conn., today set the pace for a field of 60 in the qualifying round of the 16th Shenecossett men's invitation tournament, carding a 71, one under par. Among the qualifiers was Jack Busby of Chicago, member of the Princeton golf team, with an 80.

SISTER OF SLAIN GIRL WEEPS ON WITNESS STAND

Identifies Clothing in Murder Trial.

BY KIRK EARNSHAW.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., July 26.—[Special.]—The torn garments that pretty 19 year old Mildred Hallmark wore on the night of June 16 when she accepted the invitation of Gerald Thompson to escort her home, were exhibited to a jury here today. The garments are the first links in a chain of evidence with which the state hopes to send Thompson, 26 year old tool worker, to the electric chair for Miss Hallmark's rape and murder.

One by one the garments were identified in court today by Ruby Hallmark, blonde elder sister of Mildred.

Describes Sister's Clothing.

Her eyes streaming with tears, the sister took the stand this morning before a jury in the court of Circuit Judge Joseph E. Daily and described the clothes worn by Miss Hallmark when she had left her home on the afternoon of June 16 to go to a downtown cafeteria where she was employed.

With a series of low voiced "yeses" the girl identified the clothing. There was a gray and white plaid coat that formed a shroud for the girl's nude body when it was found the next morning in a creek in wooded Springdale cemetery. A white summer dress and pink slip were stained and smeared with mud. Slashed with the scissors that Thompson habitually carried with him, the girl's silken undergarments were submitted to the jury in fragments.

There was also a little paper wrapped bundle of knitting, an unfinished white wool sweater, which was found beside the body and identified in court this morning.

Testimony Is Brief.

The testimony of the victim's sister, foreshortened by agreement between E. V. Champion, prosecutor of Peoria county, and Ren Thurman, defense counsel, was the high point of the day. Thompson sat unmoved throughout the identification of the clothing—but the jurors and the 300 spectators who jammed the courtroom watched her every gesture on the stand.

The testimony of John McGinnis, 19, of Dixon, a Bradley institute student and bus boy in the restaurant where Miss Hallmark was employed, revealed that just two circumstances placed the girl at a lonely street car transfer corner—not far from her home. It was here Thompson accosted her, offered to drive her home, and instead took her into neighboring Springdale cemetery, where, he has confessed, he raped and murdered her.

"My roommate, Reynold McDaniels, used to meet me when I got through work," young McGinnis said. "But that night he didn't come and because I had no place to go, I asked Mildred to go to a movie with me. It was the first date that we had had together."

Misses Street Car Home.

"We got out of the movie and walked to the car line," McGinnis continued. "The country club car was just pulling out when we got to the corner, so we walked up the street and she got on a Knoxville car." The country club car, the testimony of McGinnis and other witnesses showed, would have taken the Hallmark girl within a block of her home. Instead she was compelled to transfer from the Knoxville car and while waiting for her car, she was met by Thompson. McGinnis, who lived in another section of the city, left his fellow worker at the downtown street car stop.

"What was the picture you saw?" Prosecutor Champion asked.

"The People's Enemy," McGinnis replied and with slow deliberation turned in the witness chair and stared at Thompson.

Identify Death Scene.

Bert Powers, local photographer, and Max Webster, county surveyor, identified pictures and maps of Springdale cemetery which will be used throughout the trial. These also formed the basis for the testimony of William McGarvey, 65 year old caretaker in the cemetery, who found the nearly nude body of the girl on the morning of June 17.

The day's session ended as it began, with a relative of the slain girl testifying. John Hallmark, the father, who worked in the same factory with the young defendant, was the last of a series of witnesses who told of the discovery of the body and its identification as that of Mildred Hallmark.

George Weidig, Jeweler Here for 50 Years, Is Dead

George Weidig, for more than fifty years a Chicago jeweler, died yesterday in his home at 40 East Oak street after a short illness. He was 74 years old. Mr. Weidig was born in New York and came to Chicago in the late 1870s as manager for the jewelry firm of Joseph Fahy. For a short while he was transferred to Cincinnati, but returned here again in 1886 and remained with the company until its dissolution a few years ago when he formed his own organization. He is survived by his widow, Sarah.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Orville Knapp, a young west coast orchestra leader, has been engaged to succeed Wayne King when he leaves the Aragon ballroom after nine years early this fall. Knapp, who organized his orchestra less than a year ago, has become immensely popular in Los Angeles. His reputation has been made almost entirely during his engagement at the Beverly Wilshire hotel where he is still playing. Knapp was heard on a nation-wide network for the first time on the night of President Roosevelt's last birthday party. Since then he has had a Tuesday evening spot on the Columbia network. He will, of course, be heard over W-G-N from the Aragon.

Andrew Karzas, president of the Aragon and Trianon, made a special trip to the west coast to look over Knapp and was so enthusiastic over his music that he got his signature on a long term contract. Knapp is a tall, blond chap of 27 and is a brother of Evalyn Knapp of the movies. His music will offer considerable contrast to the silken waltzes of Wayne King.

Its most distinguishing feature is a steel guitar effect achieved through electrical amplification. He also plans to use one of the new Hammond electrical organs with his orchestra when he arrives here Oct. 4. There are no violins in the orchestra.

Knapp is a saxophone player. He used to play with Joe Sanders and Carlton Coon in their early days at Kansas City and was still with them when they played at Lincoln tavern and W-G-N. He was a neighbor of Sanders in Kansas City. Joe recalled yesterday that Knapp was Joan Crawford's best boy friend at the time he joined the orchestra.

Even if some of the torrid details are omitted, "The Life of Mary McCormic," dramatic musical serial launched on WBBM Thursday evening, makes a welcome addition to summer air fare. The first instalment gave indication that the story will have many electric moments. But the story is much more than a dramatic one. Like "Music at the Haydns" it endeavors to introduce songs that fit the particular incident or mood being portrayed.

On top of that Miss McCormic has a voice that lends itself well to radio purposes. And with such radio prima donnas as Gladys Swarthout, Lily Pons, and Jane Froman summering in Hollywood and many another feminine favorite vacationing, listeners will applaud the addition of a good voice to the dog day schedules.

Tennis followers are reporting that John R. Tunis has been doing a top job in his daily reports of the Davis cup interzone finals from Wimbledon. Today from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. and 11 to noon Tunis will describe the challenge round singles over WMAQ and NBC.

The slaying of Baby Face Nelson will be the subject of the second in the series of "G Men" broadcasts at 8 o'clock this evening over WMAQ-NBC. The broadcast will be dedicated to Inspector Samuel P. Cowley of the federal department of justice, who lost his life in the encounter with Nelson.

Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the National Republican committee, will discuss activities of the party and indicate general issues for the coming campaign in an address to be broadcast over NBC at 7:15 next Monday evening. His subject will be "Fundamental Issues in the Making."

Mrs. May D. Coyle, Mother of Charles C. Bunker, Dies

Mrs. May D. Coyle, mother of Charles C. Bunker, vice president of Marshall Field & Co. and assistant general manager of the retail store, died yesterday in her home at West Chicago after an illness of six months. Mrs. Coyle was 76 years old. She was one of the oldest residents of the suburb, having lived there since she was 14 years old. Surviving Mrs. Coyle are her son and her husband, C. J. Coyle. Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the Bunker home at 209 East Washington street, West Chicago, with interment in Oak Woods cemetery.

James D. McNitt, 90, Dies; Former President of Bank

MRS. REYNOLDS' WILL PROBATED; $220,000 ESTATE

The will of Mrs. Caroline W. Reynolds leaving the most of an estate estimated at $220,000 to her husband, Dr. Henry Reynolds, 2013 Prairie avenue, and a brother, nephew, niece, grandniece, two grand-nephews, six friends, and five former household employés, was admitted to probate yesterday. Mrs. Reynolds died last May 29. Before her second marriage, she was the widow of William H. Reid, a vice president of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank.

The will also provides bequests of $5,000 each to the Second Presbyterian church, the Rev. W. C. Howard, its pastor, and the Presbyterian hospital, and $3,000 to the Chicago Home for Girls.

The following other wills were admitted to probate yesterday:

FREDERICK COWIN, died July 22. Estate, $90,000; to widow, son and two daughters. Drovers Trust and Savings bank, and Edith A. Cowin, widow, executors.

JOHN BAZATA, died June 30. Estate, $20,000; to widow. Otto Bazata, son, executor.

ALICE L. ANTES, died May 27. Estate, $15,000; to aunt and two cousins. Katherine A. Bradley, cousin, executrix.

FRANK KALLAL, died May 20, 1934. Estate, $10,000; to widow, son, and three daughters. Frantiska Kallal, widow, executrix.

LYDIA W. HOLSINGER, died May 1. Estate, $4,500; to Nellie Gordon, friend, executrix.

M. P. DILGER, LAKE COUNTY OFFICIAL FIGURE, 73, DIES

Matthew P. Dilger, 73 years old, active in the business and political life of Waukegan and Lake county for more than forty years, died in his home at 219 Carnation street, Waukegan, yesterday after a heart attack.

Mr. Dilger had operated a florist shop at that address since he moved to Waukegan from Milwaukee in 1893. He was collector for Waukegan township and had served as an alderman of Waukegan and member of the Lake county board of supervisors.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Margaret Dilger; four sons, Peter Paul, Arthur F., Robert M., and Nicholas Dilger, all of Waukegan; five grandchildren, one brother, and two sisters. Funeral services will be held Monday morning in the chapel at 236 North Genesee street, Waukegan, with burial in Northshore Garden of Memories.

C. F. KENNEDY, 78, DEPUTY CORONER 30 YEARS, IS DEAD

Charles F. Kennedy, who was a deputy coroner for nearly 30 years, died yesterday in his home at 1814 Eddy street after a long illness. He was 78 years old.

Mr. Kennedy entered the coroner's office in 1905. He retired in 1928, but returned to the office for a time when Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, was coroner. He presided over many important inquests, including those on the Eastland disaster, the outer crib fire, race riots, and the Billy McClintock case.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Ida Martin Kennedy, whom he married in 1879, and four daughters, Mrs. Genevieve Golden of Springfield, Ill., and Mrs. Florence Winters, Mrs. Lillian Johnson, and Mrs. Bernice Herrold of Chicago.

Joseph A. Pritchett, 61, Retired Pullman Aid, Dies

Funeral services for Joseph A. Pritchett, 719 South Hermitage avenue, who died Thursday, will be held Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock from the home to St. Jarlath's church. Mr. Pritchett was 61 years old. The son of pioneers who came from England, Mr. Pritchett was born, reared and died in the same house which his father, William, built. Fifteen years ago Mr. Pritchett retired from the Pullman company where he was employed in the statistical department. Surviving are his widow, Jennie, and three children, Margaret, Marshall and Joseph Jr.

BURIAL SERVICE TODAY FOR MRS. ROSE SCHILDER

Funeral services for Mrs. Rose Schilder, daughter of one of Chicago's oldest settlers, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chapel at 2701 North Clark street, with interment in Graceland cemetery. Mrs. Schilder died on Thursday after a long illness. She was 87 years old.

Mrs. Schilder's parents, George and Mary Hoffmann, came from Germany in 1829, and settled later in a log cabin which they built on the north bank of the Chicago river at the end of a foot bridge where Clark street now is.

The cabin later was moved to Illinois and Clark streets. It then stood next to the old North Market hall in which Hoffmann assisted Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, in founding Moody's church. The 10 Hoffmann children were among the first to attend Sunday school there.

Mrs. Schilder's husband, Herman, was a musician and composer. He died 50 years ago. Surviving Mrs. Schilder is a daughter, Mrs. Arthur H. Heinickel, 647 Buckingham place, whose husband has been a member of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for 27 years.

Funeral Services Held for Frank Gilbert Hoyne, 81

Funeral services for Frank Gilbert Hoyne, head of the real estate concern bearing his name at 118 North La Salle street, were held yesterday at the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park. The services were conducted by the Rev. Christoph Keller, pastor. Interment was in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Hoyne died in his home at 419 Lake avenue, Highland Park, Wednesday after an illness of a few weeks. He was 81 years old on July 17. Mr. Hoyne's father, Thomas Hoyne, was an early mayor of Chicago.

DIES AT 73 AFTER FALL.

DEATH CLAIMS HORACE M. FORD, ADVERTISING MAN

Chicago friends of Horace M. Ford, veteran advertising man, formerly head of a firm of newspaper representatives, learned yesterday of his death on Thursday in Traverse City, Mich., his summer home. Funeral services will be held today in Traverse City, after which the body will be taken to Glen Ellyn for burial on Monday.

Mr. Ford suffered a stroke last Wednesday and died the following day in a Traverse City hospital. He formerly lived in Evanston. He is survived by his widow, Angie, and one daughter, Miss Emma Ford of Evanston. He was born in Fairfield, N. Y., seventy-two years ago.

Following his graduation from Syracuse university Mr. Ford went to work as a reporter for the Kansas City Journal. In 1892 he came to Chicago to represent that newspaper in the national advertising field. He later started his own newspaper representative business in a firm that became Ford-Parsons-Stecher company. He retired four years ago and his concern was merged with Bryant, Griffith & Brunson, Inc., in 1932.

HEAVY BUYING WHIRLS WHEAT 4 CENTS HIGHER

Black Rust Damage Reports Alarming.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The creeping advance in wheat which began 10 days ago culminated dramatically yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade as prices were bid up 3 to 4 cents a bushel on the heaviest buying that has come into the market in weeks. Although the market met heavy selling on the advance from speculators there was only a slight recession from the best price level of the day.

A crop scare of the first magnitude has been built on news coming out of north western states of the rapid deterioration in spring wheat. Three weeks ago conditions in the four principal producing states in the spring wheat belt promised a bumper crop. Since then the crop is estimated to have been reduced by 100 million bushels.

Wheat Damaged by Rust.

In Minnesota and North and South Dakota wheat has ben ravaged by black rust, a fungus growth which thrives in years in which a period of excessive rains is followed by hot and muggy weather such as has been experience this season. Although rust is present every year, not since 1916 has it been a serious factor in curtailing production.

Usually the rust develops too late to materially injure the wheat, but this year, because of the late crop season, the blight developed early enough to sap the vitality of the grain. Coupled with the black rust in the states mentioned, drouth has been visited on the crop in Montana, the other principal producing state, with the same result in materially cutting the prospective yield.

From an indicated crop of 273 million bushels, forecast by the department of agriculture on July 10, there has been a steady deterioration in prospects. It is now expected by some authorities that production will fall below 200 million bushels.

Speculators on Buying Side.

For the last two weeks there has been fairly heavy speculative buying of wheat by professional traders but the buying fever had not spread to the public. Yesterday marked a broad expansion in commission house business. Brokers reported an influx of public buying and many traders who had bought earlier took the opportunity to cash their profits.

There was little interest shown in other grains. Activity centered in wheat and prices changed so rapidly that the board markers had difficulty to keep abreast of the market. All wheat futures participated in the advance. September wheat rose 3¼ cents a bushel while the December contract gained nearly 4 cents.

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk. Ago.
Wheat	$ .89¾	$ .86¼	$ .84½
Corn	.76⅛	.75⅝	.75½
Oats	.32⅛	.31½	.31¼
Rye	.46⅛	.44⅝	.45¼

Minneapolis Soars Limit.

The 5 cent daily limit on price fluctuations stopped the rise in prices in the Minneapolis market where all futures advanced the maximum. In Kansas City gains ranged from 3 to 5 cents a bushel.

Two weeks ago September wheat was selling in Chicago at 80 cents a bushel, only 1½ cents above the low price of the season. Yesterday's closing price represented an appreciation of more than 9 cents. May wheat, in which trading began two days ago, is now selling at 93⅝ cents a bushel.

The probable result of the crop damage in this country will be to put the United States on a purely domestic wheat basis for another year. A month ago a surplus of 100 million bushels appeared likely.

The growing menace of rust to the Canadian crop found reflection yesterday in an advance of 1½ cents a bushel in wheat in the Winnipeg market.

BARS N.Y.CENTRAL DIVIDENDS UNTIL IT BUYS ATTICA

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—The New York Central railroad was told today by the interstate commerce commission it must acquire the Chicago, Attica and Southern railroad for $110,000 before it pays the next dividend on its common stock and that if the Attica is abandoned before acquisition is consummated the New York Central must reduce rates on grain to Chicago from two Indiana points. The Attica is an 80 mile line with a terminal at Attica, Ind.

The commission order was a modification of a previous ruling holding that the New York Central should purchase the Attica in connection with a unification of its lines. Originally the price for the sale, which was not opposed by the Attica, was fixed at $165,000.

If the line were abandoned, the commission said, grain rates from Swanington, Ind., to Chicago must be reduced to 12.5 cents per 100 pounds and from Veedersburg, Ind., to Chicago to 14.5 cents per 100 pounds.

Three commissioners dissented from today's ruling.

World Silver Production Shows Decrease for June

New York, July 26.—(AP)—World silver production in June totaled 15,178,000 fine ounces compared with 16,969,000 in May, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. United States production in June was 2,387,000 ounces, against 2,693,000 in May and that of Canada 1,148,000 ounces in June and 1,896,000 ounces in May. Mexican production in June was estimated at 5,600,000 ounces against 6,200,000 ounces in May.

Death of NRA Affects Jobs, Wages Little

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Employment and pay rolls in industries generally have been little affected by the death of the NRA, according to current reports from several sources.

The Supreme court ruled the NRA unconstitutional on May 27. Figures for June, therefore, reflect what has happened to workers in the first full month since industry was freed from the NRA.

The Illinois department of labor's monthly job survey, which covers 1,948 manufacturing and 2,381 nonmanufacturing industries, discloses that total employment dropped only seven-tenths of 1 per cent from May 15 to June 15. Combined pay rolls for these 4,329 industries showed no change whatever. In the nonmanufacturing industries employment increased 1.3 per cent and pay rolls were up 1.9 per cent.

The National Industrial Conference board's report for June shows that declines last month in jobs and pay rolls in 25 large industrial groups were slightly less than usual for the month. Employment from May to June fell off only one-half of 1 per cent. Total man-hours worked were down 1.6 per cent, and pay rolls, 1.9 per cent. Average hourly earnings of workers remained the same at 59.9 cents. Since June, 1934, there has been an increase of 2.2 per cent in average hourly earnings, 1.4 per cent in the average work week, and 3.6 per cent in the average weekly pay envelope. The cost of living, measured by the board's index, dropped two-tenths of 1 per cent from May to June.

In the Chicago federal reserve district, which covers northern and central Illinois and Indiana, all of Iowa, southern and central Wisconsin, and the lower Michigan peninsula, employment and pay rolls declined slightly more than in Illinois alone, according to the monthly survey of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. In 5,502 reporting industries jobs were down 2 per cent and pay rolls were 4½ per cent lower than in June, but were up 4 and 8 per cent respectively above June, 1934.

Bankers Believe Devaluation of Dutch Guilders Is Inevitable.

The resignation of Holland's "sound money" cabinet and fall of the guilder are regarded among Chicago bankers as presaging devaluation of Dutch currency and the adoption of a new policy of inflation, similar to that followed by Great Britain and the United States.

Developments of the last week in Holland have surprised money experts here. There had been no suspicion that Holland was approaching a financial crisis. Unlike their Belgian contemporaries the banks of the Netherlands have been regarded as sound and the nation's gold reserves were comfortably large.

Belgium was forced off gold because of a banking crisis, similar to the runs on banks in the United States early in 1933 which were followed by abandonment of the gold standard. Great Britain was forced to leave gold in the fall of 1931 because of a run on her gold supply. Italy was pushed off because of the weak condition of her government finances and her decidedly unfavorable balance of trade, coupled with the threatened further drain of military expenditures incident to the projected Ethiopian war. France nearly fell off gold because of her big budget deficit, and was saved only by drastic moves in the direction of economy.

No such crisis has been threatening the Dutch, as far as is known. The supposition is that the change of front in that country is due to political causes.

Holland's defection from the gold bloc would leave France and Switzerland as the only nations in the world still on the gold standard.

CHICAGO SHOWS TO BRING INFLUX OF MERCHANTS

The largest influx of buyers of merchandise for retail stores to Chicago since 1928 is expected to view the merchandise exhibits that will be on display at nearly every loop hotel and the Merchandise Mart from July 29 to Aug. 10, according to Paul Kunning of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Attendance, the association estimated, will be between 24,000 and 30,000.

The principal exhibit of fall merchandise will be the twenty-eighth semi-annual convention and the style show of the Interstate Merchants' council at the Hotel Sherman. Women's apparel, millinery, foundation garments, accessories, and children's wear will be exhibited in the Morrison, Palmer house, Congress, and Stevens hotels.

The Merchandise Mart will be the center for house furnishing, glassware, china, pottery, electrical appliances, and gift exhibits.

GENERAL MOTORS EXPECTED TO PAY LARGER DIVIDEND

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—In view of the report of the General Motors corporation for the first six months of this year, showing $1.85 a share earned on the common stock, the belief in the financial community is that directors at their meeting in August will order an increased distribution to stockholders.

For several years the company has been paying a regular dividend of 25 cents a share quarterly on the common stock and from time to time as earnings warant directors have ordered the payment of an extra distribution. Because the larger part of the company's earnings are in the first half of the year, the payment of an extra dividend usually has been deferred until after the result of operations for the half-year were known.

Utility Shares Lead Rally in Stock Market

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 26.—Utility shares, the long neglected "orphans" of the stock list, returned to favor on the exchange today when word reached Wall street that the senate and house conference on the holding company bill had broken up in a wrangle over the "brain trusters." Buying in some of the issues became quite brisk in the late afternoon and gains of large sized fractions to more than a point were run up in such issues as Consolidated Gas, American Power and Light, Public Service, Standard Gas, Peoples Gas, and North American. Detroit Edison rose 2 points on a single sale.

The mild display of enthusiasm in behalf of the power and light shares spread to other sections of the list as the market neared its close and resulted in irregularly higher prices all around.

Wheat Rise Aids Implements.

Farm shares got some encouragement from the 4 cents a bushel runup in wheat and there were stray items from here and there to stimulate an occasional buying order in behalf of other groups or individual shares.

The week-end grist of business news was generally favorable, as it has been for some time. Second quarter earnings statements of leading corporations, the tendency of important concerns to be more liberal with dividend payments and favorable trade advices from important quarters combined to keep sentiment cheerful.

A number of preferred shares were conspicuously active in the upside, among them being Baldwin Locomotive, American, Certain-teed Products, Warner Brothers, and Bethlehem Steel. Blumenthal preferred distinguished itself by taking a tumble of 8 points on a moderate turnover.

Steels Absorb Profit Taking.

Some profit taking appeared in the steels, but most of them made small gains. Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Inland, National, and Otis picked up a little. Bethlehem reported second quarter earnings under a year ago but better than in first quarter, and the market is expecting a fairly good report from U. S. Steel, to be issued next Tuesday afternoon, but without any change in the usual 50 cent dividend for the preferred. Arrears on U. S. Steel preferred now total 12½ per cent and are cumulative.

Sinkholes appeared in California Packing, United Fruit, Cluett-Peabody, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, and Westinghouse Air Brake. Their losses ranged from 1¼ to 2¼ points.

The motor shares did little. General Motors sold off fractionally on profit taking as an aftermath to the good news on the corporation's large earnings increase for the second quarter.

Silver issues looked up a little sharper than some others on the good things being said in their behalf by inflation minded talkers down Washington way.

With some of the alcohol and whisky companies reporting lower earnings for the second quarter, the so-called liquor group found it difficult to keep up with the procession. Both National Distillers and Schenley finished behind minus signs.

POSTPONE SOFT COAL STRIKE TO SEPT. 16 ON PLEA OF ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today pushed back the date of the much-threatened soft coal strike to Sept. 16. The United Mine workers and Appalachian producers agreed to extend the present wage scale when the executive wrote them that "certainly by that time the situation will be clarified and you will be in a better position to resume your negotiations."

Without mentioning the Guffey bill by name, the President's letter said "prospects for constructive legislation are so substantial that I am writing to ask you to again extend the present contracts for a further period to Sept. 16."

The Appalachian joint wage conference had been deadlocked in its attempt to write a new wage and hour contract to succeed the extension of the 1934-35 agreement expiring Aug. 1.

The miners asked a 30 hour work week and pay increases averaging 10 per cent. The operators offered to extend the present wage scale and 35 hour week until next April 1, but many of them were dubious of the industry's ability to pay even present wages with coal prices tumbling.

STABILIZATION FUNDS COME TO AID OF FRANC AND DUTCH GUILDER

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—In the face of grave financial difficulties the central banks of Europe and the British equalization fund coöperated today to prevent wide fluctuations in European currencies, which might spell disaster to gold bloc exchanges and upset the value of sterling. With this strong control operating, the Dutch currency opened unchanged at 67.40 and gained 5 points in early trading, but eased to close at 67.38 cents, off 2 points. The franc, to which the guilder is closely tied, opened here at 6.61, up ¼, and gained slightly to close at 6.61½ cents.

This result was brought about through strong support given to the guilder by the Bank of the Netherlands and by the British equalization fund taking all of the francs offered in London that did not find an immediate market.

At the closing price on the franc the dollar was worth $1.0027 against francs, compared with $1.0039 yesterday. Based upon the old parity of the franc the dollar was valued at 59.23 cents, against 59.29 cents yesterday.

Despite the resignation of the Dutch cabinet and the raising of the bank rate at Amsterdam to 6 per cent, other foreign currencies remained steady with the guilder. Italian lire were unchanged and Swiss francs gained 2 points to 32.66 cents.

The pound improved ⅛ cent to $4.96⅝. Scandinavian currencies were steady to 1 point lower, and Canadian dollars were up 3⅛ points at 99.90⅝ cents. Although silver prices were unchanged, silver currencies in the east declined, with Hongkong and Shanghai dollars each off 35 points.

Total gold shipments from Amsterdam this week were reported today at $80,000,000. The Netherlands bank strongly denies reports that it has obtained a loan from the American equalization fund.

Bar gold in London was 2½ pence lower at 140 shillings 6½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.88.

CORPORATE STOCK HOLDINGS SHOW FEW CHANGES

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—Large transactions by officers or directors in stocks of only a comparatively few companies are disclosed today in reports to the SEC for trading in May. Included among larger changes in holdings by officers, directors, or beneficial owners of more than 10 per cent of a stock during May, as reported to the SEC between June 11 and 30, are the following:

CHICAGO FIRMS LOW BIDDERS ON TWO POSTOFFICES

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—The Litman Construction company, of Chicago, was low bidder today on construction of a new building for the Roseland postal station at Chicago.

The first bid was for $83,000. If bronze were used in the entrance door $1,850 would be added; for aluminum in door and window sash frames, $2,000 would be added.

The treasury said today that Maurice L. Bein, Inc., of Chicago, was low bidder on construction of the Pilsen postal station at Chicago. The Bein company's bid was $94,673. When bids on the project were opened yesterday, the treasury said Coath and Goss, of Chicago, was low bidder with an offer of $94,700. The Bein bid was in the mails but had not been received at that time.

SEC to Seek Indictments in Stutz Deals

Indictments looking to criminal prosecution against five members of an alleged stock swindling ring which operated principally in shares of Stutz Motors will be sought immediately, following evidence presented during the last four days in hearings at the securities and exchange commission's Chicago office.

Martin Frank McCormick, Frank F. McCormick, Joseph Sherman, F. D. Kenyon, and Edward T. Morris—all associated with the brokerage house of McCormick & Co., in Minneapolis—were named for action by John L. Flynn, SEC trial examiner, at the close of yesterday's session. All five refused to testify and escaped subpenas while in Chicago briefly on Wednesday.

Resume Hearings Aug. 9.

The hearings will be resumed Aug. 9. Joseph Mendelson and Leonard J. Sutterman, charged with being the controling forces in three distributions of Stutz stock which cost the public more than a million dollars, again will take the witness stand.

Flynn succeeded yesterday in finishing a circumstantial case which showed the half dozen distributing houses and wholesalers closely linked with each other and with Sutterman and Mendelson. At every turn, however, the two principals denied directing their "friends" in their distributing activities.

The established facts that they ceased buying Stutz stock at the same time the distributing houses ceased pushing shares to customers on a partial payment plan must have been a "coincidence," said Sutterman. The record showed in each instance that the price of the stock fell rapidly after supporting buying ceased and that many of the customers were wiped out.

Associated with Andrews.

Sutterman testified his first experience in the security business was as a salesman for Andrews & Co., headed by Archie M. Andrews, recently a principal in the fight for control of Hupp Motor Car corporation. Since 1920 Sutterman has been associated with Mendelson as issue seeker and deal finder.

The SEC contends they have been operating "steals" with Stutz, National Service, and Chemical Research stock in the last two years through dummy organizations.

Wholesalers in the various deals have been shown as E. M. Burke & Co., Chicago; J. J. Burke & Co., Chicago, and L. L. Harr & Co., New York. In each instance the retail distributors were chosen from among McCormick & Co., Kopald, Quinn & Co.; Gould & Co.; Robert Barr & Co.; Levitt & Co., and a few others.

Tells of Other Deal.

Edward Burke, whose firm was a wholesaler in the 1934 Stutz promotion, also told of a deal in Chemical Research company stock which has been cut short by the SEC and the Michigan and Toronto Securities commissions. He admitted a buying campaign for accounts of himself, J. J. Burke, and Sutterman from Nov. 1934 to March, 1935, for the purpose of boosting the price, so that a bloc of stock could be liquidated. The price was carried from $1.65 to $2.35.

The SEC holds that it stopped the plan to close out customers, as in the Stutz deals, preventing an attempt to delist the stock on the Toronto exchanges when the Burke-Sutterman-Mendelson buying ceased and prices started to drop. The Michigan Securities commission has Kopald Quinn & Co., under investigation.

FIGHT AGAINST GUFFEY COAL BILL IS URGED

Labeling the Guffey bituminous coal commission bill a collection of privileges to be handed out by government commissions and boards, the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday mailed a plea to its members to protest its passage by appealing to their congressmen.

"What now is a constitutional right to engage in an honorable and useful business," the letter said, "would under the Guffey bill become a privilege at the discretion of a Washington commission and of one or more of the 22 district boards."

The letter points out that not only does the bill encourage the creation of a monopoly but that it would create a monopoly that had no consumer representative.

The letter also declares large manufacturers who have their plants close to coal sites would lose their advantage of location.

SILVERITES GET CRYPTIC REPLY FROM PRESIDENT

Noncommittal on Price Boosting.

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today made a polite but noncommittal reply to the request of the senate silver bloc that he administer the silver purchase act "enthusiastically" to its goal of boosting the price of the white metal to $1.29 an ounce or until the treasury has bought silver equal to one-third of monetary gold in the country.

The President's observations were made in reply to a letter signed by forty-six senators, headed by Senator Thomas [Dem., Okla.]. Thomas recently complained that the treasury policy had actually forced the price of silver from 81 to 67¾ cents instead of shoving it upward. Some senators hold the treasury should buy silver until its price reaches $1.29 an ounce, or enough is purchased to pile up one-third as much monetary silver as gold.

Relies on Treasury Head.

"When we come to such particulars as the amount and price of day-to-day purchases of silver and the issuance of silver certificates in excess of the cost of the silver," said the President's letter, "their determination is a duty which the congress, by the provisions of the Silver Purchase act, has laid upon the secretary of the treasury.

"I know, from my frequent conferences with him on the administration of this act, surcharged with such great responsibilities for our national welfare and the advantage of the world, that that duty has been and will be discharged in the manner most advantageous to the public interest, as the act itself enjoins, and in pursuit of our common objective of a wider monetary use of silver."

In the senate letter, drafted by Thomas, it was urged that silver money in circulation be expanded by issuing certificates because "there is not enough gold in the world to serve as the basis for issuance of money and credit of the world." It contended that world currencies must be adjusted and stabilized before "substantial progress can be made in working out of the depression."

Objectives of Silver Program.

Objectives of the program were urged as [1] bringing about higher commodity price levels, [2] placing silver in a position to assist gold as a currency and credit base, [3] adjustment of silver currencies to serve the best interest of the cotton producing states, [4] increasing possible profit to the treasury through "a legitimate revaluation of gold and silver," and [5] adjusting values of gold and silver to the end of early stabilization of world currencies.

Senator Thomas estimated that only the half-way mark of the 3 billion dollar purchase goal has been attained. He has predicted that long before the full 3 billion dollars reached the treasury the price would be up to $1.29 because of depleted world stocks. That, he contended, would make the white metal rank with gold as a world monetary unit and serve also to increase currency circulation in this country provided the administration issued silver certificates against it.

DELAY GOODRICH MEETING TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE

New York, July 26.—(AP)—A further postponement of the special meeting of B. F. Goodrich company stockholders, called to approve a $45,000,000 bond issue, was announced late this afternoon. The meeting will reconvene next Monday morning.

Adjournment was due to the request of tellers for more time for a recheck of the stockholders' vote. Inspectors checking the proxies said the indications were that more than 75 per cent of the stock voted was in favor of the company's financing program but they felt that additional time was required for an accurate count.

AAA COLLECTS 867 MILLIONS IN PROCESS TAXES SINCE MAY, '33

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—The AAA announced today the government collected a total of $866,694,982 in processing and related taxes from May, 1933, through May 31, 1935. Related taxes, it was explained, include ginning taxes on cotton under the Bankhead act, producers' sales tax under the Kerr-Smith tobacco act, and compensatory taxes collected on paper and jute products competing with cotton.

The report showed collections divided as follows: Wheat, $234,019,262; cotton, $236,624,912; paper and jute, $12,310,764; tobacco, $48,469,115; field corn, $10,860,650; hogs, $254,315,586; sugar, $61,500,501; peanuts, $3,367,490; rice, $17,719; cotton ginning tax, $947,212; tobacco producers' sales tax, $3,229,243, and unclassified, $1,032,523.

The report showed that more taxes were collected from Illinois than any other state, the amount being $149,051,673. Amounts paid by the next eleven highest states were: New York, $94,574,563; Minnesota, $51,122,361; Massachusetts, $40,555,573; Missouri, $36,175,013; Iowa, $29,749,110; California, $29,394,050; Ohio, $28,318,608; Pennsylvania $27,541,798; Kansas, $25,838,678; Texas, $22,438,129 and Indiana, $15,520,237. Of other states in the central states region Michigan paid a total of $10,290,942 and Wisconsin $8,693,942.

Nevada paid the least of any states with total collections of $190,551. New Mexico was next with $256,787 and Wyoming paid the next least amount at $402,789.

The total paid by Illinois included $124,741,369 on hogs, $15,663,726 on wheat, $4,899,375 on cotton, and $1,585,842 on corn.

Reserve Gives Hint France May Quit Gold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—A broad hint that France has had increasing difficulties in staying on the gold standard during the last four years and that she may slip in some future crisis was contained in the federal reserve board's official bulletin issued today.

The reserve board's statement, although it stuck to facts and avoided all predictions, was one of the most outspoken on the precarious French position which has come from official New Deal circles. It was one of the first official statements to throw doubt on France's ability to stay on gold.

The New Dealers themselves would have an important stake in any French monetary upset since it would disturb the "advantage" which the New Deal believes it has obtained by devaluing the dollar and offset much of the effect of the devaluation or start a devaluation war.

Gold "Bloc" Loses Yellow Metal.

More than a billion dollars in gold was lost by France and by Holland and Switzerland during three months of this year, the board points out in noting that for three years there has been a "tendency" for France to lose gold and for each recurrent period of exports to eat more heavily into French banking reserves. The official bulletin brought this fact out by contrasting the French gold losses of this year with those of March, 1934.

"In December, 1932, gold began to flow out of the country, and reserves of the commercial banks were sharply reduced," the board relates. "Accompanying the loss of reserves there was an advance in bill rates in the open market. Succeeding gold drains culminated in serious difficulties early in 1934. After March 2, 1934, gold returned to France, partially restoring the losses of the previous period. The recent outflow, however, has left the bank's gold reserves smaller than in March, 1934.

Tells Effects of Gold Outgo.

"Each of the two periods of gold outflow has been accompanied by heavy drafts on the reserve balances of the commercial banks, increased borrowing at the Bank of France, and a firmer money market. The drain that culminated in March, 1934, however, was mostly met from reserve balances, which were still high. Such borrowing as there was at the Bank of France was at a comparatively moderate cost. Hence the open market bill rate rose only to a point just short of 3 per cent.

"During the recent crisis the pressure was much more severe. Reserve balances at the outset were lower and the banks borrowed more heavily from the Bank of France. The bank in turn raised its discount rate to double the level reached in February, 1934, and the open market followed the rate set by the Bank of France."

Member Bank Reserves Rise.

Turning to the domestic situation the bulletin says an increase of $260,000,000 in gold stocks in June brought member bank reserve balances and excess reserves to the highest levels in the history of the federal reserve system. Reserve balances totaled $5,006,000,000 June 29, and the bulletin said the rise "was entirely due to further large imports of gold"—mostly from France. Excess reserves reached $2,400,000,000 on the same date.

The bulletin revealed that four-fifths of the June increase in our gold stocks came from France when the United States stepped in with American dollars to save the tottering franc late in May. Largely as a result of heavy gold imports the board noted that deposits of reporting member banks have continued to increase at a rapid rate.

Refunding of Bonds Large.

A marked increase in corporation financing in the second quarter was noted, "particularly bond financing for the refunding of outstanding callable issues with high coupon rates." This amounted to $331,000,000. "New" money raised amounted to $81,000,000, "larger than for any corresponding period since the third quarter of 1932."

High grade bond yields showed little change, the board said, but the return on treasury bonds continued to decline during April and remained at an average yield of about 2.60 per cent during May and June.

UTILITY APPLIES FOR 65 MILLION REFUNDING ISSUE

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—An application to issue $65,000,000 of 3½ per cent long term refunding mortgage bonds has been filed with the New Jersey public utilities commissioners by the Public Service Electric and Gas company, operating subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey.

Percy S. Young, vice president, said the entire issue would be sold privately to purchasers whose identity he could not disclose but who in no way were connected with the company. The proceeds will be used to retire two series of 4½ per cent first and refunding mortgage bonds due in 1967 and 1970, respectively, both callable at 104½ and amounting to $45,000,000 and $20,000,000, respectively. The issues were sold by Drexel & Co. and Bonbright & Co., Inc., in 1927 and 1930.

Chicago Scrap Steel Price Raised 25 Cents Per Ton

Following advances in other leading markets, Chicago quotations on scrap steel have been advanced 25 cents a ton to a range of $10.50@11.00 a ton. The Pittsburgh market continues to lead the general rise, showing another gain of 50 cents to a basis of $13.00@13.50 a ton for No. 1 heavy melting material. In the last week this market has climbed $1.25 a ton.

Two Elected Directors of Kroger Grocery Co.

Cincinnati, O., July 26.—[Special.]—Harry L. Gilligan, Cincinnati, and J. O. McKinsey, Chicago, today were elected directors of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, succeeding Otto Armleder, who died recently, and Col. C. O. Sherill, who resigned. Regular dividends were declared by the board.

QUERIES ON PWA BUYING ABROAD ROIL ROOSEVELT

Replies to Complaint of Steel Leader.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today replied heatedly to charges that public works money is going to foreign steel producers but failed to deny that public money intended to rehabilitate American industry is being spent abroad.

Mr. Roosevelt launched into an attack on the tariff and a defense of PWA action when he was asked at his press conference about a public works order declaring that all projects financed by PWA must buy foreign steel and other materials if foreigners bid more than 15 per cent under American bids.

But when the President was reminded by a reporter that PWA money was voted by congress to benefit American industry and workmen, he made no reply except to ask how much steel the reporter believed had been bought abroad.

German Steel Being Used.

Here again the President was checkmated, however. Another reporter informed him that German steel was being used in an annex to the Library of Congress building. The President countered by saying he imagined steel imports were a very small fraction of domestic production, but again did not deny that the PWA order would take recovery funds away from Americans and give them to foreigners.

Added interest attached to Mr. Roosevelt's emphatic remarks because they were in rebuttal to Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, who yesterday called attention to the PWA order and with whom the President has been on strained terms for some time.

Asserts Rule Is Old One.

President Roosevelt started his discussion of Grace's charges by saying that the rule requiring government purchases from foreigners who bid 15 per cent under American competitors was an old one. The order applying the rule to PWA recovery funds, however, was not signed until May 25, PWA records show.

Mr. Roosevelt then cited as an example an instance in which a Japanese firm submitted a bid on airplane cloth 50 per cent lower than the bid of the only American firm manufacturing airplane cloth. In that instance, the President said, the government departed from the general rule and rejected the Japanese bid in order to encourage the manufacture of airplane cloth, a necessary war material, in the United States. He made much of the fact that this caused the expenditure of double the necessary amount of public funds.

Recalls Tarif On Steel.

The general rule on steel, however, the President continued, is that the American manufacturer is protected by a very high tarif. That was seen to under previous administrations, "without mentioning any names," the President commented.

On top of the tarif, the President said, the government rule was that no foreign bid should be accepted unless it was 15 per cent under the lowest American bid. In other words, the government adds 15 per cent onto the existing tarif, Mr. Roosevelt argued.

At this point the reporter inserted his reminder that PWA funds were unique in that they were intended to aid American industries and their employés.

Walter Tower, executive secretary of the Iron and Steel institute, protested today against the new PWA regulations. He rejected a suggestion of Col. Horatio B. Hackett, assistant PWA administrator, that the regulations be revoked. He insisted the differential should be increased.

Criticizing procurement regulations for federal purchases, which are substantially the same, Tower planned to confer with Admiral C. J. People, treasury procurement officer, who is in charge of buying the estimated additional $1,000,000,000 of materials to be used in the work relief program.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN BACK ON DIVIDEND BASIS

The Madison Square Garden corporation yesterday declared a dividend of 15 cents on the capital stock, payable Aug. 30 to stock of record Aug. 15. This is the first dividend since July 16, 1931, when 15 cents was paid.

The Sherwin Williams company declared a dividend of $1 on the common stock, payable Aug. 15, to stock of record July 31. In the four preceding quarters dividends of 75 cents have been paid on the common.

BORG-WARNER QUARTER PROFIT BEST SINCE 1929

Many Other Corporations Report Earnings.

Borg-Warner corporation and subsidiaries yesterday reported a net profit of $1,627,486 for the second quarter of this year after all charges, the highest for the quarter since 1929. Earnings were equivalent to $1.37 a share on common stock after preferred dividends and compare with $1,383,846 or $1.15 a share in the first quarter and $1,084,500 or $9 cents a share a year ago. Net for the first six months of this year amounted to $3,011,332 or $2.25 a share, against $1,948,431 or $1.59 a share in the first half of 1934.

Current assets as of June 30, totaled $23,122,621, including cash of $10,245,508 and marketable securities of $1,785,509, against current liabilities of $6,884,915. This compares with current assets of $19,290,525, including cash and marketable securities of $9,270,558, against current liabilities of $4,418,383 on June 30, 1934.

Butler Brothers Sustain Loss.

Frank S. Cunningham, president of Butler Brothers, reported a net loss of $504,000 for the first six months of 1935, compared with a net profit of approximately $100,000 a year ago. Net sales during the first half of this year were 7 per cent below the 1934 period, he said.

The decline in sales was due partly to unseasonable weather and an ultra cautious purchasing policy of the average retailer, Cunningham commented. Net loss for the half year was after an inventory depreciation of $200,000, caused chiefly by the drastic writing down of the value of carry-overs of seasonable goods which failed to move because of the unseasonable weather in May and June. The company's most profitable period is usually in the fall.

NRA No Longer Factor.

"The interruption in business caused by the collapse of the NRA has practically ceased," Cunningham said. "Some apprehension exists as to the effect of the recent court decision in respect to processing taxes. Most manufacturers and distributors are respecting former NRA wages and hours in a very gratifying manner."

International Salt company and subsidiaries for the six months ended June 30 reported net profit of $137,681, equal to 57 cents a share on capital stock, against $191,047, or 79 cents in the first half of 1934.

Kelvinator corporation in the nine months ended June 30 had net profit of $778,583, equal to 68 cents a share on capital stock, against $1,212,421, or $1.09 a share for the nine months ended June 30, 1934.

American Bank Note company and subsidiaries reported June quarter net profit totaling $246,846, equal to 27 cents a common share, against $171,666, or 16 cents in the March quarter and a net loss of $69,587 in the June quarter last year.

Curtis Publishing Net Higher.

Curtis Publishing company for six months ended June 30 earned net profit amounting to $3,773,297, equal to 42 cents a common share, against $3,731,371, or 39 cents in the first half of 1934.

Otis Elevator company and domestic subsidiaries in the six months ended June 30 had a net profit of $114,690 after taxes and depreciation, equal to $1.76 a share on the 6 per cent preferred stock, against net loss of $295,224 in the first half of 1934.

Simmons company and subsidiaries reported for the six months ended June 30 consolidated profit of $305,991 before federal taxes, against consolidated net loss of $697,281 in the first half of 1934.

Westinghouse Air Brake company and subsidiaries had June quarter net profit of $78,878 after depreciation and taxes, equal to 2 cents a share, against net loss of $174,250 in the first quarter of 1935 and net profit of $313,757, or 9 cents a share in the second quarter last year.

Cash Register Profit Soars.

National Cash Register Co. and subsidiaries for the quarter ended June 30 had a net profit of $501,138, equal to 31 cents a share of capital stock against $196,775 or 12 cents a share in March quarter and $722,130 or 44 cents in June quarter, 1934.

Baldwin Locomotive works and subsidiaries for the year ended June 30 reported a net loss of $2,415,539 against net loss of $3,582,255 for year ended June 30, 1934.

Reynolds Spring Co. net profit for the 6 months ended June 30 was $246,911, equal to $1.70 a share of capital stock against $169,827 or $1.14 a share in the first half of 1934.

Approve 3 Year Extension of Alton Loan with RFC

Washington, D. C., July 26.—(AP)—Ruling that the Alton railroad was not in need of financial reorganization at this time, the interstate commerce commission today approved its application for a three year extension of a loan of $1,894,632 from the Reconstruction corporation due July 28. The road applied for a five year extension.

FREIGHT TRAFIC MAKES LARGEST MID-JULY GAIN

Loadings for Last Week Rise 26,878 Cars.

Washington, D. C., July 26.—[Special.]—A more than seasonal rise of 26,878 cars, or 4.9 per cent, was shown in freight trafic last week over the preceding week, the Association of American Railroads reported today. The gain was the largest on record for mid-July and was particularly encouraging because of the rise in miscellaneous merchandise shipments.

The total for the week at 593,366 cars was 22,674 cars, or 3.8 per cent, below a year ago and 63,014 cars under the level of the 1933 week. Since the beginning of the year trafic has totaled 16,798,382 cars, compared with 17,167,596 in the corresponding period of last year and 15,187,851 in 1933.

Coal Shows Increase.

Coal amounted to 89,742, an increase of 14,259, but 7,971 below 1934 and 28,508 below 1933.

Grain and grain products totaled 33,379, an increase of 4,101, but 13,792 below 1934 and 15,805 below 1933. In the western districts grain and grain products totaled 21,275, a decrease of 7,013 from 1934.

Live stock amounted to 10,165, a decrease of 882; 16,049 below 1934 and 5,498 below 1933. In the western districts live stock totaled 7,157, a decrease of 15,448 below 1934.

Willys-Overland Creditors Object to Raising Output

Toledo, O., July 26.—(AP)—Six creditors of the Willys-Overland company, representing claims of $800,000, filed an objection in federal court today to a proposed order which would permit the manufacture of 10,000 more autos. The creditors asked an audit and appraisal of the Willys-Overland properties as a means of judging the desirability of further operations by the plant's receivers.

New York, July 26.—[Special.]—A sharp rally in Italian dollar bonds featured an otherwise dull bond market on the New York Stock exchange today. Recoveries of 3⅝ to 6¼ points ruled among the Italian issues with the government 7s showing a gain of 6¼ points and corresponding advances in Italian Public utility 7s, City of Milan 6½s, and City of Rome 6½s.

Cables from Europe indicating a more conciliatory attitude on the part of Italy regarding arbitration of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute by the league of nations, were responsible for the brisk upturn in Italian bonds.

Other Foreign Loans Quiet.

Domestic corporation bonds were steady to firm in featureless trading. Total sales decreased somewhat from the previous day, amounting to $8,034,000, compared with $10,385,000 Thursday.

United States government obligations were particularly dull. The federal issues held within a narrow price range, closing 1-16 higher to 1-16 lower.

Public utility liens continued to absorb most of the speculative interest in the domestic list with several fairsized appearing. American and Foreign Power 5s and Utilities Power and Light 5s were strong spots with gains ranging from one to two points.

Railroad Liens Move Narrowly.

Railroad liens were unusually quiet, prices of both the second grade and investment bonds showing only slight net changes. Industrial loans also were featureless.

Advances of 5⅞ to 9⅞ points in Baldwin Locomotive issues featured trading on the curb exchange and accompanied strength in Baldwin issues listed on the stock exchange. The report by the company today showed a substantial decline in net loss for the 12 months ended June 30, compared with the same period last year, and a sharp increase in sales over the preceding period.

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me your rating on Allis-Chalmers 5s, due 1937?—B. S. A.

Answer: Operations of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company are diversified. It sells industrial machinery, electrical equipment, and agricultural machinery. During the last few years manufacture of tractors has accounted for an increasingly large proportion of total business.

The company operated profitably through 1931, but in the succeeding three years substantial losses were sustained. During the first quarter of 1935 dollar volume of sales billed was twice as great as those billed during the corresponding 1934 period and net loss was cut to $22,000 from $677,000.

The company earned 89 per cent of its fixed charges, whereas in the first quarter of 1934 it lost $479,000 before fixed charges of $200,000. Dollar sales billed during the first quarter of this year were less than orders received. Bookings in April, 1935, were the greatest in the company's history, helped along by orders from the federal government and by increased industrial activity.

Despite heavy losses in the last three years current position has remained strong. On Dec. 31, 1934, working capital of $23,050,000 compared with funded debt of $13,963,000.

The bonds are a business man's investment. They are currently callable at 100½.

Philadelphia Dairy Products.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate information on Philadelphia Dairy Products preferred stock, Philadelphia. Thank you in advance.—L. A.

Answer: The bulk of this United States Dairy Products corporation subsidiary's sales are made in Philadelphia. It also distributes dairy products in communities in eastern Pennsylvania, including Ardmore, and New Jersey, including Atlantic City.

Sales dropped steadily from 1929 through 1933. A slight increase was evidenced in 1934, but it was insufficient to offset higher costs and the first loss in many years was sustained.

Net sales in 1934 were $6,830,000, against $6,728,000 in 1933, $8,532,000 in 1932, and $11,928,000 in 1931. Loss in 1934 was $311,000. This compared with net income of $15,000, or 49 cents per preferred share, in 1933. In 1932 net income was $701,000, or $24.07 per preferred share, against profits of $1,457,000 in 1931 and $1,608,000 in 1930.

Current assets on Dec. 31, 1934, including cash of $493,000, totaled $1,021,000, and current liabilities, including $100,000 notes payable to banks, were $895,000. Mortgages payable were $342,000.

There are outstanding 30,025 shares of $6.50 accumulative dividend no par prior preferred, on which nothing has been paid since July 1, 1933. The stock is just a speculation.

[Acme Photo.]

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

READING DECISION—Judge James J. Kelly, who yesterday granted Father Coughlin's bid for use of Soldiers' field for speech. The park board, loser in the case, is preparing to appeal the decision. (Story on page 1.)

J. P. MORGAN ARRIVES IN BRITAIN—The American financier as he landed at Southampton aboard the Aquitania for his annual outing in Scotland, where he usually hunts grouse on his estate at this time of year.
